33 DEAD

STAGE COLLAPSES AND MERRYMAKERS HURTLE TO DEATH

Appalling Tragedy Marks the Close of a Celebration at Long Beach, California, in Honor of the Late Queen Victoria's Birth Anniversary.

BAGPIPES SOUNDING AS THE MERRYMAKERS SHOT TO THEIR DEATH

Victims Were Mostly Women and Children—The Accident Was Caused by the Overcrowding of the Pier. Panic Followed in the Vast Crowd and Work of Rescue Was Difficult.

Long Beach, Cal., May 24.—Too weak to uphold the burden of nearly 10,000 human beings assembled for the festivities of "British Empire day" the land end of the big double-decked municipal pier in front of the city auditorium collapsed today. Hundreds of persons on the top deck were plunged down on the heads of other hundreds crowded on the second deck. The lower deck, then gave way, and all were dropped down a chute of shattered woodwork to the tide-washed sands 25 feet below.

Thirty-three persons, mostly women, were killed by the shivered timbers or crushed to death by the falling bodies of companions and friends. Fifty more were seriously injured, while hysteria and fright caused the disabling of scores of others.

A section of the auditorium, which went down in the crash, and the debris from it was added to the wreck that fell on top of the injured and dead.

The victims were subjects, or former subjects, of Great Britain, resident in Southern California.

NO MORE PEACE IN POLICE BOARD

Rows, Which Disrupted the Commission for Nearly 20 Years, Now Threaten the Mason Regime.

The peace and harmony which has marked the reign of Carlos Mason, head of the police board, is in serious jeopardy today.

Like the proverbial cat that always "comes back," the rows which disrupted the police board for nearly 20 years, and which threw the English-Brotherton factions into bitter political feuds, now threaten the Mason regime.

Mayor James G. Woodward, foe of the present police policies, has taken up the fight against Mason. The first clash came when Woodward attempted to wrest from Police Chief James L. Beavers the power to nominate and promote subordinates.

Mayor Has Majority

"The mayor has the advantage of having a majority of the members of the board on his side of the issue," declared a political leader Saturday. "He will gain his point unless some of his own supporters desert him at the last minute. Beavers is going to be stripped of the power he has enjoyed, and Woodward and his followers will be in power. In my opinion, Mason's declining days as head of the board, will be days of little glory."

Political observers declare that the dictagraph "scandals" will mark the return of the "black cat" of discord and dissention, to the board. Chairman Mason is Mayor Woodward's bitterest political opponent. He also bitterly opposed to the policies of Chief Beavers, but between Beavers and Woodward, Mason prefers the former. On the other hand, Mayor Woodward is opposed to Mason, Beavers and Detective Chief Langford. The detective chief is a kinsman of the police chairman. With Woodward in power Chief Lanford's term of office would be shortened.

Mason's term as chairman of the board terminates in March, 1914, and it has been whispered about that B. Lee Smith has been picked to succeed to the chairmanship. It has also been rumored that W. P. Fain is being groomed for the Mason cloak. Mayor Woodward has not even intimated who he wants to head the board. He awaits calmly the result of the aldermanic elections this coming fall. His friends say that he will have a majority in council then to sustain his policies.

Peace in Board Impossible.

"There can be no peace in the police board as long as Woodward and Mason are at loggerheads," a member of the board said. "It is strange, nevertheless true, that Mason and Woodward are agreed on certain police department policies. Mason opposed Beaver's closing the houses and so did Woodward. This is the issue before the board now. The other matters are trivial by comparison."

Mayor Woodward is going to break the police deadlock when the board meets again. Commissioner George E. Johnson, the mayor's right-hand man on the board, has been busy getting signatures of members of the board to a petition demanding that Chairman Mason call a special meeting to decide the question of whether or not Chief Beavers is to be stripped of his power. Chairman Mason does not like the idea of having a special meeting, although he told The Constitution that he would call a meeting if a majority of the members asked for it.

Seven members are said to have joined with Mayor Woodward in the call. Six who voted with him at the last meeting against Mason and Beavers have been joined by Commissioner George P. Dozier. Commissioner Dozier voted with Mason and Beavers at the last meeting. The Woodward faction claims the following members of the board:

W. A. Verney, C. R. Garner, George E. Johnson, Robert C. Clark, G. P. Dozier and Councilman A. R. Colcord.

Mayor Woodward's membership on the board assures seven votes.

Fight is for Principle.

Mayor Woodward claims that the dictagraph scandals in the police department have great political significance.

He admits that developments in the past twenty-four hours indicate that there will be bitter opposition to his police policies. He denies that he has a particular fight against Beavers or Mason.

"I am fighting for a principle," the mayor says. "I don't believe in letting any one man rule the entire department."

That there will be a serious row in the board is not denied. The old black has apparently dead for years, is back. Men who are close up on political affairs believe the three-cornered Beavers-Mason-Woodward row will make the Brotherton-English feuds appear like pink tea affairs.

SAYS CHIEF IS ABLE TO CARE FOR HIMSELF

Marion Jackson Has No Comment to Make on Beavers-Felder Controversy.

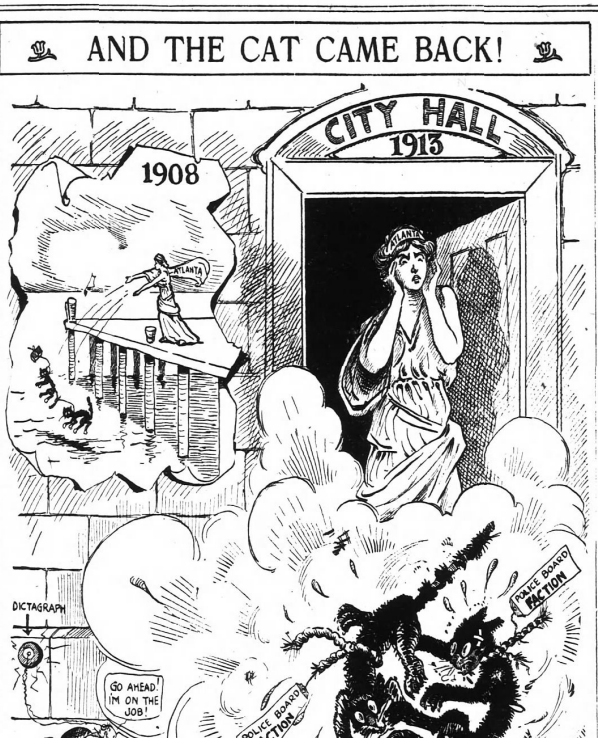
Marion Jackson and John J. Eagan, leaders of the Men and Forward Religion Movement were seen strolling down Decatur street last night about 9.30 o'clock. With them was N. A. Best, editor of The Continent, a religious journal published in Chicago. That Mr. Jackson and Mr. Eagan should be seen going down Decatur street in the direction of the police headquarters, at this time, when a new attack on the chief has been made, naturally caused considerable comment.

Mr. Jackson denied, however, that his appearance in that locality had any connection with Chief Beavers and the police department.

"The chief is amply able to take care of himself and needs no assistance from me," said Mr. Jackson. "I have no comment to make on the controversy between Mr. Beavers and Mr. Felder."

Mr. Jackson added that he was on Decatur street to show his friend, Mr. Best, something of life among the negroes in a southern city.

AND THE CAT CAME BACK!



COLYAR A SUCCESS IN PREACHER ROLE

Professed Conversion During Revival at Cartersville and Married Rich Widow Before the Meeting Was Over.

Athens, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—A. S. Colyar, now in the public eye in the Felder matter, had a short, hot, meteoric career in Athens in 1905. He came here representing himself as a former law partner of Hon. Andrew Lipscomb, of Washington, ingratiated himself with the bar, passed a forged check on his father at the Georgia National bank, secured the indorsement of Colonel C. H. Brand, then prosecuting attorney for the state, on a fraudulent draft and disappeared.

He was located in Richmond, Va., serving a sentence on the chaingang for a serious offense. Requisition brought him back to Athens and on April 11, 1905, he faced the charges of forgery. was convicted, and in a speech to the court before he was sentenced, he not only had jurors and attorneys weeping, but actually those he had wronged financially and the court itself. Judge Russell. He broke down and was carried from the room.

The sentence was suspended, a fund was made up in the court room of enough to buy him a suit of clothes and a ticket to Chattanooga. At Cartersville he left the train and was drawn to a revival meeting in progress, professed conversion, and went to preaching with great apparent power. Before the meeting was over, he had married a rich widow whose husband had been dead only a short time and he is said to have absorbed a small fortune left his wife.

He preached in Athens a number of times, billing himself ahead like a circus and filling the old Colonial theater with the curious crowd that wanted to hear him.

He went to Atlanta that summer and spoke at a tent meeting which was being conducted under the direction of Dr. Broughton and the Tabernacle church. On the docket of the superior court today the suspended sentence is still open and stands against Colyar. Judge Russell, who suspended that sentence, is now on the appellate court, which this week decided that a judge cannot effectively suspend sentences.

Police Chairman Confident Of Honesty of Officials

"Except to say that I have absolute confidence in the honesty and integrity of Chiefs James L. Beavers and Newport Lanford, I do not care to express myself," said Carlos Mason, chairman of the police commission, yesterday when asked for an official expression in regard to the charges made by Colonel T. B. Felder that the police and detective departments are full of graft and corruption.

"All that I know of the case has been learned through the evidence and statements made public," he added, "and as I have not been drawn into the matter and am not conversant with its details I would not care to say in what light I regard the attack.

"I knew nothing in advance of the efforts of the detectives to fasten evidence upon Colonel Felder through the use of a dictagraph," he added, "and it has come as a surprise to me.

"As to the charges themselves, as made by both parties to the case I have formed no opinion which I could express. I have no hesitancy, however, in stating my belief in the honesty of the departments."

CALLED A DRUNKARD, COL. ROOSEVELT SUES

Former President Goes to Michigan to Prosecute Editor for Libel.

Marquette, Mich., May 24.—After selection of a jury and the opening statement of counsel for the plaintiff in the libel suit of Theodore Roosevelt against George A. Newett, which will begin here next Monday, Judge Flannigan probably will be called upon to rule just how much proof will fall on the plaintiff.

The point local attorneys are arguing is whether Colonel Roosevelt must prove in detail that the drunkenness charge was libelous or whether his claim for damages can be sufficiently set forth in a simple denial of the editorial charge, leaving to the defense the burden of proving the truth of the allegation in the editorial printed in the "Iron Ore" during the presidential campaign last year.

Word was received here today to reserve accommodations for the following members of Colonel Roosevelt's party: Frank Harper, Jacob Riis, Clifford Pinchot, Frank H. Tyr, Robert Bacon, William Loeb, Jr., Edmund Heller, Walter Brown, J. C. O'Laughlin, G. K. Davis, J. Sloan, Judge A. Z. Blair, William Emlin Roosevelt, Philip Roosevelt, Dr. Alexander Lambert, James R. Garfield, Turman H. Newberry and eight others, whose names were not given. Most of them are witnesses.

William P. Belden, chief of counsel for George A. Newett, defendant in the Roosevelt libel suit, returned today from Chicago, where he was engaged yesterday in assisting in the taking of depositions to be used at the trial.

"I doubt if the case will require two weeks," said Mr. Belden today. "The depositions are much alike and the testimony should be brief."

Roosevelt Leaves for Trial.

New York, May 24.—Theodore Roosevelt left New York this afternoon for Marquette, Mich., to prosecute his libel suit against George A. Newett, publisher of The Iron Ore, at Ishpeming, Mich. The libel suit resulted from the publication during the last presidential campaign, of an editorial in The Iron Ore in which the statement was made that Colonel Roosevelt was untruthful, was given to the use of profanity and used intoxicants to excess.

Colonel Roosevelt will be his own principal witness. Anumber of men of national reputation will go to Marquette to testify in Colonel Roosevelt's behalf. Some of these men were in the colonel's party this afternoon. Depositions to be submitted have been taken from former Surgeon General Rixey, of the United States navy; Admiral Dewey, Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of The Review of Reviews, and many others.

Declarations as to Colonel Roosevelt's habits have been obtained from men residing at the principal cities visited by him during the last campaign.

ATTEMPTS TO ASSAULT PROMINENT WOMAN

White Tramp Is Being Chased Through Etowah River Swamps by Posses With Bloodhounds.

Rome, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Posses with bloodhounds tonight are scouring the Etowah river swamps, north of the city, for a tramp who this afternoon attempted to criminally assault a prominent white woman in her home on Fifth avenue, a thickly populated residence section of the city.

The woman was alone in her home and fought desperately and successfully against the man, who entered on the pretext of getting something to eat.

Not a white man was at home in the neighborhood and the women were panic-stricken.

The woman received medical attention and, although she is expected to recover, is critically ill from the nervous shock.

She states that while at work in her kitchen a strange white man appeared at her back door and asked for something to eat. She went into the dining room adjoining the kitchen and while she was at the sideboard getting food for the tramp he threw a towell over her mouth and smothered her screams, drawing the cloth back around her neck and cutting off her breath. Although choked nearly into insensibility she fought her assailant off and succeeded in reaching the front door of a neighbor's home where she fainted.

An angry crowd immediately gathered and followed the blood hounds up the Etowah river. Many of them were armed and despite the presence of several deputies violence is feared if the man is captured.

EXPLANATION TO BRYAN BY HOUSE OF MORGAN

New York, May 24.—The firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. today sent the following letter to Secretary of State W. J. Bryan: "Our attention has been called to an alleged interview with one of the partners of our firm, Mr. Davison, in Paris, in which Mr. Davison is quoted as commenting upon certain acts and policies of the state department and of the present administration. We desire to assure you that the sentiments attributed to Mr. Davison have never been entertained by either him or any members of this firm, and, furthermore, we have received from Mr. Davison cable messages denying, in the most explicit terms, the authenticity of this so-called interview and declaring that there is no ground whatever for the statements attributed to him."

"BECKER OF SOUTH" LANFORD IS BRANDED BY COL. TOM FELDER

System of Corruption as Poisonous as That of the Mafia Exists in Atlanta, According to Statement Made by Attorney Accused of Trying to Bribe Secretary G. C. Febuary to Steal Affidavit in the Phagan Case—Says Detectives Are Trying to Shield Murderer of Girl.

COLONEL FELDER IS MAKING HIMSELF LAUGHING STOCK, SAYS LANFORD; HINTS AT NEW BRIBERY CHARGES

A. S. Colyar, Leading Figure in Bribe Charges, Is Placed Under Arrest on Warrant From Knoxville, But Is Released on Bond—Connally, Negro Employee of the National Pencil Factory, Tells Officers He Wrote Notes at Dictation of Frank—Police Believe These Were the Ones Found by the Body of Mary Phagan.

Branding Detective Chief Newport Lanford as the "Lieutenant Becker" of the south, and charging that there exists in the Atlanta police department a "system" of corruption that is as poisonous as the deadly society of Mafia, Colonel Thomas B. Felder has issued counter charges to those of attempted bribery made against him Friday afternoon.

He declares that every bit of his sensational accusations can be supported by substantial evidence. He even asserts that the charges against him were made in an effort to shield and protect the murderer of Mary Phagan, whom the detective department are alleged to be assisting by the destruction of damaging evidence and by procuring witnesses.

First, and the most important of Saturday developments, was the indictment by the grand jury of Leo M. Frank, the suspected factory superintendent. The true bill was returned before noon. He now will be tried before Fulton superior court on the direct charge of Mary Phagan's murder.

Second, was the confession of James Connally, a negro sweeper in the pencil factory, who declares that he wrote, at the dictation of Frank, notes which the detectives believe to be the ones found by the body of Mary Phagan. After making complete acknowledgement to Detectives John Black and Harry Scott, he made an affidavit supporting the confession.

COLYAR, PLACED UNDER ARREST ON KNOXVILLE CHARGE, GIVES BOND

The arrest of A. S. Colyar, Jr., the adventurer, who is said to have engineered the dictagraph trap, was a third most important development. He was taken into custody early in the afternoon on receipt of a telegram from the Knoxville, Tenn., police, who want him on forgery charges. He was later released on $1,000 bond.

A dictagraph report has been made public of a conversation between Edward O. Miles, Secretary Febuary and Colyar with Mayor James G. Woodward, in which the chief executive is charged with having sought evidence with which he could impeach Chiefs Lanford and Beavers. He makes strong denial of the report, saying he is a victim of conspiracy, and says the report was either faked or "padded."

Chief Beavers, in a ringing statement, declared to a reporter for The Constitution that underhand forces were working secretly to remove him from office, and that a giant conspiracy was on foot to oust him by crookedness and treachery. He said, further, that he would assist the grand jury in any manner to prosecute those charged with the bribery attempts.

Harry Scott, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta Pinkerton branch, admitted to a Constitution reporter last night that his organization is in the employ of Frank's defense, and that reports of his daily progress are submitted to Luther Z. Rosser, counsel for the suspected superintendent.

Scott Makes Explanation.

He said, however, that he was retained for the apprehension of Mary

DRIVES AUTO INTO POLE TO SAVE MAN

Miss June Rooney Risks Own Life to Avoid Running Over Another—Is Painfully Injured.

Deliberately steering her automobile into a telephone pole to avoid running over a man, Miss June Rooney, 152 North Moreland avenue, proved the heroine in an automobile accident yesterday, in which she was severely injured and gashed about the face.

Intentionally courting danger, and ruining her automobile in order to avoid running down and perhaps killing T. G. Haucks, a salesman for Morris & Co., who was just alighting from a street car immediately in front of her speeding machine, Miss Rooney showed great presence of mind by choosing the only alternative she had to avoid a head-on collision with the man whose life she saved, even at the risk of her own. A man was in the car with Miss Rooney, but after taking her to the Davis-Fisher sanitarium, he disappeared.

Mr. Haucks, who was run down by Miss Rooney, though injured, was able to walk to his home at 58 Boulevard Terrace, and his injuries are not so serious as those of the game chauffeur, Miss Rooney, whose first request, upon reaching the hospital, was that a physician be dispatched to the home of the man whom she had run down and injured.

Pen to Be Reorganized.

Washington, May 24.—The United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., will be completely reorganized by Attorney General McReynolds, as the result of a recent investigation by the department of justice. Mr. McReynolds has under consideration the appointment of a successor to R. W. McClaughry, who recently resigned as warden of the institution after an administration of many years.

AUGUSTA'S SOCIAL SIDE

Augusta, Ga., May 24.—(Special Correspondence.)—Mrs. Harvey Moore, of Charlotte, and Mrs. Wallace, of Greenville, were complimented by Mrs. Irvin Alexander at her home on the Washington road with one of the prettiest and most elaborate parties of the season. There were nine tables of bridge. Each table was covered with flowered cretonne. The rooms were lovely with their artistic decorations of pink and white roses, pink and white lilac, sweet peas and Shasta daisies. Each tablecover was flowered with one of those lovely blossoms. The cards and score cards were also painted with the same flowers, and the candles and cakes corresponded with the flowers on each table in their color and decoration. Pivot bridge was played and a prize given at each table, the winners being Mrs. H. B. White, a piece of embroidered lingerie; Mrs. Paul Mustin, a pair of embroidered long gloves; Mrs. J. C. Black, Jr., embroidered lingerie; Mrs. Clara Mathewson, a pair of gloves; Mrs. Read, a silver vanity case; Mrs. W. M. Alexander, a bar pin; Mrs. William Martin, a rhinestone barrette; Mrs. Ralph Willis, rhinestone buckles; Mrs. Carter, rhinestone barette. The honor guests were each presented with beautiful spring parasols of light silk.

One of the lovely parties given for Mrs. Harvey Moore was the one with which Mrs. William Barrett entertained last Friday morning. A prize was given at each table for the highest score, which were beautiful automobile veils, won by Mrs. George Traylor, Mrs. Gould Barrett, Mrs. Moore and Miss Grace Dugas.

Mrs. William Martin entertained Saturday afternoon at the Country club with bridge for Mrs. Warley, of Charleston, the guest of Mrs. Samuel Martin. Mrs. Robert Fleming won the high score prize and the consolation fell to Mrs. Miller Robinson.

Mrs. Samuel Martin entertained informally with bridge Thursday after noon for Mrs. Warley, of Charleston. Mrs. John Twiggs won the high score prize, a pair of long gloves, and Mrs. Pinckney Skinner the consolation, also a pair of gloves. Mrs. Warley was presented with a beautiful dish.

Mrs. Reuben Clark, of Savannah, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. James W. Jackson, in North Augusta.

Miss Addie Stephens entertained Friday evening at her home in North Augusta for Miss Zelma Cason, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Miss Fanny Fortson, of Columbus.

The Friday Afternoon club was delightfully entertained by Miss Mary Duke at her home in North Augusta. A pair of white silk stockings was presented to Miss Estelle Hill for the highest score.

Mrs. Cornelius Moses, the guest of Mrs. Henry Cohen, and Mrs. Jefferson Carter, the guest of Mrs. Charles Phinizy, were guests of honor at a charming bridge party given by Mrs. Cohen at the Country club, followed by a prettily served tea. The prizes were awarded to Mrs. Louis Dugas, Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Clarence Leman.

Mrs. John Twiggs and Mrs. William Twiggs complimented Mrs. Warley, of Charleston, with bridge. The parlors were lovely with quantities of beautiful sweet peas. The prizes, silk stockings, were presented to Mrs. Warley, Miss Katie Black and Mrs. B. S. Dunbar.

Mrs. William Haskell, of Charleston, is the guest of Mrs. Sherwood Whitney.

Mrs. Louis Dugas, Miss Grace Dugas and Miss Arrington Butt will spend the summer in Virginia after a visit to friends during the naval commencement at Annapolis, and will sail for Liverpool in the early fall.

A bridge party at the Cranford club on Friday afternoon was largely participated in. A prize was provided for the high score at each table, and refreshments were served.

Miss Louise Hall, of Richmond, guest of Miss Helen Verdery, was complimented by her hostess with a delightful bridge party at her home in North Augusta Thursday. The rooms were prettily decorated with ferns and Shasta daisies. A beautiful girdle was won by Mrs. Fred League for the highest score, and the consolation was drawn by Mrs. John Weisiger. The guest of honor was presented with a box of monogram stationery. Miss Hall left Saturday for her home in Richmond.

Mrs. James Brinson, of Waynesboro, is the guest of Mrs. Oswell R. Eve.

A scrip dance at the Knights of Pythias hall was given by a party of young gremlemen of the younger set on Friday evening in compliment to their lady friends. The occasion was much enjoyed by a large company.

Mrs. Mary Bones Walker, who has been the guest of Mrs. William K. Miller, has returned to her home in Charleston.

Mrs. Thomas D. Coleman has gone to Washington, D. C., to be present next week at the commencement exercises of the young ladies' finishing school, attended by Miss Martha Coleman.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crowell have closed their beautiful winter home on the Hill and gone to the northwest for the summer.

Mrs. Elizabeth Beckwith, of Savannah, has returned home after a pleasant visit to Mrs. Isaac Reid, on the Hill.

Advices from abroad bring the intelligence that Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Dempsey, now the guests of Madame de Gontes in Paris, will go thence to Rome and London, returning to America through Germany, pausing at Bremer for a short stay.

Mrs. James McGowan and Miss Marguerite are visiting relatives in Athens.

SAVANNAH SOCIAL NEWS

Savannah, Ga., May 24.—(Special Correspondence.)—Invitations were issued this week by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Chauncey Battey to the marriages of their daughter, Miss Belle O'Driscoll, to Lieutenant Meade Warlick, coast dillery corps United States army. The marriage will take place in Christ church Wednesday evening, June 4, at 9 o'clock. There will be no general reception, but a reception to the younger set and intimate friends of the family. Miss Battey is one of the most beautiful girls in Savannah, and her marriage is of great interest here.

Mrs. Montague Boyd has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Henriette Laura, to Dr. William Farquhar Shallenberger, Saturday evening, June 7, at 9 o'clock, in the Independent Presbyterian church. There will be no reception.

Mrs. J. S. Evans, of Fort Screven, announced this week the engagement of her daughter, Miss Lila, to Mr. Olin Harrington Longino, first lieutenant, C. A. C., United States army. No date has been set for the wedding, but it will take place early in October. Lieutenant Longino has been stationed at Fort Screven for about six months.

Miss Sophia Meldrim has returned from a visit to Mrs. Walter Brooks, Jr., of Baltimore.

Miss Eleanor Nash is visiting her sister, Mrs. Douglas Gorman, in Baltimore.

Miss Beckwith is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Read, in Augusta.

The warmth of these latter days of May has brought summer life in with a rush, and already summer trips are being planned or people who do not go away until late in the season are preparing to spend June at the Isle of Hope, Tybee and the other resorts near Savannah which are so popular. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. G. Carson have been among the first to open their home at the Isle of Hope. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Penniman and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Allyn have taken the Lattimore cottage for the summer, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cope have the Demere cottage. Major Hardee and the Misses Hardee will move out to their summer home the end of the month. Judge and Mrs. Freeman will have the Moore cottage. At Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Weed are occupying their summer home, and with them are Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Dasher. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Chestnutt and Mr. and Mrs. Remer Denmark are at Tybee, and will move out to their bungalow later in the season.

Vernon View is now one of the most attractive places about town. Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Strachan have practically kept their charming home there open all winter, going out for the week-ends, and Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Pratt remained out for the greater part of the winter. Mr. and Mrs. James G. Hardee are already at their Vernon View cottage. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Mercer, Dr. and Mrs. Julius Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. Aldred Simkins and Mr. E. W. Bell and his family will open their homes this month or the first of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence G. Anderson, Jr., will spend the summer at White Bluff on Mrs. Anderson's return from Europe, and Mrs. William O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Tennille, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barnwell will open their home at White Bluff next month. Mr. and Mrs. William Murray Davidson and Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Davis will spend the summer at White Bluff.

Many attractive cottages are being built at Tybee, and will be occupied this season by the owners. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gordon have a handsome new cottage at the south end. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt Adams have also built at this end of the island. Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. McIntyre are building nearer the north end. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Palmer and the Misses Palmer have already opened their summer home at the south end; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wade have moved to their cottage; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neville will move this week, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulton will also go down to the island within a short time. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Ryals are among other people who will spend the summer at Tybee. Captain and Mrs. George P. Walker will occupy their home at the south end. Cottagers who will open their Tybee homes in June are Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Wylly, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Stoner and their family, Mr. Ambrose Ehrlich and his family, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Joyce and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Slater. Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer C. Parker will also have a cottage at Tybee for the season, as will Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smalley.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Lawton, Jr., will return in a day or two from a week's trip to Washington, D. C.

Mrs. George J. Baldwin and Miss Dorothea Baldwin returned yesterday from a week's visit to their country home at Flat Rock. Miss Baldwin is to be one of Miss Belle Battey's bridesmaids.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Gabell returned this week from their wedding trip.

Miss Helen Ellis is visiting Miss Anna Colquitt, in Mulberry, Fla.

NASHVILLE, GA.

Miss Ada Noles and Mr. Leon Griner were united in marriage here recently. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Noles. Judge J. H. Hull performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Maude Patterson Thornhill, of Atlanta, who has been visiting here, has returned home.

Miss Mae Swindle has returned from a visit to Willacoochee.

June Is Just Ahead--the Month of Brides and Roses

Which brings up the question of many articles of apparel, accessories to the trousseau—things for the going-away trunk, which must be selected in these next few days.

We know very well what the bride insists upon and we have remembered her daintiest whim in providing for her wants—from the filmy veil, which adorns her queenly head, to the satin slipper for her pretty foot.

Given below are a few suggestions—

White Silks for Bridal Gowns and Trousseaux

Clinging crepes de chine and lustrous crepe meteors, diaphanous chiffons, marquisettes, charmeuse, messalines, and real heavy duchess—certainly the costume of the most exacting bride is to be found in this wide assortment of appropriate silks displayed in our silk section.

Particularly delightful are these:

White satin charmeuse, double width, at $2 to $3.50 yard.

Exquisite Brocades to match, at $2 yard.

White crepes de chine $1.75 to $2.25 yard.

Crepe chiffons at $1.00 yard.

Chiffon cloths, $1:50 yard.

Pretty Silk Poplins at 59c Yd.

For street, afternoon and evening dresses, these Poplins are here in all fashionable color tones, light and dark; 24 inches wide. One of the most popular fabrics of the season. Priced for tomorrow at 59c yard.

Bridal Veilings and Laces

Two things that call for much enthusiasm—and that are usually selected with infinite care.

Here are the filmy tulle veilings in correct widths, whose beauty seems made to match orange blossoms and valley lilies; priced at $1.50, $1.75 and $2.25 yard.

Duchesse and Princess Lace Berthas to enhance the bridal robe, in rare, beautiful designs, at $12.50, $15, $17.50 and $20.

Duchesse and Princess laces by the yard; $2.25 to $15 yard.

Lace Flouncings, chantilly and craquele net; 27 and 45 inches wide; $2.50 to $7.50 yard.

Tomorrow in the Silk Section a Sale of $25 Lingerie Robes at $18

Lingerie Robes have sold in a hurry this spring—more popular, we believe, than any previous season. Only a few remain in stock with us—these are very high-class—some in exquisite Irish Point effects—white with borders in delicate pastel shades. Regular $25 Robes—you may buy them Monday at $18.

Another Sale of Embroidery Flouncings 59c Yd.

The last shipment sold immediately; here are others, just received.

Beautiful Embroidered Flouncings of sheer voile—all-white, or white embroidered in pink, blue or lavender. They are 45 inches wide, and only two to two and a half yards required, for the daintiest of dresses.

Bands to match, at 19c yard.

Italian Silk Underwear That Seems Made for Trousseaux

Italian silk combination suits, white or pink; very dainty; $3.50 and $4 suit.

Italian silk embroidered Vests; $2.50 to $3 each.

Ask to see the novelty silk stockings—in white, black and colors—especially for brides.

at $4.95 $8.50 and $10 Linen and Crash Suits

This assortment is made up mainly of Sample Suits, which we bought from a manufacturer, which explains their good style and value at this special price. Exceedingly smart and stylish—Suits that are "good to look at"—of heavy linen and crash in natural color. Coat suits in cutaway effects and Balkan styles, for misses and older women. There are 150 Suits for as many fortunate women Monday.

$25 and $35 Silk Suits at $5.00

A small group of exactly six Suits, which, on account of being slightly soiled from window display and handling, we have marked at this price for Monday. Happy the woman who finds her size among them, for that is the only thing to consider, their desirability and value at this price leave not a moment for further debate.

The materials are faille, taffeta and natural shantung—coat suits and ideal for many occasions of wear. They are $25 and $35 Suits, for this disposal at $5 each.

The remainder of the stock of $20 and $25 Suits to go Monday at..... $9.85

About forty Suits all told. Stylish mixtures, also navy and black. Good "bread and butter" Suits, such as are needed all summer for traveling, for general wear and for various occasions. Such an opportunity is rarely offered so early in the season—the choosing from $20 and $25 Suits at $10.

$5 Skirts at $2.95

The time for separate Skirts is here. Monday you may select from 100 stylish, pretty $5.00 garments and pay only $2.95 each. The models are charming, and there are many to choose from in black, navy and mixtures.

It's a Far Cry From Giants to Table Linens, But there was a giant, we are told, who never could be defeated in combat, because every time he struck the ground he gained new strength, and—

There are Table Linens whose every visit to the laundry make the patterns and good quality stand out with new intensity. That's the test of good linen; many an inferior piece looks well on the counter, but comes out of the tub with only a shadow of its original glory.

Here are Linens which will be a credit even to the treasure chest.

64-inch round embroidered—scallop-edge, damask cloths; pansy design or conventional scroll pattern; $3.50 each.

72-inch size, $5.00
81-inch size, $6.50

Hemstitched Table Sets Cloth and Dozen Napkins

The prices quoted are special for Monday's sale only.

64x82-inch Cloth, with 18-inch Napkins to match; regular $7 set at $5.50.

64x86-inch Cloth, with 18-inch Napkins to match; $7.50 set at $6.00.

66x104-inch Cloth, with 19-inch Napkins to match; $8.50 set at $6.50.

70x88-inch Cloth, with 20-inch Napkins to match; $9.00 set at $7.00.

Napkins

20-inch plain damask Napkins, with satin band border, especially adapted for monogram work or embroidery; $2.75 dozen.

23-inch size; $3.50 dozen.

22-inch damask Napkins with circle satin band border; $3.50 dozen.

Cloths—fine double damask cloths with satin band border—

72x90-inch size, $6.00.
72x108-inch size, $7.00.
72x126-inch size, $7.50.

24-inch Napkins to match; $6.50 dozen.

Of Special Interest to Brides Elect

Crepe de chine is the favorite fabric for brides' underwear, negligees, matines and such

These fascinating garments would tempt anyone to add to an already extensive wardrobe. Their real charm and beauty cannot be described in prosy words, we can only quote their prices and ask you to see them.

Petticoats of soft, silky crepe de chine, pink, blue, white or lavender, some with accordion plaited net flounces, wee rosebuds, others lace and ribbon or fringe trimmed. Priced at $5, $6, $7.50, $10 and $12.50.

Crepe de chine sets—matines and skirt, beautifully made, with chiffon trimmings; pink or blue; $20, $25 and $35 set.

Exquisite Negligees of crepe de chine, in pink or blue; irresistibly pretty. Priced at $10, $12.50, $15 to $25.

Combing Jackets, lace and ribbon trimmed; pink, blue or white; $5 up.

Boudoir Caps

Laces, nets, chiffons, tiny flowers and ribbons bewitchingly combined to form the most adorable of caps. Prices 50c to $5.00.

Have You Seen These Pretty Camisoles?

Not only are they quite the vogue—which makes them specially interesting—but they are too pretty and dainty for words. To give them a more familiar name—corset covers, or to be worn over the brassiere, with thin dresses. Dainty, beautiful creations they are, too, of shadow laces, chiffons, nets all trimmed with roses, ribbon bows and the like, and priced at $4, $5, $6 and $7.50.

The Wedding Corset

"Something old
Something new,
Something borrowed
Something blue."

Let the Veil be of choicest old Irish Point or Duchesse lace, if you will; and let her wear some borrowed trinket tucked away amid the laces, and the "bluebird of happiness" singing in her breast—but one thing must be new, bridal new, and chosen and fitted with infinite care—the Wedding Corset.

We know very well what the bride insists upon, and we've remembered her daintiest whim in providing the superb Corsets here—the real bridal kind, all brocaded and beautiful—or plain, if milady chooses.

And she need not confine herself to one kind nor one price, for many favorite makes are here, models for every figure, and all prices, from $3 to $25.

NATIONAL CONGRESS OF MOTHERS AND PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATIONS GEORGIA BRANCH

The Defective Children of Georgia

It is estimated that there are over a thousand defective children in Georgia, of whom two hundred are in the state sanitarium at Milledgeville and to whom no care is given except detention, food and clothes. These are only a few of the great number there are in Georgia. For the normal child there are schools and colleges, there are aids of all kinds, but for the subnormal or defective, no helping hand is extended. He cannot be allowed in the county or city schools, as he demoralizes the classes; he cannot be left alone at home for fear of harm to himself or others.

And there is no place to send him. A great number of these children may be made partly self-sustaining and wholly happier by judicious and scientific education. In well-to-do families this training may be obtained at great expense outside of the state by private teachers in the home.

But what of the great numbers who cannot afford this and whose whole time is taken up in labor for their own and their normal children's maintenance. Shall they chain the defective child to a wall while they go to the well, garden or cotton field? How shall they train him to be useful or self-sustaining when they have so little time or skill themselves?

Success of Montessori Method.

The wonderful success in Italy of the Montoresso method of training such children has revolutionized our ideas of their capacity. This method consists of imparting ideas to the brain and improving the reasoning powers by sedulously training hands and eyes. What has been accomplished there can also be done here. Although this method might not be entirely suited to our people the principle and ideas upon which it is founded are sane and successful.

Two years ago there was introduced into the Georgia legislature the Crumley bill for the relief of these children. It provided for a state school, situated on a farm and for the housing of the children on the cottage system. Although there were defects in this bill, it was a step in the right direction, but it was allowed to die in the committee room.

This year there will be introduced another bill embodying most of the plans advocated for the betterment of these children. It will be broad enough for the working out of a system for the best training, physically, mentally and morally of these defectives.

The Mothers' Congress has many aims for the uplift of the child, but from the present time until the close of the legislature all other objects will be subordinate to the help of those defective children who have so few to plead their cause in Georgia.

Help us extend our love and assistance to those who, though born under misfortune, are still our brothers.

MRS. EUGENE M. MITCHELL.

MRS. LITTLE URGES CLUBS TO WORK FOR WOMAN'S EDITION

The following letter to presidents of Parent-Teacher associations and Mothers' clubs:

"Dear Madam President—Doubtless you have received the letter of Mrs. John Rowlett, your state corresponding secretary, inclosing subscription blanks and a leaflet giving the aims purposes of the special edition of The Constitution, about to be issued by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

"I hope that each president will use her efforts to sell or have sold as many of these copies as possible. While we are a branch of a national organization, we wish to co-operate with this, our sister organization, in increasing the circulation of this paper.

"This special edition will carry the work of every woman's organization in the state. We feel that every woman will have a special pride in the efforts put forth by this representative body of Georgia club women.

"MRS. JAMES R. LITTLE,
"President."

PARENT-TEACHER CLUBS CLOING UNTIL FALL

Hundreds of Women Have Been Interested in the Work During Past Year.

The Parent-Teacher Neighborhood clubs are now closed until fall. During the past year hundreds of mothers, teachers and women interested in the work of these associations have gathered in the school houses in Atlanta for the lectures and other forms of entertainment furnished by the presidents of these clubs.

Perhaps more work has been accomplished through the department of child hygiene, sanitation and conservation than any other department. A course of lectures planned for these clubs beginning with parental influences and continuing through the different stages of child life have been given by leading physicians of the city.

Twenty-five of our leading physicians are on this lecture course, and they have made the talks informal and most helpful to mothers. Several mothers have expressed such gratitude that these busy men would take the time to give these talks and that they were so valuable and were free. We find no group of men more willing to give than the physician who daily sees the crying need for mothers to know more.

Eugenics is a wonderful new science that will be considered one of the distinguished marks of the twentieth century, which will be known as the era that makes the study and improvement of the race. There is no work in the world so high or so holy as that which parents share jointly with the maker of us all, the creation of man.

Plan for Next Year.

It is much to be regretted that all these educational matters have not been taken up in the schools by mothers instead of parents, as none of the schools are at liberty to use the lights for other than school purposes. Consequently these meetings are held in the afternoons. With such a splendid beginning it is hoped Atlanta will soon have social centers in connection with all the schools, and that the lecture courses will be on a much broader scale. Plans are now being made to add lectures by specialists in all lines. On of the series we hope to see added is the care of teeth, the ear, eye, nose and throat.

Mother—Now, Mabel, dear, would you sooner stay at home with me or go for a walk with Auntie?

Mabel—I'd sooner go for a walk with you.—Life for May 15.

BOOK DEPOSITORY NEEDED BY SCHOOLS

Many Demands Have Been Made for Books for Mothers on Child Training.

How could Atlanta arrange to have a book depository in connection with the schools? Could this be arranged through the managing board of the library and through the mothers and teachers of the Parent-Teacher association?

Many demands have been made for a selection of books for mothers on the development of child life. The library is the people's college. It stands for recreation that is cheap and moral. It is needed in every community. At least half of the education of any enlightened community is derived from reading. If a class of school children is studying any special subject it must have other books in connection with the subject. Frequently this is out of the question, distance and car fare being prohibitive.

Summer is the time for general reading. It is the time for the child to live the stories that all children should know. The school needs a library, the community needs a library. Why have them separate. The school is the center of the community and center of much of the neighborhood's interest. Why not make it a real center by grouping other interest?

Public Ledger Discontinues Comics.

The use of the color comic pages in the Sunday Philadelphia Public Ledger has been discontinued. It was concluded that the subject matter and treatment of the comic illustrated serials exercise a mischievous influence on boys and girls and have a demoralizing tendency.

This paper believes that the substituting of other features of superior quality will have more worthy appeal to the intelligence and good taste of the great mass of its readers. It is the province of a newspaper not only to elate in its readers appreciation of what is elevating and artistic rather than the popularity of that which is due more to the obviousness of its appeal than to inherent merit of its own.

This paper is replacing the comic section with other features that will have equal interest as well as superior value.

Getting Down to Facts.

(From Judge.)

"Where are you going to spend the summer?"
"Same place as last year, I think."
"Some good place, eh?"
"Pine."
"Have clean rooms?"
"Yes."
"Plenty to eat?"
"All I could get away with."
"Many other boarders?"
"No; am a decidedly exclusive place."
"Chickens or pigs or such bother you?"
"Didn't notice 'em."
"Huh! Must 'a' been swell! Any mosquitoes?"
"Well, one or two, maybe; but not many."
"Were you near the water?"
"Yes. Near water, links, tennis courts; everything handy."
"Mum! It' cost a pile."
"No more'n it cost me in town, in winter."
"Get fresh fruits?"
"Every day."
"Any scraps with farmers?"
"Didn't have one."
"Charge you for things you didn't get?"
"Not when I was looking."
"Well—you didn't tell me where you spent last summer!"
"Why, I stayed home."

Discipline.

(William Penn.)

If thou wouldst be happy and easie in thy family, above all things observe discipline. Every one in it should know their duty; and there should be a time and place for everything, and whatever else is done or omitted, be sure to begin and end with God.

Phagan's murderer, and that his efforts were being directed to obtain evidence supporting the theory that Frank is the slayer. His testimony before the grand jury Saturday morning was said to have been damaging to Frank. He assisted in procuring the confession from the negro, Connally.

On the other hand, Chief Beavers and Detective Lanford are equally defiant. They assert that the employment of Mr. Felder in the Phagan case is only a part of a scheme to undermine the present police administration because of its war on vice. In this scheme, Detective Lanford said last night there were others involved besides Mr. Felder, and he intimated that bribes had been offered by other prominent men in connection with the investigation of the Phagan case whose names would come out before the fight was over.

"Felder is making himself a laughing stock," said Lanford.

Political Fight Certain.

One thing, it was generally agreed, is certain as the outcome of the days' developments. It means war to the finish between the present police administration and those who are opposing it. It means that the battle which is the beginning of one of the bitterest political fights for supremacy in the control of the city government that Atlanta has ever known. The significant fact it is that this war of factions should have grown out of the murder of an innocent child and the puzzling solution of the mystery.

"I would have the people of this community know," says Colonel Felder in his statement, "that from the day and hour of the arrest of Leo Frank, charged with the murder of little Mary Phagan, Newport Lanford and his conspirators have left no 'stone unturned' in their efforts to shield and protect the suspect, and I shall demonstrate later on the truth of this statement and how much crookedness that 'he who runs may read.'"

Throughout the entire statement rings a tone of caustic denunciation. Frequently, the detective chief is referred to as "Lieutenant Decker" Lanford. In furthering and effectuating the conspiracy he alleges they have bribed, the attorneys for Frank and the detectives have winked at forgeries, suborned perjury and employed every base agency to which such grovelling criminal instincts could contrive and conjure.

Asserting that Newt Lee, the negro night watchman suspect, will give the incriminating testimony against Mary Phagan's slayer, Bernard Chappell, the negro's attorney, states that before he will allow his client to be separated from jail, he, himself, will issue a warrant for his arrest and detainment, to prevent his being tampered with. The reported inducement to be given by Lee, the lawyer says, has never yet been revealed.

Colyar Under Arrest.

One of the most startling incidents of such a startling program of developments was the arrest of Colyar, the adventurer and world-wanderer. Ever since the first publication of the sensational turn of affairs in the Phagan mystery, he has been one topic of conversation. His career as revealed by The Constitution Sunday morning, was sufficient to make him an interesting character.

Shortly before 12 o'clock, Chief Beavers received a telegram from Knoxville police ordering Colyar's arrest on charge of a forgery said to have been committed in that city four years ago, when he was charged with fleecing an inmate of the tenderloin of a sum of money. He was found by Detectives Norris and Chewing in the Williams House No. 2. Taking his arrest calmly he accompanied the officers to headquarters.

When questioned by reporters there, he refused to make a statement.

Chief Beavers was dramatic in his denunciation of the forces secretly working to remove him. To a small group of reporters and friends he arose from the desk in his office at headquarters, reaching his full height and angrily smiting the desk with clenched fist.

"It is a fight to the finish. The battle is on. I am going to force the vice gangsters into the open. This is the first gun in an attempt to get me out of office. They cannot do it with the sneaking, tricky methods they are employing. They'll have to battle fairly, squarely and on equal grounds.

It Will Be Battle Royal.

"I have fired into a hole. My bullet hit its mark. The snakes have got to come out. And when they emerge, it's to be a battle royal. I will strip some folks of their sheep's clothing and show the lion skin that's underneath. Felder was hit first. It was so warm for the others that they had to show their hand. The issue is now between the decent people of the city and the promoters of vice, who have controlled the city politically for years.

"The majority of the people of the city are with me, I know it. They are to fight with me to the finish, no matter how bitter it might be. All I want is the good-to-the-core and loyal support of respectability. I'll win, and it won't be long in the winning. This situation has outgrown a personal issue or an issue of the Phagan case, and has assumed the proportions of the hottest fight in the political history of Atlanta."

Concluding his fiery statement, one of the first of its kind he has made since his election to office, Beavers said:

"I will fight them to a finish, even though I die in my tracks. They are trying to back me into a corner, and I fight when they try that. Even a rat will turn back and fight when cornered. I do not propose to wait until I am forced too far back into the corner before defending myself."

Although incessant attempts were made to break down his story, James Connally, the negro sweeper, maintained it straight through a series of exacting cross-examinations to which he was subjected at both police headquarters and the office of Solicitor General Dorsey at the courthouse.

Says Frank Dictated Notes.

His tale will likely weave a new aspect to the tragedy's theory. He declares that Frank dictated the notes to him on the afternoon prior to Mary Phagan's death, and that he recognizes the wording of the murder notes as his dictation given him by the plant superintendent. His confession came about when he called Detective John Black, of headquarters, to his cell early in the morning.

"I wants to make a confession," he told the detective, who was assisted by Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons. "I wrote those notes, and I'll swear to it. I'm tired of keeping it secret."

Chief Lanford's Statement.

Chief Lanford's statement, made to a reporter for The Constitution Saturday afternoon, was as fiery as the one issued by his superior chief.

"Felder is ridiculous. We have shown him to be the crook he is. The best thing for him to do is to go somewhere and hide himself. He is disgraced, as he should have been long ago," the detective said.

"The police and detective departments are going to break up Atlanta's ring of vice promoters. They have been dominant too long in the city's political situation. It is now time for decent folk to rise and demand the rule. Atlanta is a clean town, morally, and hereafter it will be clean politically—that can be depended upon."

In explaining Colyar's connection with the dictagraph plot, the chief said that Colyar offered to engineer the plan, and that he voluntarily loaned his efforts. There is no truth, he said, that the man was being paid a large sum for his work. The city of Atlanta, declared Lanford, had not paid Colyar a cent, and did not intend to. He was drawing money from no source whatever, the detective asserted.

"Colyar's interest in the entire case," he said, "has been to obtain material for a story he is writing on the Mary Phagan mystery. That was his motive in engineering the dictagraph scheme. He had no other view in mind. At least, I am aware of no other."

Colyar Free on Bond.

Colyar was released early last night on cash bond of $1,000. He will remain in Atlanta until next Thursday, when authorities from Knoxville will come to Atlanta for him.

Chief Beavers would not reveal the adventurer's bondsman. He admitted that the bond was cash, and for $1,000, but beyond that would say absolutely nothing.

An attempt was made by Headquarters Detective John Black and Chief Scott, of the Pinkertons, Saturday to carry the Connally negro to the Tower, where they intended having him recite his confession before the white suspect in order to make the testimony admissable before trial jury.

When Scott sent word to Frank's cell that he and Connally desired an interview, the prisoner replied by messenger that he would not see the detective or anyone else without first consulting counsel or having his attorney present during the transaction. Scott and Black retired without gaining entrance to the prison.

Lungs Were Affected; Now in Good Health

The makers of Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, do not claim that it will restore every one to perfect health, but so many have voluntarily testified it saved their lives that all who have this dread disease should investigate and try it. It should stop the night sweats, relieve fever, promote appetite and in very many cases prolong life. Read what it accomplished in this case:

Catherine Ave. and Arcot Place, Queen's Court, L. I.

"Gentlemen: In the year 1908 I was taken with a heavy cold and a nasty cough and went to several doctors, including a specialist. Their medicine failed. My brother then recommended Eckman's Alterative to me. Dear Sirs: It is now nearly two years since I first took it. I am now well and I dare say that I would have been buried long ago if it had not been for Eckman's Alterative. I wish to thank you for the Godsend to me. Wherever I go I highly recommend the Alterative, as I owe my life to it."

(Affidavit) JOS. J. PROSSNER.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' Drug Stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

"KNEW IT WAS COMING," DECLARES COLE BLEASE

Columbia, S. C., May 24.—(Special.—Governor Cole Blease, on whom the dictagraph was first sprung in the south, and by a strange coincidence through the instrumentality of Colonel R. B. Felder, feels that his time has come, and recent events are pointed to by him as his complete vindication.

"He that putteth on the sword by the sword he shall perish"—or words to that effect—is my biblical authority for the paraphrase that 'he who uses the dictagraph against another and fails to prove anything by it, by the dictagraph himself shall be crucified,'" said Governor Blease in talking of the Atlanta situation today.

"And the worst part of it all," continued Governor Blease, "is that this same man A. S. Colyar, is the identical sleuth hound turned loose by Felder on me to injure me among my own people—Colyar, this proven criminal and madman. He was the man chosen by Felder to wreck me, and now he turns up by wrecking Felder, and the strangest part of the whole thing is that Felder, the man in his own defense, is forced to the dernier resort of proving that the man he sent to get evidence against me is too contemptible for the word of either Felder or I to believe. My own vindication, therefore, comes from Felder himself. Who would have thought it, dear friend, when—

"I do not suppose anybody that knows Tom Felder would be surprised if he is guilty or if this is a scheme worked up by him to get a little cheap notoriety and advertising.

"However, I presume that the members of the Atlanta bar will immediately furnish certificates of character for their darling Tommy and show that he is above suspicion and a gentleman of the highest character, with unblemished reputation as a man and attorney; and if a court of Georgia should order his arrest, that General Anderson will forthwith call out the militia and have him released, as General Anderson, his former partner and lifelong friend, knows of his character and reputation, and will not for a moment allow his Tommy to be interfered with.

"I am satisfied that poor little missled Joe Brown has had his pardon cleri; ready fixing up a release for his innocent darling in case of any conviction.

"As as a matter of course the gutter snipes who went over to Augusta from South Carolina will hurry to offer their services to go on sweet Tommy's bonds, and also to appear in the courts, along with 'Seaboard Bill,' and his friend, J. L. Lyon, who have heretofore been his bosom friends in his defense; all save Chairman Carlisle, who, I suppose, will be too busy 'moseying' to leave his own state just now.

"Consequently, all will be well. Birds of a feather flock together and, of course, if the lead buzzard rings his bell the congregation will assemble."

FRANK THE GUILTY MAN, DECLARES CHIEF LANFORD

"Frank will be convicted. He is the guilty man, and we will show it beyond a doubt. Evidence that we hold but will not reveal will startle those who believe his innocence into conviction of his guilt. It will not be disclosed until the trial.

"I have been confident throughout the investigation of his guilt. I am satisfied now. Colonel Felder's charges that we have shielded Frank can find no substantiation. The evidence we have unearthed is proof to the contrary.

"The detectives of police headquarters have solved the mystery of Mary Phagan's murder. They have combatted against odds heavier than those we ever encountered before. I am proud of my men.

"I know my duty has been done. The murder of the little pencil factory girl has been cleared, and Tom Felder has been shown up in his true colors. That is why the Atlanta detective department sleeps well o' nights."

—Chief Newport A. Lanford.

WOMEN ARE GATHERING FOR BALLOT CONGRESS

New York, May 24.—The seventh International Woman Suffrage Congress, to be held at Budapest from June 18 to June 21, is regarded as one of the most important ever organized for the advancement of the women's movement. Delegates from a large number of countries in all parts of the world will participate.

The American delegation includes Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, presiding; Miss Jane Addams and Mrs. J. T. Bowen, Illinois; Mrs. Oliver H. R. Belmont, New York and Mrs. Anna Maxwell Jones, Texas.

Among the delegates are educators, women members of parliament, town councillors, majoresses, artists, writers and workers against alcoholism and the white slave traffic, with promoters of the peace movement, the protection of mothers and children, the care of youth, working women's rights, household reform, etc.

Many of the delegates will meet at a parliamentary congress in Vienna on June 11 and 12.

Boys' Corn Clubs.

Valdosta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Interest in the Boys' Corn club work in this county is greater this year than ever before, and with nearly twice as many boys in the clubs. This is true also of the Girls' Canning clubs. Last year there were seventy-five boys in the clubs in Lowndes county, against 103 this year. G. V. Cunningham, who has charge of the work in this section, is greatly pleased with the interest shown by the young people, as well as the prospects for crop yields.

DR. ABBOTT CRITICISED BY ANDREW CARNEGIE

New York, May 24.—Before sailing for Europe today, Andrew Carnegie gave out a statement in which he took issue with Dr. Lyman Abbott on the subject of peace. He refers to Dr. Abbott as "our lamented ally who has recently wandered astray," characterizes as an astounding solution his recent declaration that "there are two ways of promoting peace, one by making our nation so weak it cannot fight, and the other by making it so strong that it need not fight."

This "panacea" can only succeed, Mr. Carnegie says, "by convincing nations emerging from war that they had reached one class or the other—either weak or strong."

The history of Europe, he declares, shows "that the defeated nation is incited by defeat to revenge as a patriotic duty and the strong ever strengthen their power to repel probable attacks."

"The true panacea for ending wars lies in the growing belief in the brotherhood of man," concluded Mr. Carnegie. He will be gone until October, spending most of his time at Skibo Castle, Scotland.

HIS WIFE NAGGED HIM AND HE KILLED HER

Richmond, Ind., May 24.—Seth Lucas, a farmer, has confessed that he killed his wife then set fire to their home near Williamsburg last September, according to a statement of the police here today. First investigation of the fire revealed no indication of crime, but tragedy was exposed when Lucas, acting in a peculiar manner, appeared at the police station here last Thursday. Lucas is a prisoner.

Lucas, in his signed confession, said he killed his wife because she was always nagging him.

He said he hit her with a "billy," then poured kerosene on her. "The first match I lighted," the confession stated, "my wife blew out. I then lighted another and set fire to her. My wife shrieked and made a loud outcry." He said he struck her again with the "billy."

Lucas is 52 years old and his wife was about ten years his senior.

FRANK INDICTED IN PHAGAN CASE

He Will Not Go to Trial Before the Latter Part of June, According to Solicitor General Dorsey.

Leo M. Frank, indicted Saturday afternoon for the murder of Mary Phagan, the 14-year-old girl whose dead body was found at 3 o'clock on the morning of April 27 in the basement of the National Pencil factory, will not go to trial before the latter part of June, according to a statement which Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey made last night.

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, who called the police to the place, was left under consideration by the grand jury. A bill of indictment charging him with the same murder was presented to the grand jury with the bill against the factory superintendent, but the grand jury failed to act, and it is believed that his case will be allowed to rest, pending the trial of the indicted man.

Both Confined in Tower.

Both Superintendent Frank and the negro, Lee, have been confined in the Tower since they were ordered held by the coroner's jury for the murder of the girl.

In discussing the time of Frank's trial, the solicitor stated that he could not say when it would be started.

"It will not be possible to hold it before the latter part of June," he asserted, "and whether or not it is held then depends on a number of things, I have instructed my men to get the case ready and there is also the defense to be considered, as they may secure additional time.

"I do not know what action will be taken in regard to Lee," he replied to a query on this point. "The grand jury still has the case under consideration, but I do not expect them to meet again before June 6.—Of course, they meet whenever they see fit, and may take action at any time; that rests with them."

The indictment against Frank, which came after a two-days' session, was secured at 12:20 o'clock Saturday afternoon. In all, the grand jury gave about five hours' time to the hearing. After the final witness had left the room, the solicitor remained with them a short time, not over ten minutes. They then went into executive session and he retired to his office. He had barely got to his desk when he was sent for and told that a true bill had been found.

Frank Charged With Murder.

The true bill formally charges, "That Leo M. Frank did murder, in that in the county aforesaid (Fulton), state of Georgia, on the 26th day of April, in the year of our Lord, 1913, with force of arms, he did unlawfully and with malice aforethought, kill and murder one Mary Phagan, by then and there choking her, said Mary Phagan, with a cord that he placed around her neck."

The bill of indictment which the solicitor asked against Newt Lee is understood to be practically the same as that charging Frank, which he succeeded in obtaining against Frank.

The probe on Saturday was taken up promptly at 10 o'clock, when the jury sent for Miss Grace Hix, a fellow employee with Mary Phagan, and the girl who first identified her body. A few minutes later she was excused and E. F. Holloway, day watchman at the factory, was called to the stand.

M. B. Darley was then called into the room. He was followed by Court Stenographer Parry, who made an official record of the testimony at the coroner's inquest.

Miss Monteen Stover, who recently told detectives that she visited the pencil factory on South Forsyth street at about ten minutes after noon and waited for ten minutes in Frank's office, was the next witness. She declared that no one was in the office and that she left, convinced by that belief that the place was deserted for the day.

Harry Scott, Pinkerton detective, was next called. He was followed by City Detective B. B. Hazelett, and by J. M. Gantt, both of whom are believed to have testified as to Frank's demeanor on the afternoon before the tragedy was discovered. Gantt is one of the men who was arrested on suspicion shortly after the crime, but was cleared and released within a short time.

Gheesling on Stand.

William H. Gheesling, member of the firm of P. J. Bloomfield and company, the undertakers who embalmed the body of the Phagan girl, was the next and final witness.

A small crowd of curious people hung about the Thrower building on the final day of the hearing. The general impression was that a decision would be reached during the day and mild excitement prevailed.

In the curious throng was a prototype of the woman who tried to pose as a newspaper reporter at the Orme case. The make-believe newspaper man on this occasion was a young fellow with thick eye-glasses. His active efforts in trying to intercept a conversation between Detective Rosser and Deputy Newton Garner led to his exit from the building half an hour before the true bill was returned.

Newnan Wins Two.

Newnan, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Newnan tied Gadsden for first place today by taking both ends of a doubleheader, 5 to 4 and 7 to 4. The first game was marked by the uphill fight of the locals, who came from behind, winning out in the eighth. Cather Chase, of Newnan, was hit on the head in the fourth inning, necessitating his retiring from the first game.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Newnan	5	7	3
Gadsden	4	9	3

Batteries—Wood, Chase and Craven; Sigmond and Jones.

The second game was featured by the heavy hitting of the locals who again came from behind, winning with ease. Bennett, of Newnan, had a perfect average, slamming a triple, a double, a single and a sacrifice hit, out of four times up. Pitcher Collins contributed materially to winning his own game by two timely doubles, scoring four runs.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Newnan	7	12	2
Gadsden	4	7	3

Batteries—Collins and Chase; Waters and Jords.

ALASKAN VOLCANOES ARE SHOWING ACTIVITY

Seattle, Wash., May 24.—Advices from Alaska say that four of the great volcanoes of the Alaska peninsula and the Aleutian archipelago are smoking. They are Ketmai, which broke into violent eruption June 6 last after slumbering for generations; Pawloff, which always sends up a column, Shishaldin, which has awakened after a sleep of two years and Illamna.

Others Will Be Involved In New Bribery Charges Intimates Chief Lanford

The probability of bribery charges to be made against others as well as Colonel Felder was intimated last night by Chief Lanford to a Constitution reporter.

Documentary evidence involving one or more men is rumored to be in Lanford's possession. Also, his dictagraph is said to have reported secret conferences relating to the use of bribe money in the Mary Phagan case.

This new phase of the bribery charges is said to pertain only to the bribing of witnesses in the Phagan investigation. Rumors to this effect have been coming to police headquarters for several days. Corroboration of the reports came recently from Mrs. Minna Famby, of 400 Piedmont avenue, a witness in the case.

Offered Money to Leave City.

Mrs. Famby declared to a reporter for The Constitution that she had received six offers of large sums of money to leave the city until the Mary Phagan trial has been finished. It is said that she has made an affidavit setting forth the men who approached her, and that the document is in the hands of Chief Lanford.

Mrs. Famby declared to a Constitution reporter that he would not reveal his new bribery evidence until the trial. He would not state the nature of affidavits said to be in his hands.

Solicitor Dorsey has been apprised by Harry Scott of the position of the Pinkerton agency in the Phagan investigation. The solicitor said last night that Scott had told him that, primarily, the detective organization was in the employ of Frank's defense, in that it was paid by the National Pencil company, and that reports of his progress were turned over to the suspect's counsel.

Saying that he was retained purely to learn the truth of the murder, the solicitor avers Scott told him that the evidence he had so far unearthed pointed to Frank, and that he was directing his investigation to that end. Scott's opinion, as it is said to have been expressed before the grand jury Saturday, was that the imprisoned superintendent was guilty.

Frank Talks Personally.

The following is the affidavit signed by James Connally, the negro sweeper who confessed to having written the murder notes at Frank's dictation:

"On Friday evening before the holiday, about four minutes to 1 o'clock, Mr. Frank came up the aisle and asked me to come to his office. That was the aisle on the fourth floor, where I was working, and when I went down to the office, he asked me could I write, and I told him yes. I could write a little bit, and he gave me a scratch pad and told me to put on there, dear mother, a long, tall black negro did this by himself, and he told me to write two or three times on there. I wrote it on a white scratch pad, single ruled.

"He went to his desk and pulled out another scratch pad, a brown-looking scratch pad, and looked at my writing and wrote on that himself, but when I went to his office he asked me if I wanted a cigarette, and I told him yes, but they didn't allow any smoking in the factory, and he pulled out a box of cigarettes that cost 10 cents a box, and in said box he had $2.50 in paper dollars and two quarters, and I taken one of the cigarettes and handed him the box back, and he told me it was all right. I could keep the box, and I told him he had some money in the box, and he said that was all right. I was welcome to that, for I was a good working negro around there, and then he asked me where was Gordon Bailey (Snowball, they call him), and I told him he was in the elevator, and he asked me if I knew the night watchman, and I told him no sir, I didn't know him, and he asked me if I ever saw him in the basement, and I told him no sir, I never did see him down there, but he could ask the firemen and maybe he could tell him more about that than I could; and then Mr. Frank was laughing and jollying and going on in the office, and I asked him not to take not any money for that watch man I owed, for I didn't have any to spare, and he told me he wouldn't, but he would go to getting some money a little bit later.

"He told me he had some wealthy people in Brooklyn, and then he held his head up and looked out of the corner of his eyes and said: 'Why should I hang?' and that's all I remember him of saying to me. When I asked him not to take not any more for the watch, he said, you ought not to buy any watch, for that wife of mine wants me to buy her an automobile, but he wouldn't do it; I never did see his wife. On Tuesday morning after the holiday on Saturday, that Mr. Frank got in jail, he come up the aisle where I was sweeping and held his head over to me and whispered me to be a good boy and that was all he said."

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON WANDERS ABOUT HOUSE

Former Czar Says There Are "Green Seats" in the Halls He Once Dominated.

Washington, May 24.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon returned today and visited the hall where once he was mighty in council. He wandered about the empty corridors of the house side of the capitol, encountered John Dwight, a former crony of the days when "Uncle Joe" was generally designated "the czar of the house," and had luncheon with him in the house restaurant.

"Have you seen the new hall of the house?" the former speaker was asked.

The famous Cannon smile, which once illuminated every comment of the ex-speaker, failed to appear.

"No, I haven't seen it, and I am not going to," was the reply.

"I understand they have torn out the old desks and put in a lot of green seats, but I don't care. I don't belong. I'm on the outside."

Uncle Joe said he did not even intend to look at the marble bust of himself which occupies a place of honor in the speaker's lobby.

"I'm out," he said, "and I've got no business around there."

The former speaker said that he was in Washington simply on a personal errand.

RAILWAY MEN DEMAND INCREASE IN WAGES

Roanoke, Va., May 24.—A committee representing the International Brotherhood, Maintenance of Way Employees, on the Norfolk and Western system, have signed an agreement to arbitrate the question at issue for a general increase in wages, pigiron basis, 12 per cent. These conferences have been in progress the past two weeks and heretofore the negotiations have been deadlocked, the railway company flatly declining to grant the increase asked for at this time.

A proposal to arbitrate was submitted by General Manager Needles today, and he readily agreed to the proposition, appointing G. W. Merrill, assistant general manager, as arbitrator. Wier would pay him $1,000 in cash and resign from the army. The affidavit said Wier refused the offer. The hearing adjourned until June 5 to secure attendance of Wyoming witnesses, including Captain Cecil.

ATLANTA GIRL IN WELLESLEY PLAY

Miss Tracy L'Engle Acts Part in "Importance of Being Earnest" at Eastern College.

Boston, Mass., May 24.—(Special.)—Miss K. Tracy L'Engle, of 164 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, took one of the leading male roles tonight at Wellesley college in a production of "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Miss L'Engle played the part of "Ernest," and was liberally applauded by the audience of Wellesley girls.

The play was given in the famous Old College Barn.

OFFICER AND HIS WIFE ACCUSED OF STEALING

Houston, Texas, May 24.—Testimony was introduced today at a hearing of charges that Lieutenant Joseph L. Wier, U. S. A., and his wife, Mrs. Mildred Wier, stole dresses worth $500 from the wife of Captain J. S. Cecil, U. S. A., at Fort Mackenzie, Wyoming, about a year ago. The testimony was taken by United States Commissioner H. Jackson in an effort to determine whether there are grounds for returning Lieutenant and Mrs. Wier to Wyoming for trial.

An affidavit by Lieutenant Wier was read declaring that Captain Cecil had offered to end the entire matter if Wier would pay him $1,000 in cash and resign from the army. The affidavit said Wier refused the offer. The hearing adjourned until June 5 to secure attendance of Wyoming witnesses, including Captain Cecil.

FELDER'S CHARGES OF GRAFT ROTTEN

Lanford Declares No Printable Words Can Be Found to Describe Lawyer's Attack.

"As for Tom Felder's charges of graft in the police or detective departments," said Chief Lanford last night, "they are as rotten as we have shown his character to be. There is no printable words that might be used to describe them. Atlanta knows they are untrue, unfounded and are but the explosions of a distorted brain—a brain deformed by years of treachery, and they call him 'Colonel' Felder.

"The direct cause of his charges of corruption toward the detective department," the accused official continued. "There's a reason. The detective department is responsible for trapping him into the dictagraph conspiracy. The police department has done but little damage to him and it is now hitting up in his true colors. He should not worry over uniformed men. It's the detective department that has prodded him.

Police Have Special Squad.

"To substantiate who is acquainted with departmental operations, it is a known fact that the detectives have nothing whatever to do with the enforcement of laws pertaining to disorderly houses. The sleuths could not afford to take a chance in such cases. The police have a special squad to attend to that duty. Felder says he has seen a graft list of the detective department, in which are contained the names of allowed protection of the detective department.

"How absurd this all is. I gave him credit for a big leg at least brains enough to know something of the workings of the police. The detectives have not the slightest opportunity for graft from disorderly houses in case such a condition was in existence. This alone is sufficient to prove that his charges are the most ridiculous.

"In regard to the Coleman affidavit, which, I understand, he accuses was extorted from Mr. and Mrs. Coleman under our threat to cease working on the Phagan case and leave their daughter's murder unavenged, all I can say is that this is one of the silliest charges of his entire ridiculous card.

"The Colemans are sensible, honest folk, and they have brains enough to realize that they would not have to depend upon the detective alone for the solution of their child's slaughter. In the first place, I never knew of any affidavit's existence until it was brought to my office by representatives of the Coleman family. I did not know that it was being made. It was signed voluntarily by Mr. and Mrs. Coleman.

Making Self Laughing Stock.

"Felder is making himself a laughing stock of the community by charging the detectives with defending Frank by alleged destruction of evidence and declaring we are trying to cover up evidence damaging to his case. No one better than the reporters of the city know that we have worked successfully in investigating this crime and that we have plenty of evidence—enough to convict. If he will convincingly show one single incident where relating his accusation I will eat his hat.

"No one that knows him would take Tom Felder's charges seriously. They are laughable, instead of dangerous. They amuse me. The realization that I have done a good job in obtaining this atrocious infamy evidence against him, mingled with the humor of his charges, give me the combined sensation of elation and amusement. It is a treat, indeed."

SAYS SLAUGHTER HOUSE CONDITIONS VERY BAD

Annual Report to Governor Is Made by Commissioner of Agriculture Connor.

That the sanitary condition of slaughter houses in the state is bad and that in many cases the public is being fed on meat not fit for human consumption, is declared by Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Conner in his annual report to the governor, which was sent to the printer yesterday.

Animals, afflicted with communicable diseases, are often slaughtered and sold without any restriction, it is charged, and the sanitary condition of fully 70 per cent of the slaughter houses is not what it should be. Rigid supervision by the state is recommended.

The commissioner suggests that there should be a trained man stationed at twelve points in the state to study animal diseases, inspect meat offered for sale and have general supervision of slaughter houses. These men could at the same time inspect dairies and make tests of cattle for tuberculosis. This latter disease, it is said, is still very prevalent in the state, although conditions are improving.

Asks $30,000 Appropriation.

In order that he may be able to appoint the necessary assistants and do the work of inspection as it ought to be done, the commissioner recommends that the next general assembly add to the appropriation for the veterinary section of the department not less than $30,000 annually.

The commissioner reports that this sum can be made from the funds raised by the department of agriculture over and above the fund which is required to be paid to the congressional district high schools and would not diminish in and way the ordinary budget of the state raised from taxation. Together with this appropriation, authority should be given to the veterinarian to appoint inspectors and to place them at various points in the state where their services might be most needed.

Tuberculosis Cattle Imported.

Another serious condition to which the commissioner calls attention is the importation of tuberculous cattle into the state from northern points where the cattle have been condemned as diseased by state authorities.

In this connection the commissioner says:

"Tuberculosis is prevalent to a considerable extent among the dairy cattle of the state. The milk of tuberculous cattle is dangerous to man and the health of our people is in the balance. The state veterinarian has taken this up with the limited means at hand, and while serious opposition was met with at first our people, upon becoming better informed, have seen the advantage and necessity of a thorough cleaning out of tuberculous cattle, and the department receives constant calls now from various parts of the state, urging that competent men be sent to test cattle for tuberculosis."

Hog Cholera Losses.

Attention is called to the serious losses among farmers from hog cholera, and also to the fact that a great deal of worthless serum for the treatment of the disease is being sold. The commissioner believes that the hog cholera situation may be controlled by rigid quarantine enforcement, and also by the use of Dorsett-Miles' anti-hog cholera serum, which the department expects soon to be able to furnish at the cost of 1 cent per cubic centimeter.

It is recommended that serum sold by private individuals should be under the supervision and inspection of the state veterinarian, and that the law be amended so as to cover that question.

The commissioner recommends that the fees for the inspection of gasoline, benzine, naptha and other products of petroleum should be reduced where the inspected articles are used for manufacturing purposes only. He points out that in certain cases the law, as it now stands, is working a great hardship upon manufacturers.

New Laboratory Section.

The action of the last legislature in making an appropriation for the enlargement of the laboratory section of the department is commended. Conclusive proof that the money has been well expended says the commissioner, is furnished by a cursory inspection of the new laboratory in the basement of the capitol. He recommends that the legislature appropriate $7,500 annually from the funds of the department not otherwise expended, for the purpose of carrying on the food and bacteriological laboratory work, and a similar sum for the work of the chemical laboratory.

The commissioner calls attention to the fact that the task of food and drug inspection has grown too heavy for one man, and he suggests that inspector P. A. Methvin be given an assistant at a salary commensurate with his duties. He also recommends that the salary of the state oil inspector be increased from $100 per month to $2,000 per year.

SAYS COMPANION PUT GLASS IN HIS GREENS

Valdosta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Jule Leary, a negro, was arrested near Fargo and brought to Valdosta today charged with attempting to kill companion, Lucius Zeigler, by putting ground glass in his dinner. It is stated that the men have had trouble at various times during the last few months. Recently, Zeigler says that Leary broke up a lot of glass and put in some "greens" he had for dinner, but which he discovered before he had swallowed any of the glass. A warrant charging Leary with attempted murder was sworn out, and Deputy Sheriff Hodges went down and arrested Leary.

THOUSAND CROSSTIES DESTROYED BY FIRE

Valdosta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—More than a thousand crossties belonging to the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad, which were stacked beside the track a mile below Avoca, Fla., were burned yesterday, igniting with a big gap in the Southern Bell long-distance telephone line to Jacksonville. The ties were probably fired by sparks from a passing train. They were of seasoned heart pine and burned fiercely. So intense was the heat that the heavy telephone wires near the track were melted and consumed, six or eight telephone poles going down in the blaze.

GOVERNOR SHUTS DOWN ON PARDON APPLICANTS

Daily Presentation of Cases Is Seriously Interfering With the State's Business.

So much of his time is taken up by parties interested in securing executive clemency for criminals that Governor Brown found it necessary yesterday to give out a statement calling attention to the fact that he would, in no instance, consider pardon applications except on the last Thursday and Friday of each month.

Owing to the fact, however, that the legislature will be in session on the last Thursday and Friday in June, the governor will hear clemency cases on June 19 and 20. On no other days in June will I act aside the business of law-abiding citizens for the purpose of considering applications for executive clemency to persons convicted of violating the laws."

GIVEN PART OF FLAG SHE MADE WHEN GIRL BEFORE CIVIL WAR

Valdosta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. C. C. Varnedoe, of this city, has just received from a friend in Savannah a and old piece of the flag which the Liberty Independent Troops fought under during the civil war from 1863 to the end of the struggle. Mrs. Varnedoe was one of the committee of young ladies who made and presented the flag to the famous company, and she prizes dearly the remnant of the silken insignia which she has just received, not alone because of their historical value, but also for the tender memories awakened of the trip of the young ladies made to South Carolina to present the flag.

In accepting the flag, the members of the troop swore to protect it with their lives, which promises was sacredly kept. When the bridge over the river at Columbia, S. C., was burned, John Byrd, one of seven brothers, of Athens, Ga., and one of the bravest members of the troop, wrapped the flag about his body and managed to make his way through the fire. Later he folded the flag under his shirt bosom and succeeded in escaping into the confederate lines with it. After the war various members of the company took portions of the flag, receiving out the stars on it, and have saved the pieces as sacred heirlooms.

Raymond Carr, formerly of Tallahassee, Fla., preserved the star and piece of flag which has been presented to Mrs. Varnedoe, together with a history of the scenes through which the flag passed. It is just fifty years ago that Mrs. Varnedoe, as a young girl, went with the committee to South Carolina to present the flag to the troop.

NEGRO MAKES GET-AWAY AFTER KILLING NEGRESS

Perry, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—On Tuesday morning, May 20, Tom Desern, a negro, living on C. W. Bennard's farm near Grovania, shot and killed Rosie Richardson, a negro woman. Four bullets struck her, and one stray bullet struck her mother. The shooting occurred in a field. The shooting was done because the woman refused to leave the county and live with the man.

Sheriff Winn was notified, and Deputy Sheriff Watson and Warren M. Smith went at once to the scene, where they were joined by C. C. Morgan and J. A. Parker, who pursued the negro with a pack of hounds to within a short distance of Unadilla, when it began raining and the dogs lost the trail. The deputy sheriff and Warren Smith remained in the neighborhood of where the trail was lost all night, returning to town about 4 o'clock Monday morning. The negro has not yet been caught.

HUNTSMAN OF WAYCROSS CATCHES 19 ALLIGATORS

Waycross, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Alligators have displaced rattlesnakes now so far as Lewis Anthony's hunting is concerned. Yesterday he caught alive nineteen alligators, some of them husky fellows, and is fixed to catch twice as many next week, when he will resume his hunting for 'gators in the Okefenokee swamp. He has seventeen of the nineteen on exhibit in Waycross just to show that he really got the critters. "I like for folks to see what I do—so many fellows talk of things they can't show," said Anthony today, talking of his new departure.

Heretofore he has confined himself almost entirely to rattlesnake hunts, but finding that he could get the biggest ever seen in south Georgia. He knows most of the swamp as well as most farmers know their fields, and has decided that he is better to get the 'gators. He has not tackled any much over six or seven years old yet, but he says he may get bolder as his 'gator experience broadens.

YOUNG BOY IS SHOT PLAYING WITH PISTOL

Valdosta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The 6-year-old son of S. N. Atkins, of Mineola, in this county, was shot through the left shoulder and narrowly escaped being instantly killed yesterday while playing with a pistol. Assisted by a companion of about the same age, the child piled boxes on top of each other which he climbed and secured the pistol from the shelf on which it was kept. The ball from the revolver passed entirely through the boy's shoulder. He was brought to this city for medical attention. His physician says the wound is not necessarily dangerous, though the muscles of the shoulder my be permanently affected. A few inches lower and the ball would have passed through the boy's heart.

CROP OF CANTALOUPES IS IN FINE CONDITION

Thomasville, Ga., May 24.—(Special.) In the section around Camilla which is said to produce about half of the cantaloupes grown in the state the crop is reported as looking in fine condition and the vines putting on fruit rapidly. There are more, than 500 acres planted in "canta" in the territory surrounding Camilla and a lot of money has been put in this crop. The growers are naturally watching the crop closely and are beginning to figure upon what their returns will be if it turns out as they hope. The largest growers in that section are the Camilla Melon company, G. L. Wade, T. B. and J. T. Perry, J. L. and E. W. Stripling and Jones Brothers. A number of the growers are already exhibiting cantaloupes of good size, and some are counting upon being able to begin shipments by the 12th or 15th of June, though carload lots will hardly go forward before the 20th.

POLICEMEN IN LEAGUE WITH THE CRIMINALS

San Francisco, May 24.—A well-organized "system," embracing in its scope all branches of the local police department, has existed since 1906 and is still in force, operating not only to assist in robbing individuals, but also to prevent the identification of criminals by their victims, according to a statement made today by District Attorney Charles P. Fickert in connection with the trials of eight policemen indicted for assisting in the operations of confidence men.

JACOBS' PHARMACY

We Have Followed a Principle

FOR 29 years this store has followed a principle, to give the best service and to give the best goods at fair prices, with the privilege of returning if unsatisfactory for a refund of money. At times our motives were misunderstood by some, as when we established cut prices to eliminate unreasonably high charges. But we knew that our principle was right and fair to the public, and we have never swerved from it.

Today our business stands stronger than ever before, upon this principle of conscientious service and dealing fairly with our customers. We have followed a principle, and our ten retail stores mark the public's recognition and approval.

What Marks Drug Store Quality

IN prescriptions, medicines and other sickroom needs is where you touch the vital spark and find one drug store better than another.

Jacobs' Pharmacy is first and always a drug store of the highest grade. Our compounders are experienced, graduate pharmacists; our drugs and prescription supplies are pure and fresh, and include all products used in pharmacy, and our ten stores fill more prescriptions than any other ten drug stores in the south. We have all reliable proprietary goods, but no drug or habit-forming preparations. Our rubber goods and sickroom supply departments occupy more floor space than any other entire retail drug store in the state.

We have sundries under competent salespeople, which reduce overhead expenses and lower prices in all departments. But our president and general manager give personal supervision to the prescription and pharmaceutical departments, and our standing as retail druggists is marked by our continuous growth during 29 years.

Our prescription charges are reasonable.

REMAINING DELEGATES IN FAREWELL SERMONS

Presbyterians Speak in Many Pulpits—But Scruples Against Sunday Travel Detain Some.

Atlanta will hear in sermons today the last remaining delegates to the Presbyterian assemblies. While the majority of the 1,500 commissioners who were gathered here from all parts of the country left for their homes immediately upon the close of the assemblies on Thursday and Friday, there were some who were persuaded by friends to remain over, while others who lived a long distance had scruples against Sunday travel and for this reason remained in the city. Some, also, who could not reach their homes before Sunday, left for Chattanooga with the intention of stopping there over Sunday.

Among the prominent men who will speak Sunday are: Dr. G. B. Strickler, of Union Theological seminary, Richmond, Va.; Rev. Griffin W. Bull, of Scranton, Pa.; Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston, of Stamford, Conn.; Rev. Henry Micklen, of Orwell, Ohio.; Dr. W. H. Roberts, of Philadelphia, stated clerk of the northern assembly, and Dr. W. B. Noble, permanent clerk of that assembly.

Former Pastor Gives Sermons.

Dr. Strickler, who will preach at the Central Presbyterian church Sunday morning and at the North Avenue church in the evening, is well known in Atlanta, having formerly been pastor of the Central Presbyterian. He was a leading figure in the southern assembly which just closed, being the only ex-moderator who came as a delegate.

Dr. Roberts, who was one of the most prominent figures at the northern assembly, speaks in the morning at the Harris Street Presbyterian, and in the evening at the Central Presbyterian. Dr. Noble, the permanent clerk, will speak at the First Presbyterian Sunday morning.

The Tabernacle pulpit will be occupied Sunday morning by Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston, one of the best known delegates to the northern assembly. Rev. Henry Micklen will speak at the Harris Street church Sunday evening. Besides these, there will be quite a number of Presbyterian delegates who will speak in various parts of the city, giving the people of Atlanta the fruit of their experience and wisdom, and the world vision they have obtained as a result of their contact with men and affairs over the country.

All Delighted With Atlanta.

"May God bless your city through the coming of this host of men into its gates," was the way that Moderator J. S. Lyons, of the southern assembly, expressed the good wishes of the delegates as they began to scatter to their homes on Thursday evening. This spirit of uplift prevailed generally among the ranks of the men gathered here, and it was observed more than once that the Presbyterian conclave was having a distinct upward influence upon the people of the city.

The hundreds of delegates who left in trainloads or little groups all expressed themselves as heartily delighted at the reception they had received in Atlanta, saying that the city had more than come up to their expectations. It was indeed with a splendid spirit of fellowship that they paid their parting compliments and turned their faces homeward.

"SHALL EPISCOPAL NAME BE CHANGED?" ASKS REV. MR. WING

Rev. John D. Wing, rector Church of the Incarnation, in West End, will deliver an address Sunday morning on the subject, "Shall the Name of the Protestant Episcopal Church Be Changed?"

In announcing his theme, Mr. Wing calls attention to the fact that this is one of the most serious questions facing the Episcopal church today and will be discussed at length at the next general convention of the church in New York, in October.

"This is a burning question in the church at this time," says Mr. Wing. "Some advocating that the name of the church should be changed to 'American Catholic,' others that, at least, the word 'Protestant' should be dropped from our title as being a misnomer in connection with our ideas of the church and in view of the history of the Church of England, the mother of the Episcopal church in this country. This matter will come before the general convention of the church, which meets in the city of New York in October of this year, and the delegates to this convention from the diocese of Atlanta will be elected by the diocesan council, which meets at Emmanuel church, Athens, Ga., on the 28th and 29th of this month."

"WHAT LAW CAN'T DO," SUBJECT OF SERIES

"What the Law Could Not Do" is the general subject of a special series of sermons which Rev. J. M. Skelton, pastor of East Side Tabernacle, will begin on June 1. The sermons will be given every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and will probably attract wide attention. The East Side Tabernacle is located at Faith's crossing, on the East Lake and South Decatur car line, and is in the midst of a thickly populated suburb of Atlanta. The sermon subjects as announced by Rev. Mr. Skelton are:

June 1—"The Law Could Not Make Us Righteous."

June 8—"The Law Could Not Justify Us."

June 15—"The Law Could Not Make Us Heirs of God."

June 22—"The Law Could Not Reconcile Us to God."

June 29—"The Law Could Not Free Us From Death."

July 6—"The Law Could Not Make Our Bodies Incorruptible."

July 13—"The Law Could Not Give Us God for Our Father."

BASEBALL IS INSPIRING SAYS BAPTIST MINISTER

Rev. Caleb A. Ridley, pastor of Central Baptist church, announces that he will speak Sunday night on "Play Ball." He says America's greatest game is full of illustrations that are inspiring and helpful to the Christian worker.

A great contest is on among the Sunday school forces of the congregation, and Dr. Ridley says his message will be timely.

What Matters Thy Trade When God Calls to Service!

Two thousand years have not changed one bit the universal truth of this picture of human life. James and John, "fisherman by the sea," are here seen dropping their nets to follow the call of Jesus and become "fishers of men." How often today does that same call of God sound through men's souls? Many answer that call, even as James and John, and dropping their tools they step boldly forth into the water to reach the shore where their Master stands. Others hesitate, and instead of answering when the call sounds forth they wait until the opportunity has passed. "Too late!" has been the mournful cry of many a yearning soul that would not answer the call when it came. Is there not a lesson for every human life in this picture of James and John answering the call to service? This is the seventh of a series of pictures The Constitution is publishing, depicting some forceful thought from the ministry of Jesus. If these pictures can just make some hesitating minds THINK what lessons lie within, the series shall not have been in vain.

Seven Minute Sermon
On the Golden Text

He that loveth his brother abideth in the light.—I John, 2:10.

LOVE AND LIGHT.

I. Light Stands for Vision—The Bible is written in the language of the east and in that language metaphors are plentiful. When, therefore, we hear that he that loveth his brother abideth in the light, he may mean, in the last analysis, that he lives in the light of God. One of the ideas in connection with this expression is that a man whose heart is dominated by love has spiritual vision. Like the animal, he can see the things which come within the purview of his physical sight, but, unlike them, he can also see by the aid of a spiritual imagination into the future. He can forecast future events, he can see into motives, he can interpret actions. He can read character, and above all he can see God. With his inner eyes he always beholds the face of the heavenly Father, and he is fully conscious that he lives and moves and has his being in the divine. He realizes, to the full, that his body is the temple of the Holy Ghost. He also sees with his inward eyes the spirit world; he beholds the vast throng of glorified spirits which are before the throne of God and serve Him day and night. The Bible states that "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him and delivereth them," and the man of God, through his clarified vision of love, sees this angel.

II. Light Also Stands for Blessedness and Contentment—No man who loves his brother can be anything but blessed, and he is also generally very happy; nor can one with love in his heart be discontented. Love lightens up the face of God, and with glorious hope interprets providence. Love makes the heart glad and invests life with a fascinating charm. Love is of the essence of gladness and joy, and if we could see the spiritual atmosphere around the head of a man whose heart is filled with love, we should behold him encircled with a cloud of glory, and light, in hues more beautiful than the colors of the rainbow. Hatred is the antonym of love, and always stands for darkness. Men who hate are unhappy; there is a curse in their hearts and lives; they walk in the darkness of the night; they grope their way in doubt and in bitterness of soul. The man with love in his heart walks in the light with his head erect, his soul is filled with sweetness and his heart sings for joy.

III. Love Creates the Elements Which Produce Light—Love lightens up the pathway of others, it makes the crooked places straight, it levels down the hills and fills up the valleys that men may walk in a plain path. It builds bridges which take people across the river from the land of famine to the place of plenty. Doing good to others, helping them bear their burdens, "rejoicing with those that rejoice, and weeping with those that weep," tends to throw light upon the pathway of those whom love thus helps. Love puts us in harmony with God, and that makes the pathway of life luminous; love clears our judgment and enables us to see things right. Hatred blinds the eyes of human beings, while love opens them. Hatred makes life a valley of bones, a graveyard, a place of weeping; it turns such light as there is into darkness, while love, on the contrary, makes life a garden of roses, a place of beauty, a delightsome land in which to live. Love turns this vale of tears into laughter, and transforms its sickness into health. There is nothing at all of the nature of darkness in love. It has no selfish purposes to serve, so that nothing need be hidden or covered up. Its motives are transparent; its actions glisten as the light and shine as the sun. Men who love walk in the light themselves and in turn create an atmosphere of light which lightens up the pathway of others.

IV. Let Us Then Love Our Brother—In this what divine love is the gift of God, but it can be had without money and without price. It is just as much at the command of every man as if he could create it himself out of his own will power. It is as free as the air, as accessible as the light, and as plentiful as the waters of the fathomless deep. The steps to take to have in our hearts the perfect love which casts out fear, and enables us to love our brothers are, first, to get right with God, coming into contact with Him through the influence of Jesus Christ our Savior; our hearts are cleansed from hatred and from all sin and its defilement. We then become new creatures—creatures of light and love, creatures of the day, and not of the night. We become fellow citizens with the saints of God; our souls are filled with the love of God, so that we love Him with all our hearts, and our neighbors as we love ourselves. We then commence to practice our love upon our fellow men, we cause our hearts to go out to them, we think kindly of them, we pray for them, we help them when they are in need, we defend them when they are attacked, when they fall we pick them up, and when they stand erect and walk in the light of God we help to establish them in faith.

Notices for this column should reach The Constitution office by Friday afternoon in order to be published. Whenever possible, the sermon topics of the ministers should be given with the notices.

NEGROES TO GIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Fiftieth Anniversary of Proclamation of Emancipation Will Be Celebrated.

The fourth annual music festival of the Atlanta Colored Music Festival association will be held at the Auditorium July 3 and 4. The festival will be in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the emancipation of the colored race. The first night will be devoted to a pageant of the progress made by the race since its emancipation. The pageant presented last year will be improved upon in many respects. The various scenes in the progress of the race will be illustrated in picture and song.

The festival will be known as "The Grand Jubilee Music Festival." A chorus of two hundred voices under the direction of Prof. J. W. Work, of Nashville, Tenn., will render negro folk songs and classical selections. The new Fisk Jubilee Singers, a mixed quartet, equted to be the best ever sent out, will be heard both nights. Patti Brown, the famous soprano singer of Chicago, who has been heard in every one of the music festivals of this association, has been secured again this year, and will be heard both evenings. Prof. Roland W. Hayes, of Boston, the leading tenor of the race, will sing at the grand concert on the closing night of the festival.

Rev. H. H. Proctor, secretary of the Festival association, is confident that the best talent yet brought to the city by the colored race will be heard on this occasion. White as well as colored people will be welcomed to the festival. The tickets will be at a popular rate, and will be put on sale Monday, June 30.

NEW DINERS DE LUXE ON SEABOARD AIR LINE

For Safety and Elegance Cars Said to Excel Previous Designs of Pullmans.

A dining car wholly unlike any hotel on wheels the south has ever seen passed through Atlanta Friday over the Seaboard Air Line, going east. Made of solid steel entirely, except the flooring, which is of marble cubes, and some small panelling in rosewood, the new car is practically one of the safest that could be constructed. Apart from the safety its steel construction affords, it carries with it also a safety from germs.

The new dininf car, one of twelve ordered for the Seaboard Air Line, was constructed by the Pullmans, under the personal directions of S. Davies Warfield.

Seventy-three feet long are the new dining cars just placed in commission, nearly 15 feet longer than the ordinary dining cars. The new car can accommodate thirty-six people at one time, one row of tables taking care of four each, while the other row seats two. Neither table nor chair is stationary. A stream of water may be turned on in a second for either sanitary purposes or fire. Between service on the new Seaboard Air Line diner every piece of furniture except the range and the storage can be lifted out of place so that water may flood the tile flooring until the car is cleansed.

A gathering of Atlanta railroad men greeted the new car upon its arrival at the old carshed. Hon. Robert F. Maddox, director of the S. A. L., was among those who gave the new car an inspection during its short stop in Atlanta, and he expressed himself as more than pleased with the added comfort the Seaboard Air Line is striving to give the traveling public.

As the Seaboard train rolled out of the carshed for the east, Fred Geissler, assistant general passenger agent of that railway, hopped aboard, saying:

"I'll sure get a good eat or two on this car before I reach the end of my trip."

NEW FREIGHT ROUTES TO WESTERN POINTS

Frisco and Central Re-Establish Service From Seaboard via Ocean Steamship Co.

For several years previous to the Illinois Central securing control of the Ocean Steamship company, and Central of Georgia Railway company, the last two lines in connection with the Frisco lines at Birmingham were handling steamer merchandise freight on a schedule of five days from New York to Kansas City, and 7 days from New York to Denver, and Colorado points, and a schedule of 7 days on carload and merchandise freight from New York-New England Atlantic seaboard territory. This arrangement was cancelled by the Central of Georgia railway shortly after its acquisition by the Illinois Central, and the routing of this heavy tonnage diverted to the Illinois Central at Birmingham, care Chicago & Alton at St. Louis, care Union Pacific at Kansas City, but as the latter route could not hold up the fast time schedules of the Central to Birmingham, thence care Frisco lines direct to Kansas City, the old arrangement has been again established, and the Frisco lines have arranged to shorten their schedules somewhat between Birmingham and Kansas City with a view of making and maintaining a schedule of 65 hours, the distance being 735 miles.

During the time the Ocean Steamship company and Central of Georgia railway were handling their movement via the Illinois Central at Birmingham the Frisco lines have been working its Atlantic seaboard freight to the west via the Old Dominion Steamship company, Portsmouth, Seaboard Air Line to Birmingham, care Frisco lines to Kansas City, thence care Rock Island lines. This latter movement has grown so heavy that it requires from one to three through trains per day from Portsmouth to Kansas City, and the Frisco line's new arrangement with the Central of Georgia will in no way affect its present handling of its heavy business via Old Dominion Steamship and the Seaboard Air Line through Birmingham.

Mr. Charles A. Forrest, commercial agent Frisco lines, Atlanta, has just returned from a meeting of all lines interested at Birmingham, where new schedules and arrangements for getting all of this heavy movement necessary handling was arranged for in detail.

Indiscretions of Diplomats.

(From Leslie's.)

Many British newspapers condemned Secretary of State Bryan's remarks at the St. Patrick's day dinner in Washington, in which he rejoiced at the near approach of home rule for Ireland, and exulted at the downfall of the house of lords, one of them styling his outburst a "blazing indiscretion." Similar conventions have often been broken by men in high place in many governments, including our own. One of Mr. Bryan's predecessors, Daniel Webster, secretary of state under Fillmore, used far harsher language toward Austria than Bryan has done toward the British tories. It was called out by strictures from Baron Hulsemann, Austria's charge d'affaires at Washington, against our government for its attitude of friendliness toward the Hungarians in their rebellion of 1849 against Austria. Webster afterward conceded that his language was coarse and brutal, but said that he employed it because that was a good time to let the eagle scream.

Constantine Catacazy, the Russian minister at Washington, mortally offended President Grant because of his personal abuse of many high officials here, and because of his interference in the relations of our government with other countries. Grant protested against this conduct, and Alexander II. removed Catacazy, and replaced him by an official who was personally agreeable to president and country. This episode took place at a particularly inopportune time, in 1871, The Grand Duke Alexis, brother of the czar, was in the United States on a tour at the time, and he received a memorable welcome at the white house and from many of the public officers and private citizens. The Catacazy incident, however, caused no breach in the relations of cordiality between the two countries.

When Lionel S. Sackville-West, the British minister at Washington, fell into the trap prepared for him by the bogus Murchison, a pretended British subject, at the most exciting portion of the Cleveland-Harrison campaign of 1888, and said that a democratic victory would be more pleasing to England than would a republican triumph, he caused anger and consternation among the democratic leaders. The letter was immediately published in all the republican newspapers of the country, and probably turned a few votes from Cleveland to Harrison, for it appeared to give some point to the republican taunt that the democratic was a "British party." That was the year in which Cleveland was beaten. The luckless minister quickly received his passport, and the country knew him no more.

Some indiscreet utterances by the Spanish minister at Washington, Enrique Dupuy de Lome, against the American government, contained in a letter which was made public a few weeks before the war of 1898, helped to intensify the tension between the two countries, and led to his recall by Madrid. In the whirl of events which the war brought, the unfortunate minister was forgotten here, but his blunder was remembered at home, and closed his diplomatic career.

BEAVERS COME TO ATLANTA NEXT YEAR

Convention of Order Secured for This City—Mundy and McMichael Chosen Officials.

Atlanta will get the 1914 meeting of the supreme dam of Beavers, according to the delegates who returned Saturday from the meeting of the supreme dam, held in Birmingham, May 22-24, where representatives from the leading cities of the south attended the convocation of the southern order, which proved the most successful of the past nine years.

Two Atlantans were chosen as officials. Tey were W. C. Hundy, supreme counsel, and J. R. McMichael, supreme trustee. The other officers selected were Judge John Plaza, of Vicksburg, supreme president; Sam E. Jones, of Chattanooga, supreme vice president; Richard B. Howard, of Vicksburg, supreme secretary, and H. W. Saxon, of Memphis, supreme treasurer.

Reports of the retiring officials showed the Beavers from all sections to be in a flourishing condition and all members of the order are proud of the reports shown.

The Atlantans report a royal entertainment on the part of the Birmingham dam. They were taken to theater parties, given automobile rides around the city and tendered an elaborate banquet.

GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE, HE LAUGHED AT JUDGE

Paducah, Ky., May 24—Rushed to Paducah early today to escape mob violence, Richard Shelby, convicted yesterday at Clinton, Ky., of the murder of John Ritchie, was taken to the Eddyville penitentiary this afternoon to serve a life sentence.

Shelby laughed in the face of the judge pronouncing sentence and a brother of the murdered man attempted to shoot down the prisoner while he stood at the bar. He was prevented but a mob in sympathy with him quickly formed and officers seized an automobile and brought the prisoner to Paducah to prevent a lynching.

COTTON BULLS PURSUED BY THE GOVERNMENT

Reindictment of Hayne, Brown, Scales and Thompson to Be Sought.

New York, May 24.—The department of justice has decided to seek the reindictment of Frank Hayne and William P. Brown, of New Orleans; Eugene Scales, of Texas, and Colonel Robert M. Thompson, of New York, on the charge that they conspired to corner the cotton crop of 1909.

This was learned today when subpoenas were issued by United States District Attorney Marshall for the appearance next week before the federal grand jury of the witnesses upon whose testimony the indictment now standing against them was found.

The document contains flaws, it is understood, which the government fears might stand in the way of conviction. It charged that, with James A. Patten, of Chicago, the defendants conspired to create a bull pool with the intention of artificially raising the price of cotton in order to obtain a profit of $10,000,000.

Patten pleaded guilty last February to the sixth count of the indictment, known as the "contract count," which alleged that the defendants entered into contracts to buy up all the raw cotton produced in 1909 and to hold out of the market until November, 1910. He was fined $4,000 and under an agreement between his counsel and the department of justice the other counts in the indictment were nolled.

Patten announced in entering his plea that he was "not conscious of any moral turpitude."

Messrs. Hayne, Brown and Scales professed to be indignant at his action, and said that they would fight the case to the end. Colonel Thompson recently sailed for Europe.

All five defendants originally pleaded not guilty, and, with the exception of Colonel Thompson, demurred to the indictment. The demurrer was defeated in the United States supreme court.

HATFIELD IS PRAISED BY DEBS AND BERGER

Charleston, W. Va., May 24.—Eugene V. Debs, socialist leader, formerly Congressman Victor Berger and Adolph Germer, of Illinois, accompanied John Moore, a labor leader, representing Governor Hatfield and Paul J. Paulson, member of the international board of the United Mine Workers, into the Paint and Cabin creek coal fields today.

Mr. Berger, in a statement, said:

"I have an entirely different impression to the one I previously had of West Virginia's executive, and his attitude to the miners."

Mr. Debs told the governor:

"You have been placed in a false light. I have said some harsh things of you in print, but now I will correct them."

Much data and information was laid before the leaders by the governor.

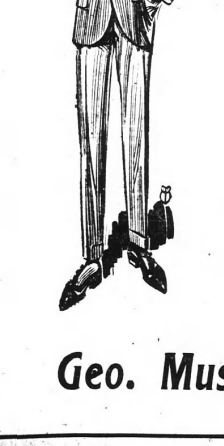
Muse Blue at $25.00 Strong for Popularity

Favored by the majority is the password of acceptance that settles the question of popularity. Blue wins in the call for color. The price that prevails in the popular vote is $25. Hence the suit of the color and the price man has chosen to popularize cannot fail to be strong.



'Tis nothing short of forceful when Muse quality—that of absolute goodness—supports it. Our assortment of styles and models is far greater than at any previous season, with every superior point for increased favor.

'Tis the most pleasing shade of blue; a decidedly commendable quality of worsted cheviot; made in both 2 and 3-button models and Norfolks. And every bit of care possible has been put into the make and the finish, which is the highest insurance that these beautiful blue suits will retain their shape to the last.

The peer of these suits at this price is hardly possible.

MISS ANNA STONE.

All of the seriously injured are residents of Los Angeles and vicinity.

How Tragedy Occurred.

The dead, many of whom were still unidentified tonight, were laid in the national guard armory, while the injured were hurried to various hospitals in this city and Los Angeles.

The accident occurred a few minutes before 12 o'clock. The Empire day parade, the principal feature of the celebration in honor of the late Queen Victoria's birth anniversary, had just ended and the partielpants, with thousands of other visitors, were crowding up the steps of the pier and surging toward the auditorium when the pier floor sagged. An instant later the supports gave way and the crack and groan of breaking timbers mingled with the shrieks and cries of the victims, as all went down into a mass of broken wood and writhing human forms on the sand.

Virtually the entire landing of the pier was wrecked and a portion of the auditorium floor fell.

The cause of the accident was the overburdening of the pier. This, according to an official statement tonight, was due to the delay in unlocking the doors. Had the doors been unlocked at the proper time, it was asserted, the crowd would have got into the auditorium, instead of massing at the doors, where the weight overwhelmed the pier supports.

Scottish bagpipers had just entered the portal of the auditorium and still were marking time when the timbers were sundered.

On Top of Dead and Dying.

When the auditorium front fell, those near the doors tried to get out of the pier and went down on top of the scores who already lay hurt or dying on the sand.

Mayor Hatch, of Long Beach, who was to have been one of the principal speakers at the celebration, was in the midst of the throng on the pier and at first was reported to be among the dead or injured. He escaped unhurt, however, and helped direct the work of rescue.

In addition to the thousands gathered in the pier and in approaches the strand was thronged by a crowd of probably 25,000 persons. There was only little warning. A resounding crack alarmed them and panic spread from end to end of the pier, while women began to shriek. Then occurred a desperate rush for the stairways, as the flooring gave way and the victims slid into the gaping hole as into a huge funnel.

Soon the huge pile of wreckage marking the spot where were the dead of the auditorium was surrounded by a dense throng, which overwhelmed the comparatively few policemen on the strand, and for some time rendered futile every effort at rescue.

The police could not get through the crowd. An appeal was sent to Los Angeles, 24 miles away, for more police. These came in automobiles, and after helping to drive back the thousands of intensely curious and overwrought people, they assisted in succoring the injured and removing the bodies.

The tide was out when the crash occurred, else the collapse would have thrown hundreds of people into the sea, and many drownings doubtless would have been added to the list of fatalities.

Mostly Women and Children.

The crowd massed about the auditorium doors was composed mostly of women and children, who had gathered there before the Empire day parade ended. When the section about the doors sunk, they went in with it, and a dozen policemen who had been vainly striving to hold the throng in check, went with them. Many who were not standing on the section which collapsed were pushed into the vortex, and those who escaped crowded panic-stricken toward the outer rail of the pier, starting a wild scramble for safety.

Those who fell into the hole last were able to scramble over the entangled bodies to the broken ends of the floor, so deep was it massed with struggling bodies. Fallen timbers and flooring were jammed among the limbs of those caught in the trap, and ropes were required to pull back the jagged edges of the sunken flooring, and broken joists before the dead and injured could be taken out. It was an hour before the yawning hole could be emptied of its mass of humanity, the dead separated from the injured and the dying extricated from broken timbers.

In Rows on the Beach.

Dead and seriously injured alike were laid in rows on the beach, while scores who had sustained less serious injuries wandered dazedly about seeking missing relatives or friends. A number of those taken to hospitals were found unscathed, but suffering from nervous shock. Many of the women and men collapsed on the pier when the search for missing ones ended at the long row of dead and injured. The Long Beach council held an executive session late today, and it was announced by Mayor Hatch at its conclusion that the municipal government was assuming all expense, paying the funeral costs for the dead and supplying funds.

The auditorium, like the pier upon which it was built ten years ago, is owned by the city.

INDIAN MONEY BILL ATTACKED BY LANE

Washington, May 24.—Senator Lane made another attack upon the Indian appropriation bill today when it was taken up by the senate committee. He charged that a man—whom he did not name—already selected for a place on a commission to make a roll of Chippewa Indians in Minnesota, was formerly attorney for a lumber company which holds contracts upon which the commission will have to pass.

"The fact that the appropriations covering hundreds of thousands of dollars go masquerading about in the bill under misleading titles, would seem to indicate the necessity for a reasonably careful scrutiny of other of its provisions," said he.

Tribal attorneys for the Choctaw Indians appeared before the committee to ask legislation to annul explicity contracts with individual Indians for the early sale of tribal lands held by the United States, by which J. F. McMurray, of McAlester, Okla., is to receive 10 per cent.

The contracts are estimated to net Mr. McMurray $3,500,000. The tribal attorneys claim there is no work Mr. McMurray can do for the individual Indians, if the government will perform its duty of selling the lands.

HIS BUSINESS FAILING BARBER KILLS FAMILY

Philadelphia, May 24.—Despondent because his barber business was failing, Frederick Schimmel and his wife today ended their lives and that of their 5-year-old daughter, by inhaling gas, according to the police.

EFFECT OF TARIFF ON COTTON MILLS

Those Involved in Industry Feel Their Business May Be Seriously Affected by New Bill.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, May 23.—(Special.)—What the effect of the Underwood rates in the cotton schedule will be upon the south, is the most momentous question affecting this section involved in tariff revision.

Look at the industry to be affected! There are about 1,500 establishments in the south which manufacture cotton, and their combined capital is something like $700,000,000. They employ *400,000 people, whose wages are $100,-*000,000 a year.

Those involved in this industry feel that their business is going to be seriously affected. If their mournful predictions are true, it will cause widespread industrial unrest.

Lewis W. Parker, of Greenville, S. C. recognized as one of the leading authorities on the cotton mill industry in the United States, says the Underwood bill cuts too deeply.

"The manufacture of coarse yarns, which is carried on to a great extent in North Carolina and Georgia, will be interfered with to a great extent," he said, "and the manufacture of finer yarns, and particularly combed yarns, in New England mills, will be almost prohibited."

Changes Suggested.

He suggests certain changes in the duties on yarns and cloths which he has incorporated in amendments which he urges the senate finance committee to adopt for the rates in the house bill. The lowest basic rates on yarns are increased from 5 per cent to 7 1-2 per cent, and a like increase of 2 1-2 points is made on all the other grades of yarns. These rates are limited to carded yarns in gray's and singles. An allowance of 5 points extra is made for the additional process of twisting, doubling and dyeing.

Mr. Parker offers the following explanation of the reasons for these suggested changes:

"In the Underwood bill of 1911, yarns were put at a basis of 5 per cent below the corresponding yarns in the Payne bill, apparently, upon the theory that the manufacture of yarn was a simpler process than the manufacture of cloth, and that, therefore, there should not be applied the same duty as to cloth. It clearly appears, however, from the tariff board report, that owing to conditions abroad, particularly cheaper labor in the preparatory departments, the costs of manufacture were relatively cheaper abroad in relation to American costs, as to yarn than as to plain cloths. The reason of this is the greater use in America of automatic looms, and the willingness of the laborer to tend a greater number of looms than abroad. These being the facts, rates on yarn should be the same with regard to the unit of number, as on cloths.

"In addition to these reasons are the following:

"The foreign spinning is, to a great extent, done on mule spindles, which permit of the use of lower grades of cotton and shorter staple than the ring spindle, almost altogether used in America. The lower grade cotton and the shorter staple cotton, of course, commands a lower price than the better grades and lengths used in America. The shorter staple is produced in India and is a very considerable extent, used by foreign mills, whereas the American mills use, of course, American cotton. The India cotton commands a lower price than American cotton, and if spun, as it can be spun, on mule spindles, will be imported into America in large quantity, if the duties on the low counts are placed as low as in the H. R. 3321.

Payne-Aldrich Bill.

"Whilst the rates on yarn can be reduced from the rates of the Payne-Aldrich bill, the reduction should not be to a point further than a minimum of 7½ per cent, as contrasted with a minimum of 15 per cent in the Payne-Aldrich, which, in effect, is a 50 per cent reduction.

"Section 257 covers all the duties provided for cotton cloth and makes no distinction between plain weaves, fancy weaves and colored goods; likewise, it makes no distinction between carded goods and combed goods.

"The American mills, largely through the use of automatic looms, and to a high increased efficiency of employees, are able on plain cloths to pay very much higher wages than paid abroad, and yet to weave and finish cloth at less cost than the foreign costs. The total costs of conversion, however, do exceed foreign costs, but the excess in spinning and preparatory departments are to some extent overcome by economy in weaving.

"This is true particularly as to the heavier numbers, that is, yarns less than 20s; from 20s to 40s, the American mills are not yet on a competitive basis with foreign mills, but apparently are gradually reducing the advantage of the foreign mills.

"The duties can, therefore, remain, while comparatively slight on plain cloths, up to 40s and in fact, although I think the Underwood bill is lower than it should be even on plain cloths, I have suggested the adoption of the Underwood bill on the plain cloths throughout the schedule.

Bill Fatally Defective.

"The Underwood Bill, however, is fatally defective in not making proper provision for fancy cloths, and cloths from combed and colored yarn. There should, therefore, be provided two additional paragraphs, suggested as paragraph 257-A and 257-B, to cover this need.

"I have suggested the amendment of Section 259 so as to put 'tracing cloth' with a duty of 40 per cent instead of 30 per cent, provided in said section.

"Tracing cloth is largely imported, and it is estimated that 80 per cent of the tracing cloth is so imported. The duties raised on this importation have been heavy amounting to about $180,-000 during 1912. The duty under the Payne-Aldrich bill is partly specific and partly ad valorem, but amounted to the equivalent of 50 per cent ad valorem. As the schedule is already competitive, I see no reason for reducing the duty. There are only two mills in the United States making the cloth, and as yet neither have been able to do so profitably.

"The amendments suggested to section 262, 268 and 269 are for the purpose of making clear that all jacquard work is to be at the rate of 35 per cent ad valorem. There might be some question as to the construction of the house amendment of section 245 with regard to jacquard work."

AMERICANS IN MEXICO FEAR FOR THEIR LIVES

Tampico Consul Wants the Battleship Connecticut to Demand Protection.

Tampico, Mexico, May 24.—Conditions around Tampico on account of the threatened attack of the rebels are regarded as so serious that the American consul has asked officials at Washington to instruct the commander of the battleship Connecticut formally to demand from the Tampico authorities protection for American residents. At the same time the consul is of the opinion that the authorities are powerless to give this protection. Women from nearby districts have concentrated at Tampico for safety. The property and lives of those outside the city are at the mercy of rebels. The consul suggests that the governors of the states of Vera Cruz, Tamaulipas and San Luis Potosi also be asked for protection.

Release of American Demanded.

Nogales, Ariz., May 24.—A demand was made today that Governor Garcia and General Ojeda at Guaymas immediately release W. H. Morrison or show proper cause for the American's detention since the latter part of April. The demand was made by United States Consuar Agent Taylor, of Guaymas, and backed up by a similar request from Admiral Cowan on board the cruiser California, lying in Guaymas harbor.

Morrison was captured by federal officers at Culiacan in automobile for the Southern Pacific Railway company. He was imprisoned at a nearby town and since then his friends have not heard directly from him.

Loan of $100,000 Loan.

Mexico City, May 24.—Participants in the $100,000,000 loan recently sanctioned by the Mexican cabinet are the Banque De Paris Et Des Pays Bas and The Credit Lyonosis, with whom are associated New York and London banks in the capacity of creditors. The New York bankers are said to be Speyer & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and J. Pierpont Morgan, while Coutts banks is alleged to be the English participant.

Washington, May 24.—Indications that the American naval force in Mexican waters is to be maintained for an indefinite time are shown by orders today to the battleships Louisiana, New Hampshire and South Carolina, directing them to relieve the Connecticut, Minnesota and Idaho, which have been at Vera Cruz and Tampico for some time.

BRIDEGROOM JAILED FOR WEDDING TOO SOON

Chicago, May 24.—Carlton Prouty, a wealthy real estate dealer, was fined $500 and sentenced to serve 3 months in jail today after being found guilty of contempt of court for having violated the Illinois law which prohibits the marriage of divorced persons within one year. Judge Tuthill also severely censured Prouty for having married his former stenographer, Miss Marie Buescher four days after his first wife had obtained a decree of divorce. The court also indicated that the marriage of Miss Buescher and Prouty would be annulled.

MASONIC RALLY HELD BY LODGE AT DALLAS

Dallas, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The members of Dallas Lodge, No. 152, A. & F. M., enjoyed an eloquent and instructive address delivered at the Masonic rally this afternoon by E. A. McMan, lecturer of the grand chipter of the state of Georgia. The hall was crowded to its capacity. Mr. McMan took as his subject, "Masonry and What it Stands For."

Following his address Misses Jaynelle Hitchcock and Clio Weaver and Mrs. Ida Conally entertained the audience by recitations. Music was furnished by the Dallas Concert band.

PHONOGRAPH IS USED FOR WILSON MESSAGE

Washington, May 24.—President Wilson sat in his study today and sent a message by phonograph to the American Indians. It will be translated into the various tribal dialects and taken on a 22,000-mile tour of Indian reservations of the country by Dr. Joseph K. Dixon, of Philadelphia, of the Redman Wanamaker expedition. Secretary Lane and Acting Commissioner Abbott also made records.

"I rejoice to foresee the day," said the president in part, quoting Thomas Jefferson, "when the Red men become truly one people with us, enjoying all the rights and privileges we do, and living in peace and plenty."

DOUBLE HANGING HELD IN PUTNAM COUNTY JAIL

Blacks Pay Death Penalty in First Execution in County in Forty Years.

Eatonton, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Friday, at 11:20 o'clock, Jake Crawford and Carter Tompkins were hanged on the scaffold erected in the Putnam county jail for the purpose. Carter Tompkins killed Jerry Price in the spring, and threw the body in Lick creek, where it was found by fishermen. Jake Crawford killed a young negro last year and was sentenced to be hung last September, but the case has been appealed several times.

Both negroes ate a hearty breakfast Friday morning and declared that they were prepared to die. Promptly at 11:20 o'clock, Sheriff Phillips released the trigger which sent woth simultaneously into eternity.

Both showed remarkable courage until the moment of execution, and received scores of visitors and relatives. Crawford protested his innocence and claimed that he had killed in self-defense. Tompkins did not mention his crime.

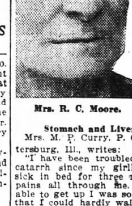
All Friday morning the jail doors were open and guarded by deputies. The crowd was admitted in squads to see the prisoners. This is the first hanging in Putnam county in forty years, and marks the closing chapter of two crimes, one of which—that of Tompkins in the killing of Jerry Price—was the most brutal in the county's history.

Miss Helen McMath, Americus.

Americus, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Miss Helen McMath, aged 20 years and daughter of Robert McMath, died this afternoon. Miss McMath had been in declining health several years and her death therefore was not unexpected. Of social prominence and one of the most attractive and popular girls in Americus, her death is generally deplored. The funeral Sunday afternoon will be largely attended.

PROMINENT SCHOOL TEACHER

Relieved of a Severe Case of Nervousness by Pe-ru-na.



Mrs. R. C. Moore.

Mrs. R. C. Moore, 106 Sharer Street, San Antonio, Texas, who has been prominent as a school teacher, writes:

"It gives me pleasure to testify to the merits of Peruna.

"I suffered from general debility, nervous prostration and a severe cough. Peruna cured me."

Stomach and Liver Trouble.

Mrs. M. P. Curry, P. O. Box 615, Petersburg, Ill., writes:

"I have been troubled with internal catarrh since my girlhood, and was sick in bed for three months. I had pains all through me. When I was able to get up I was so weak and thin that I could hardly walk. What I ate disagreed with me. I had stomach and liver trouble, and my feet and limbs were swollen so I could scarcely drag around.

"I took Peruna and it has done wonders for me. My cure was a surprise to my friends, for they never expected to see me well again. I just took two bottles of Peruna after doctoring for five months and growing worse all the time."

Persons who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

AT THE THEATERS

Blanch Walsh to Be Seen In Resurrection at Grand

Many times it has been said that moving pictures would, in time, supplant the speaking drama in its highest form. Man's greatest language is silence—words are too weak to express the great thoughts of the mind, or the emotions of the heart, too imperfect to describe the yearnings of the secret soul. There are some things within and about us that can find utterance only in the gleam of an eye or the eloquent silence of a sob.

In giving to the public a motion picture portrayal of Blanche Walsh in "Resurection" several things have been accomplished. For the first time we are to see one of our great actresses in the part that won her her first great triumph, as well as the part that was the greatest success of her career. The camera has now perpetuated the greatest work of this great actress for all time. Future generations may see and enjoy what we have seen and enjoyed and at a price considerably under what we paid to see it. Those who did not see Miss Walsh when she played Atlanta in person may now see her on the screen. It is not likely that she will ever be seen again in actual flesh and blood playing in "Resurrection." Some say that her screen portrayal of the character of Katusha is of greater power than the speaking version was. If this is true, the theatergoers of Atlanta are going to enjoy a rare treat, as the stage version of "Resurrection" is one of the most powerful of modern dramas, having in its makeup every element that goes to make a great drama, all of which is bound together with consummate skill by that master-writer, Leo Tolstoi, who, tough born wealthy, lived and suffered the life of a peasant, that he might know and write of the sufferings of these people.

The pictures are to have a three-day run, commencing Thursday, May 29, and it is a safe prediction that record-breaking crowds will attend the Grand during those three days.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

Maggie Cline, the world famous Irish Queen, will be the season's star at the Forsyth, and the principal headliner at the busy Forsyth for the week that commences with matinee on Monday afternoon, and continues all the week with daily matinee and evening performances. In addition to Miss Cline, there are six other numbers, every one of which might be properly classed as headliner in their respective departments. There has never been a greater history of a life in things theatrical than that of Maggie Cline. She is in point of service the oldest artist in the profession, and it was the famous Sara Bernhardt on May 16th on the stage of the Palace theater in New York, who awarded the Irish queen the palm for being the most distinguished of long-standing successful entertainers. Mme. Bernhardt declared Maggie Cline was to vaudeville what Bernhardt is to the dramatic world.

Maggie Cline has a theatrical record that no other living American can claim. Years ago she was a star in the variety field, and in that life won her title "The Irish Queen." When vaudeville was established some years ago by B.-F. Keith, Maggie Cline was one of the first stars enlisted and for a long time she was the greatest drawing card that could be offered. Satisfied with a long and successful career she settled down on her beautiful estate in New Jersey, determined to spend her days in just any fashion she elected. But the lure of the stage was too strong and when inducements were held out to her to return, she "came back" with such wonderful success that she has not been out of any of the larger cities for some time. However, the Keith agents have induced her to visit Atlanta and that her engagement will be one of the events of the season is a fact that is going to be evidenced by her reception and her ability to win applause during the week.

In arranging the bill that will be in support of the famous artist, the management has selected acts that are of the highest quality, making up a bill of variety that will be one of the strongest that has been put on the Forsyth stage. Aside from the interest that is naturally going to be centered in Miss Cline, there will be features that will make the show a card of more than ordinary importance.

Principal among the stars on the program will be the great Howard, the Scotch ventriloquist, who was one of the first big hit makers to appear at the Forsyth. Howard is a comedian of real ability and could discard his dummy partners and lay aside his ventriloquial powers and still be in demand. However it is a double treat in having a noted voice juggler and a real comedian in one person. Howard has but recently returned from abroad where he scored all kinds of triumphs and he is going to repeat his former successes here.

Another card that will have a big value will be the appearance of Madden and Fitzpatrick, in "The Wanderer." It will be remembered by some of the present day vaudeville patrons that this pair of high-class entertainers broke the Orpheum records five years ago. One of the men is a remarkable pianist. The other is an actor of rare talent. Together they make up an act that will be one of the most important features as long as vaudeville and the stars live.

Caesar Nezi is on the bill. This man in himself would be card enough to attract real attention to the show. He was discovered by the famous Oscar Hammerstein, and was named the "American Caruso." He scored a real triumph in the Victoria theater and abroad won the admiration of the music critics. Kirk and Fogarty will contribute much to the success of the bill because Miss Kirk is a remarkably pretty girl and because Billy Fogarty is a laugh winner without an equal.

A special feature on the bill will be the famous Equill Brothers, the last word in sensational and interesting gymnastic work. These men have appeared in every principal vaudeville theater in the world and have never failed to share the biggest honors on any bill. They are wonderfully qualified for their work, and it is predicted that they, too, will add to the interest in the show.

Carl Rosin and company in comedy magic will help things along, and there is every indication that a real sure enough vaudeville hit headed by Maggie Cline will be the result of the week at Atlanta's busiest theater.

Tabloid Musical Comedy.
(At the Bijou.)

One of the most popular successes accredited to any local theater has been the triumph of tabloid musical comedy at the Bijou. After a run of four years with popular vaudeville of the family sort, the famous little house established the tabloid policy on last Monday afternoon, and an instant success was registered.

Tabloid musical comedy has the indorsement now of nearly all theatergoers. The policy is successful in a great many cities, but there will be no interest that will show better returns than here in fun-loving Atlanta.

The bill that commences the week with matinee on Monday afternoon will be "The District Leader." Joseph E. Howard's pet show. Mr. Howard is one of the most distinguished producers of vaudeville in America. He has also several musical comedy successes to his credit, and now that he has gone into the tabloid field it is predicted that he will be a leader for a long time to come.

The story, songs and music of "The District Leader" comes from the pen of this right famous composer. It has been declared to be of almost enough value for the two-dollar performances.

There is plenty of action in "The District Leader," with ample comedy lines accompanying many clever songs. J. W. Wandling, Leah Mower, Arthur Henry, Lillian Denier and Ruth McKee present some very fetching song numbers. The plot whirls around the fact that Tim Halloran, democratic candidate for senator, has a twin brother who hits the pipe and has a scheming wife, who doesn't know about the twin part of the story. Dan Lawton, republican candidate, plays the heavy villain, and Tom Cole, reporter for The Comet, is the key that untangles the tribulations of the virtuous hero. Flossie Whittle, a sassy soubrette; Naleaka Granger, the schemer; Grace Lawton, the fiancee of Tim; Ezra Whittle, and the Betting Man, not to mention Willie, the Johnny boy, and Megaphone Mike, the Chinatown gun man, all contribute a full share to the melodrama. A very clever staff of chorus girls dance and sing, and wear picture clothes in a satisfactory manner.

There will be the usual daily matinees, two matinees on Monday and Saturday and two performances at night, 7:30 and 9. The admission continues at 10 cents, and there is a section of reserved seats at 10 cents extra.

"St. Elmo."
(At the Atlanta.)

Few novels or plays have attracted the widespread interest of "St. Elmo" which is to be produced by the Miss Bill Long company at the Atlanta theater this week, with matinees on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. The play is to be presented on the popular vote of theater patrons who are anxious to see Miss Long in the role of Edna Earl, the heroine of the piece. Miss Long has played the part several times and says it is one of her favorites. That she will get all the sweetness and heart interest out of the role goes without saying.

Edwin Vail, too, will be seen in the best role yet given him, that of St. Elmo. Ralph Marthy will play Gordon Leigh, the heavy character, and Joseph E. Kirkham will be cast as Rev. Allan Hammond, the minister. The grandfather of Edna Earl will fall to William Triplett, and Bert Gardner will play the minister's son. The principal comedy role, that of Vanderdecken Jiggins, will be in the hands of Allan Robinson. Miss Sheldon and Miss Tasiee will be cast as Agnes and Gertrude Hammond.

The story of "St. Elmo" is already familiar. St. Elmo Murray is a bitter young man, who is morose and out of sorts with everyone and everything. When he comes to the blacksmith shop of Aaron Hunt he incurs the dislike of the blacksmith because of the manner in which he treats his horse. The blacksmith warns his grand-daughter, Edna, against the man, but to Edna St. Elmo is more or less a hero.

After leaving the blacksmith shop St. Elmo has an altercation with Murray Hammond, and in a duel which follows kills the lad. Edna sees the duel but does not realize who has done the killing. At this same time Edna's grandfather dies and the young girl goes to New York to study and later she becomes a governess. Several years pass before she returns to her old home. Meanwhile, Rev. Dr. Hammond has exerted his influence over St. Elmo and the latter enters the ministry.

Edna finds St. Elmo very much changed. Through Vanderdecken Jiggins she learns that St. Elmo was the man who killed Murray Hammond and this for a time stands between her and the man she learns to love. When she finally realizes, however, that St. Elmo has surely redeemed himself she gives herself to him and they are married.

LIFE IN THE BALANCE FROM MERCURY TABLET

Chicago, May 24.—After suffering all night with pains in his abdomen, W. L. McCutcheon, an automobile salesman 22 years old, was horrified to discover today that he had taken three one-grain bichloride of mercury tablets by mistake for a headache remedy.

It will be five days, according to the physicians, before it will be possible to determine whether the young man's life can be saved.

END COMES FOR BANKER AFTER WEEK'S FIGHT AGAINST SURE DEATH

Macon Capitalist Who Took Bichloride of Mercury Tablet by Mistake Never Lost Courage.

Macon, Ga., May 22.—Displaying heroic courage up to the time he lost consciousness, which was several hours before death, B. Sanders Walker, who took bichloride of mercury by mistake here last Wednesday, died at 1.36 o'clock this morning. His immediate family was at his bedside when he died.

For the last forty-eight hours he had been partly under the influence of opiates. Displaying in his few conscious moments the courage which has characterized his week's fight with death from poisoning, the banker last night was expected by his attending physicians to die at any moment. Although he had banked for life since last Wednesday when he took a bichloride of mercury tablet by mistake, a power [illegible]

By E. A. Tigner.

With the unique record of having for the past several years turned away form its doors on account of lack of accommodations, as many students as have actually been enrolled during these years, the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, located at Milledgeville, lays claim to being the most popular institution under the charge of the state government.

And to back up its claim, it cites figures to show that it has had to refuse admittance to over 3,000 students in the brief space of six years. This is the record of which the institution boasts as it rounds out its twentieth year of existance. Its record of growth is absolutely unapproached by any other institution in the state, or, it is claimed, in the entire south.

The present senior class, numbering 125, is the largest class a Georgia college ever graduated. Added to this will be 50 or more students who have taken special courses preparatory for teaching and who will receive certificates in June, making a total of nearly 200 young women sent out this year into the state from this college who have completed the work in the various departments there with credit.

The reputation that this school has gained in Georgia in recent years is well earned for there exists in the hearts and minds of the president and faculty the purpose to operate a real school that will benefit Georgia. Each of them believing strongly in the kind of education for girls that the college stands for, they have worked hard to establish their ideals and probably no other college in the south can claim greater success from its efforts or feel surer of its wholesome effect upon matters educational.

No one can visit this school without being struck with the complete organization under which it is operating. The general neatness of the grounds, the beauty of the buildings and the order observed in all the college work is promptly noticed. A happy and earnest working spirit seems to be present in every one connected with the school. The girls are a buoyant, healthy set enjoying their college life whether on the athletic field, in the dormitory or in their class work.

Institution Distinctly a Woman's College.

The Georgia Normal and Industrial college is distinctly a woman's college. It does not seek to imitate the educational practices that have prevailed in colleges for men, merely for the sake of conforming to tradition.

In its fixed requirements, the college has deliberately broken away from what it considers many of the false fashions of the past. It believes that women have interests and ambitions and spheres of usefulness peculiarly their own. It believes there are fields of work for women which call for new courses of study.

It believes that all the sciences and arts should be made to contribute to an improvement of the home, the school, the farm, the child, and society in general.

Half of Applicants Turned Away.

The college has been unable to accommodate one-half of those who have applied to enter within the present school year. During the past six years about 3,000 students have been refused admission to the college because of a lack of room.

These are startling facts. The college has been almost at a standstill in point of numbers because of the fact that the state has not provided sufficient accommodations for those who apply, and who wish the particular kind of training given at this institution.

The college has two urgent needs: one is for another dormitory in order that the crowded conditions may be removed and in order that more students may be accommodated; another need is for an increased maintenance fund. With the present fund the college is meeting its obligations with great difficulty and with delay and besides this, the institution every year loses members of the faculty because it cannot afford to pay salaries as large as other institutions.

Collegiate, Normal and Industrial Courses.

The college offers three distinct courses of study, 1st, Collegiate, 2nd, Normal, 3rd, industrial. The president of this institution has thrown his influence unhesitatingly toward the development of the industrial and normal departments, and it has been the policy to bring the course of study closer to life, emphasizing such studies as domestic science, domestic arts, manual arts, drawing, normal work, singing, physical training, biology, agriculture, horticulture and poultry culture.

Among all Georgia colleges, the Georgia Normal and Industrial college has been the first to give recognition to the household sciences and arts.

These subjects are now becoming popular in nearly all the schools for women and in many universities. The recent progress in this direction is shown by the following table which shows the number of graduates each year who have specialized in the domestic science department and have received at the same time the full diplomas of the college:

1906, 1.	1910, 7.
1907, 1.	1911, 11.

Entire Cost Only $130 For 9 Months.

The entire cost of attendance in the institution for the full session of nine months, including living expenses in the dormitories, laundry, matriculation fee, books and stationery, is about $130. This is a liberal estimate. Tuition is free to Georgia students. The exact cost is as follows:

Board, including laundry, 9 months	$108.00
Matriculation, or entrance fee..	10.00
Tuition, free to Georgia girls ..	.....
Books, about	10.00

Remarkable Work Done By President Parks.

The president is Professor M. M. Parks, who was professor of pedagogy in the college at the time of his election. Professor Parks at that time was a man of only thirty years of age, he had been a very profound student of education since his graduation from Emory college in 1892. He had taken postgraduate courses at Harvard and also the Chicago university and was well prepared for the work to which he had been chosen.

He belongs distinctly to the new school of education that believes educational institutions should adjust their courses of study to the needs of the students and the conditions under which they are to live. He is one of the pioneer educators in industrial and agricultural education in Georgia, and under his direction and administration the Georgia Normal and industrial college has grown to be a pattern and Professor Parks now ranks as one of the leading educators of the times.

Aside from the grasp that he has upon modern educational methods he has many qualities that make him a great college president. Through his influence and the influence of the faculty that he has assembled around him there pervades among the student body a great desire to make their education real, and this spirit is so evident among the students that everyone coming to this school soon catches it. This spirit in the president, faculty and student body, no wonder has created a great school.

Artistic Effect of Campus and Buildings.

Professor Parks is a great organizer and every department receives his special attention. He is as conscientious in the discharge of his public duties as if they were his own affairs. In the erection of several buildings on the campus he has given close study to their arrangement for the purposes needed and their general architecture, and it is said that the buildings erected under his supervision are the handsomest from an architectural point of view with the best appointments possible and at the same time the most economical in cost that are built from state appropriations.

Under his very successful administration the popularity of the school is now a household word in Georgia.

Was the Greatest Jockey.

(From Pearson's Weekly.)

If the true test of merit be success, then there never was a jockey like Freddie Archer.

For a short period, during the heyday of his fame, he won one race for each one he lost, and from the beginning of his racing career, in 1870, until 1886, the year of his death, he was first past the post in 2,746 out of the 8,084 races he rode in.

He won the Derby five times, the oaks four times, the St. Leger six times, the Two Thousand Guineas five times. No wonder he became a popular idol. Between the year 1876, when he won his first City and Suburban and his first Ascot Gold Cup on Thunder, till 1886, when he won his fifth Derby on Ormonde, he had a large and ever-increasing train of followers who backed him in practically every race he rode in, irrespective of his mounts. It was "Archer up, and never mind the gee-gee."

And in a sense their blind faith in him was justified, for what Archer did not know about horses was hardly worth knowing.

Pretty nearly born in a stable—he was the son of William Archer, a celebrated cross-country rider—he was brought into constant contact with thoroughbreds almost as soon as he could toddle, and when barely 9 years old he rode his first race in public, steering Athol Daisy to victory in the Nursery Handicap at Chesterfield. This was on September 28, 1870, when he was serving his time as an apprentice in the racing stable of the well-known trainer, "Matt" Dawson. Next day he won another race on the same filly.

After that, however, came a succession of losses, fourteen in all, and this run of ill luck continued over the next season, when out of thirty-six races he rode in he only succeeded in winning three.

But all the while he was gaining valuable experience, and, what was far more important, he was also gaining confidence. By the time he was 17 he had established his reputation as a fearless rider.

His nerves of steel, his muscles of whipcord, never for an instant failed him. On the Derby course, at Tattenham Corner, where even the most experienced jockeys invariably lost a length or two by swerving outward, Archer never hesitated to gallop at top speed down the bend of the hill, often shaving the railings so closely as to cause the nearest spectators to shrink back in affright.

His rivals said that this sort of thing could never last; that he was bound, sooner or later, to break his neck, or at least cripple himself for life. But he never did. Indeed, his accidents, due to his riding, were few and trivial.

An Arkansas Literary Colony.

(From The Coffeyville, Kan., Journal.)

Rogers, Ark., a town of 3,000 in the Ozarks, boasts of a literary colony unexpected in an Arkansas village. Tom Morgan has been a regular contributor to Judge, Life, Puck and the Smart Set for twenty-three years and has a regular Sunday feature in The Kansas City Star. Jay B. Iden has achieved wide fame in the last six months with his mythical Pleasant Valley items in The Sunday Star. Miss Mary Park is a writer of juvenile stories and a frequent contributor to St. Nicholas and the Youth's Companion. All make their home in Rogers.

Not Husbands, But Herrings.

(From The Cincinnati Enquirer.)

The girls of Kansas University, after balloting, have agreed that they want husbands with 30-inch waist measures. They don't want husbands, they want herrings.

"CHARGE FRAMED UP BY A DIRTY GANG"

That's the Way Mayor James G. Woodward Made Answer Saturday to Published Dictagraph Record.

After Mayor James G. Woodward and read the published dictagraph record of the conversation alleged to have been held between him, A. S. Colyar, G. C. Febuary and E. O. Miles, in room No. 31, Williams House, Wednesday afternoon, he declared that it was a "frame-up by a dirty gang."

The mayor told The Constitution that he would be willing to start a fund to employ Burns detectives to trace the motive which inspired Colyar and his companions.

"I haven't much money to spend, but I would contribute to a fund to carry this investigation to the finish," he said. "It has just gone that far that it is not complete. There certainly must be more in it than has been published. I haven't been able to find a thing but froth and no substance. Now, let's get at the substance."

All the Record Not Given.

Mayor Woodward says he is sore only because the dictagraph record did not get all he told Colyar and Febuary in the Williams House room. He says that some part of the conversation is reported correctly, and other parts have been eliminated and words put into the record to fit the aims of the conspirators.

"I'll stand on a dictograph box in the center of the street at Five Points and repeat every word that I uttered in that room," Mayor Woodward said. "There are some things I said and which were eliminated, which I have stated in print, and which I would like to have in that record as long as they have it.

"It's all a frame-up by a dirty crowd. Now, isn't Colyar a fine specimen to be employed by the city detectives. He is charged with everything from murder to arson."

Mayor Woodward denies that the name of Police Commissioner Dozier was mentioned at any time during the conversation while he was in the room. He also denies making the statement that he was "especially after Beavers," when Colyar made the remark that he had evidence sufficient to convict Beavers and Lanford.

"I didn't mention one word about Dozier deserting Beavers. In fact I did not even know that he was with Beavers. I didn't mention a word about any one of the commissioners, and I feel pretty sure that the names of Beavers and Lanford were not often mentioned.

Reports Are Untrue.

"I want to make it plain that every statement or report, coming from whatever source, connecting me with the Phagan case, is absolutely untrue and unfounded.

"My only connection with the case was to call councill to meet in special session to offer a reward of $1,000 for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty party."

Mayor Woodward was asked if he would take steps to have an investigation made of the entire affair.

"I have no interest in it one way or the other, so why should I start an investigation. If someone wants to start I'll contribute to a fund for defraying the expense. Colyar and his crowd sent word to me that they had evidence of graft in the police department, and wanted me to give them $1,000 for it. They didn't get it."

INVESTIGATION ASKED OF THE CIVIL SERVICE

Washington, May 24.—(Special.)—Investigation of the civil service has been delayed by the failure of the senate committee to act favorably on the two resolutions now before them. Senator Overman, of North Carolina, is the author of one of the resolutions of inquiry, while Senator Pomerene, of Ohio, chairman of the committee, has offered another.

Under an amendment to the civil service rules which will be urged by the democrats, the order of President Taft placing 40,000 fourth-class postmasters under the civil service is suspended pending an examination of these postmasters.

It also provides that deputy collectors of internal revenue, who are now under the civil service, may be removed and their places filled by the collectors, if private letters are written deputy collectors in Georgia, whose salaries ranging from $1,200 to $1,800, are not the appointees of Senator Hoke Smith, are not subject to removal by him. Under the proposed amendment they would be subject to removal. The purpose of the amendment is that any officer required to execute a bond may in certain cases be removed by the official to whom he makes bond.

Beaten by Negroes.

Mobile, Ala., May 24.—Captain S. F. Knowlton, of the British schooner Delta, was brought to this city from Pascagoula, Miss., this afternoon, and now lies at a local infirmary suffering from injuries inflicted by three Jamaica negroes, who mutinied 250 miles off Mobile Monday. He is said to be in a serious condition. The three men were overpowered by the rest of the crew and the schooner put back to Pascagoula, where the crew was bound. The negroes are in jail there.

Lumber Trust Appeal.

Washington, May 24.—Attorney General McReynolds will ask the supreme court Monday to advance for hearing next October the appeal of the defendants in the suit of the government against the Eastern States' Retail Lumber Dealers' association and others for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. This is the first of the government's "lumber trust" cases to reach the supreme court. The government won in the lower court.

Plotting in Venezuela.

Willemstadt, Curacao, May 24.—Despatches from Caracas, Venezuela, says the discovery of a plot against the life of President Juan Vicente Gomez led to several arrests and the flight of a number of politicians. The alleged flight of General Penalosa is contradicted and it is said he still is at Caracas, where in government circles President Gomez is considered to hold a stronger position than ever.

McGoorty and Klaus Draw.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 24.—Eddie McGoorty, of Oshkosh, Wis., and Frank Klaus, of Pittsburg, middleweights, fought six rounds here tonight. Klaus tried rushing tactics. McGoorty, however, managed to evade his opponent's attack. No decision was given. In the opinion of many it was about an even break.

Colyar Declared Criminal And Not Worthy of Belief In Four Sworn Statements

Four sworn statements concerning the career of A. S. Colyar, and declaring him a criminal and unworthy of belief, have been furnished The Constitution by Colonel Thomas B. Felder. They are as follows:

Record in Nashville.

State of Georgia, County of Fulton—Personally appeared before the undersigned, an officer authorized by law to administer oaths, C. R. Atchison, who, first being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he was born and reared in the city of Nashville, Tenn., and lived there until January 1, 1913, when he removed to the city of Atlanta, state and county aforesaid, and since that date has been a citizen thereof.

Deponent further says that he resides at the Georgian Terrace, in said city, and is vice president of the Massengale Advertising agency, with offices in the Candler building, said city, county and state.

Deponent further says, on oath, he has known A. S. Colyar, Jr., from boyhood, and that he is thoroughly well acquainted with his reputation and character for truth and veracity.

Deponent further says, on oath, that he is in a general way familiar with the criminal record of Colyar, covering a period of approximately twenty-five (25) years. Deponent knows that he has been arrested during this period in several states of the union for the offenses of forgery, perjury and impersonating others to obtain money; that he has been incarcerated in the jails of several states; that he is a moral degenerate, pervert, and a chronic crook and black leg, and deponent does not hesitate to say that from a knowledge of his character and reputation he would not believe him on oath.

C. R. ATCHISON.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 24th day of May, 1913.

Says Colyar Is Crook.

Georgia, Fulton County—Personally appeared before the undersigned, an officer authorized by law to administer oaths, E. W. McNeal, who, first being duly and legally sworn, deposes and says: That he was a citizen of the city of Nashville, Tenn., from 1887 to 1894; deponent is now a citizen of Atlanta with office and place of business at 52 South Forsyth street.

Deponent says, on oath, that he is familiar with the character and reputation of A. S. Colyar, Jr. Deponent says, on oath, that the said Colyar is known as a professional crook, blackleg and adventurer; that he has been charged from time to time with offenses of forgery, perjury, conspiracy, blackmail, etc., that from time to time he has been incarcerated in the jails from the city of New York to New Orleans.

Deponent firmly believes that there is not a crime in the catalogue that he would not willingly and quickly commit for money. On account of his father, deponent makes this affidavit with great reluctance, but nevertheless is compelled to make this affidavit because of the charges made by the said A. S. Colyar, Jr., against one of our best and most reputable citizens of the city of Atlanta. From a knowledge of the character of the said Colyar, deponent says, without hesitation, that he would not believe him on his oath.

E. W. M'NEAL.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this, the 24th day of May, 1913.

BENEDICT KOBAK.
Notary Public, Fulton County, Ga.

Arrested Many Times.

State of Georgia, County of Fulton—Personally appeared before the undersigned officer, authorized by law to administer oaths, W. D. Rhea, who first being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he was formerly a resident in the city of Nashville, and lived there until 1897, and subsequently the deponent resided there from 1902 to 1910, when he removed to the city of Atlanta, where he has resided since at No. 305 Ponce de Leon avenue, and now at the Georgian Terrace.

Deponent further says, on oath, that he has known A. S. Colyar for thirty years, during a portion of this time he lived as next-door neighbor to him at Nashville, and that he is thoroughly well acquainted with his reputation, honesty, character and veracity. Deponent further says, on oath, that he is in a general way acquainted with the criminal record of this man Colyar, covering the period of his acquaintance with him; that he has been, from time to time, been arrested for divers and sundry crimes, such as forgery, blackmail, fraud, and that he has operated in a number of states in the union, and has been incarcerated in the jails of many of them; that he is looked upon as a notorious crook whose word is worthless, and dependent does not hesitate to say that from his knowledge of his character he would not believe him on his oath.

W. D. RHEA.

His Life in Bartow.

Georgia, Fulton County—In person before me the undersigned attesting officer, authorized under the laws of said state to administer oaths, appeared W. A. Milner, who, first being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he is a practicing attorney in Cartersville, Bartow County, Georgia, and that he knows A. S. Colyar and his general reputation, and that the said Colyar's reputation is known by the good people of Bartow county, that said Colyar's criminal record is known by the people in Cartersville and Bartow county, and that said reputation is bad and that said Colyar is unworthy of belief; that scores of people in Bartow county will testify that they would not believe said Colyar on oath, nor would deponent believe said Colyar on oath.

Deponent further says that said Colyar arose in a religious meeting on one occasion and confessed that he was an ex-convict, so he has been informed, and that his record was criminal and that he wished to reform; deponent further says that said Colyar married a lady in Cartersville, and that he bears an unsavory reputation in Bartow county, and that said Colyar could not be believed on oath.

W. A. MILNER.

Here Is the Dictagraph Record Of Woodward's Conversation

Going to A. S. Colyar's room in Williams House No. 2, on Forsyth street, Wednesday afternoon to make efforts to get information of alleged grafting on the part of Chief of Police Beavers and Chief Lanford, Mayor James G. Woodward walked into as neat a trap as was ever devised. The same dictagraph which was alleged to take down the statements of Colonel T. R. Felder, is said to have been working while the mayor of Atlanta was in conference with E. O. Miles, a private detective; Febuary, Chief of detectives Lanford's clerk, and A. S. Colyar.

The mayor admits frankly he was there, but says he offered no money, and that he would subscribe to a fund to unearth graft in any city department; and also said that his visit had nothing whatever to do with the Phagan case.

"These parties told me they had evidence of the corruptness of Beavers and Lanford. I wanted to see what they had," he is quoted as saying.

Part of the conversation, as alleged to have been taken down by George M. Gentry, expert for the district office of the Southern Bell Telephone company, dealt with the early arrival of Miles, who discussed the Phagan case with Colyar.

After Mayor Woodward arrived in the room, Colyar stated that Febuary had the goods on certain members of the police and detective department. There was some discussion about the right of the police to arrest anyone who could get evidence. Mayor Woodward saying that he didn't understand how such an informer could be thrown in jail.

At some of the most important portions of the dictagraph record Mr. Gentry reported that there was so much confusion outside, or the speakers spoke so low, that he could not gather what was said.

A little later on in the record Woodward assured Colyar that there was nothing for an informer to fear.

"You don't know what police persecution is," Colyar said. "They can prove that black is white, and water will burn up stream, and they can get a jury that will——" and here Miles interrupted.

Still further in the conversation, Miles said: "Febuary wants to know if we can promise him protection. I think we can safely do it in a matter like this." "Yes," Mayor Woodward answered.

Miles—He has the graft list, and knows whose on the list, who is to be protected, and who is not to be protected. It looks to me like we have the same things down here that we had in New York, only on a smaller scale, because Atlanta is a smaller town.

Colyar—Did you tell Tom Felder that you authorized Felder that if he got the proof for you you would see that he got paid for it."

Here the dictagraph did not record all that was said, owing to indistinct voices, according to Gentry, the stenographer, who was taking down the conversation.

Colyar—He said he would give him a thousand dollars for the evidence.

A little later on in the conversation, Miles spoke.

Miles—What would be the nature of those documents? (speaking of alleged graft lists, etc.)

Colyar—It is an affidavit from two people—both signed it—acknowledging threats, etc., graft and general corruption. Like you said a while ago.

Miles—A place like the Walton Inn has never been closed. My information is that the woman who runs it is a sister-in-law of an official in the police department. A woman gave me that information and said that she was operating under protection.

Woodward (evidently referring to reward asked for)—There will be no trouble about getting the money.

The Kind of Evidence.

Later in the conversation, when asked what kind of evidence was wanted, Woodward replied:

"Get anything that looks like graft. I don't care who it hits, and especially Beavers."

Febuary here stated that he would see what he could get.

Woodward—We are going to get up the money to pay for it. They'll want to know what we have got and what you can prove. Then I can give him an answer.

Woodward later on in conversation)—I won't do anything until it is substantiated.

Miles—Yes, just forget it. You know you have never broken your word yet.

Woodward—I hear they charge me with some meanness.

Here the dictagraph was indistinct again, and the next words from Woodward were: Well, they have pretty good evidence on him.

Colyar—On who?

Woodward—Beavers. (Then later:) We want Beavers first, then Lanford.

Miles is then quoted as saying that they would raise the money to pay for the evidence, go out into the county, examine the evidence, and then turn the money over.

Here the dictagraph spoke.

Woodward—We have got lawyers here that will get you out pretty quick. And I have the pardon power still.

The mayor's final words in regard to the matter were:

"I don't think there will be any trouble at all. * * * we could get together and establish * * * there is something wrong. It is simply a * * * Now, Mr. Febuary, you get a list of the papers you can furnish me against those men, and give them to me or Miles, and then we will know how to talk with you. As it is, we don't know whether we can get anything or not."

George M. Gentry, the stenographer in the other room at the end of the dictagraph wires, swore that the statements which he had taken down were true. A. S. Colyar and G. C. Febuary also swore that their conversation was true, and that Gentry had made a correct transcript of the same.

FINAL BROADSIDE BY THE COTTON MEN

Representatives of the Cotton Factories to Move on Senate Finance Committee—Hoke Smith Predicts Changes.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, D. C., May 24.—(Special.)—Cotton manufacturers will fire a final broadside at the senate finance committee on Monday. Representatives of the cotton industry from Georgia, the Carolinas and New England, are expected in Washington. F. B. Gordon, of Columbus, Ga., who recently gave out an interview sharply attacking the rates on cotton textiles in the Underwood bill, will make an oral argument before the sub-committee, of which Senator Hoke Smith is a member.

In discussing the bill today, Senator Smith said:

"We will finish our hearings on Tuesday night, but it will be a week later before our sub-committee is ready to report on the cotton schedule. There will be a number of changes in the bill, but these will not be startling, and will be in line with its general purpose.

"The income bill is an admirable measure, but it would be remarkable if in its thousands of items there were not some that needed changing.

Information Interesting.

"I have finished upon hearings with the view to obtaining all the information possible. Some products are put in the free list, which, in my opinion, means applying to them a duty that is unjust. These will be changed by amendment.

"There will be increases in the cotton schedule, and an allowance will be made for the process of dyeing, turning, combing and mercerizing cotton fabrics.

"Iron ore will be made free in the bill, as will ferro manganese, which is used in the steel industry.

"As to wool and sugar, I do not anticipate that there will be any change, although there is strong pressure on part of the democratic senators to bring this about.

"I have not yet studied carefully the income tax or administrative features of the bill, but the suggestions and criticism from all parts of the country may have disclosed some injustice or inequalities in these sections which we may wish to correct.

"The same arguments that will induce me to offer amendments with the view to perfecting the Underwood bill will, I am sure, induce our colleagues in the house to accept these amendments."

Progress Slow on Bill.

Democratic leaders now have no hopes of getting the tariff bill into the senate for debate before June 10 or probably later. The real work of getting schedules in shape for presentation to the caucus has not progressed as rapidly as leaders expected. Some changes in the rates on manufactures of wool may be recommended by Senator Stone's subcommittee. It was said the changes would make reductions. Some changes, it became known, are to be recommended for cotton manufactures. They are expected to be increases.

Wool and sugar continued subjects of considerable discussion, but the best information seemed to bear out declarations of administration leaders that no changes on raw wool or sugar would be made by the party unless in the democratic caucus.

Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life Insurance company, will have a hearing Monday before the sub-committee composed of Senators Williams, Shively and Gore, as provisions of the income tax section which relate to insurance companies. To accommodate President Kingsley the sub-committee will reopen the hearings it had, planned to close today.

Chairman Simmons received many telegrams today in connection with the questions to manufacturers prepared by the committee and regarding the filing of briefs.

Briefs to Be Printed.

Many have been under the impression that no answers to queries or briefs opposing schedules would be printed for the benefit of the senate after the hearings close Tuesday. Senator Simmons announced today that printing of such matter would continue until the bill finally was disposed of.

Hearings before the sub-committee continued today. J. Wardwell, of Boston, representing the Great Northern, St. Croix and Berlin Falls Paper companies, before Senator Johnson's sub-committee urged that retaliatory duties against Canada on the higher grades of paper be extended to print paper. The Underwood bill until restrictions were removed. The committee took under consideration an amendment proposed by Mr. Wardwell.

L. S. Alderson, of Lewiston, Idaho, representing fruit growing interests, urged putting fruits on the free list because of the need for a market during the growth of the American fruit industry.

Senators Ransdell and Thornton, of Louisiana, resumed their fight against free sugar before Senator Williams' sub-committee. After a prolonged session, Senator Ransdell said he did not know whether they had accomplished anything or not.

SMALL BOY RUN DOWN WHEN CROSSING STREET

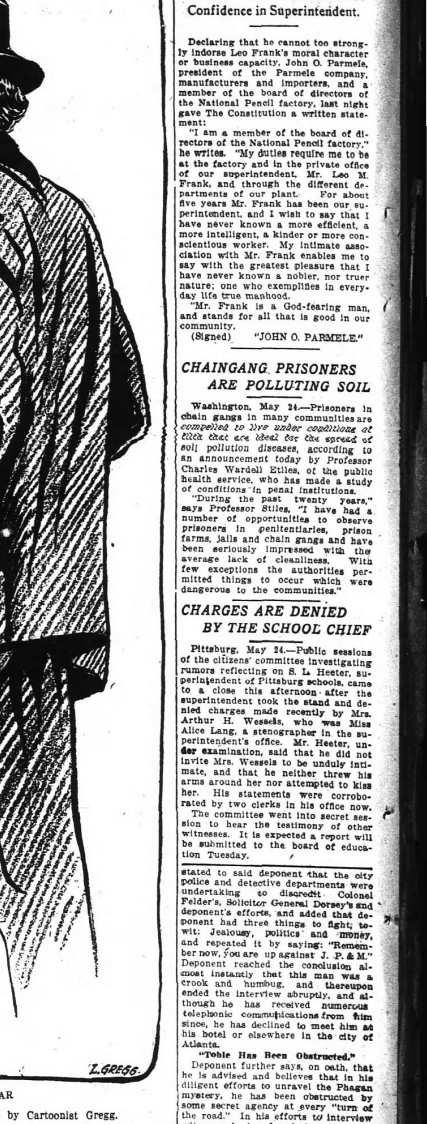
While attempting to cross the street yesterday afternoon at the corner of Gordon and Lee streets, John Fretwell, 8 years old, was run down by J. N. Hook, driving the car of Alfred Austell.

The boy was taken to the Grady hospital, where it was said that his injuries were not serious. The boy's father is W. E. Fretwell, a house and sign painter, living at 23 Wellborn street. The police gave the chauffeur who drove the car a copy of charges.

Going to Singerfest.

The United German Singers of Atlanta, some fifty strong, will leave Atlanta Monday afternoon over the Georgia railroad in special cars attached to the 3:25 Georgia railroad train for Charleston to take part in the annual convention of the Singerfest of the southeastern division of that association. The annual convention will open Tuesday, May 27 and will last three days. The Atlanta contingent will be under the direction of George Mau, who has been watching the rehearsals of the Atlanta singers for some weeks past. In addition to the members of the Atlanta singing section a number of ladies will make the trip.

A. S. Colyar, Leading Figure In the Felder Bribe Charges



A. S. COLYAR

Sketched for The Constitution by Cartoonist Gregg.

C. W. Tobie, Burns' Agent, Tells of the Conferences He Held With A. S. Colyar

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 24th day of May, 1913.

BENEDICT KOBAK,
Notary Public, Fulton County, Ga.

following affidavit concerning his connection with the Phagan case and with A. S. Colyar.

Georgia, Fulton County—Personally appeared before the undersigned, an officer authorized by law to administer oaths, C. W. Tobie, who, first being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he is a citizen of Chicago, with office in the First National Bank building of that city, and that he is manager of the criminal department, west, of the William J. Burns National Detective agency; that he has occupied this position for the past ten months; that he has been connected with the William J. Burns National Detective agency, as manager of the Kansas City, Mo., branch office, since May, 1910; that for a year prior to that time he was connected with the Tilletson Detective agency, correspondents of the William J. Burns National Detective agency; that prior to that time deponent was connected with the Pinkerton National Detective agency for a period of nine years; that he served a connection with the Pinkerton National Detective agency in May, 1909.

Charge Is False.

Deponent says, on oath, that the statement that he was discharged by said agency is utterly, absolutely and deliberately false; that he resigned from said agency, and not under compulsion, but of his own volition.

Deponent further says, on oath, that during the period of his labors as a detective covering the United States, Canada and some of the foreign countries, his work has never been brought into question, and his character as a man and detective has never been assailed.

Deponent further says, on oath, that about two weeks ago he was instructed by Raymond J. Burns, the secretary and treasurer of the William J. Burns National Detective agency, who was acting under instructions from his father, to come to Atlanta on a murder case and report to Colonel Felder. Arriving in Atlanta he had a conference with Colonel Felder, and immediately entered upon the work at hand. Later he had a lengthy conference with Colonel Felder and Hon. Hugh M. Dorsey.

Working to Find Murderer.

Deponent further says, on oath, that for the past ten days he has been diligently at work in an effort, to unearth the Phagan murderer or murderers, that during this time no hint, suggestion or proposition has been made to him by either Jew or Gentile, man, woman or child, to work in the interest of Frank, or any other suspect; that during this period he has acted conscientiously, faithfully and diligently in an effort to ferret out the mystery and place the crime upon the shoulders of the guilty party. At no time has deponent ever been requested, required or instructed to investigate the police or the detective department, or, in short, to perform any other duty in connection with his stay in Atlanta except the duty which owing to the death of Miss Phagan, the investigation of the Mary Phagan case.

Deponent further says, on oath, that the statement imputed by an afternoon paper to Colyar to the effect that I informed him at the Piedmont hotel that I was going to Colonel Felder's office "to meet a committee of citizens, among whom were Mr. Hirsch, Mr. Meyer and Mr. Greenstein, and several other prominent Jews in the city," is a deliberate, malicious and wilful falsehood. As a matter of fact, I never heard of either one of these gentlemen until I read their names in the papers on yesterday afternoon, and I have never met them or either of affidavits, whereupon the said Colyar elsewhere, and deponent firmly believes that this statement is made as a part of a well-planned conspiracy to discredit his efforts, and the efforts of Colonel Felder, to unearth the Phagan murderer or murderers.

When He Met Colyar.

Deponent further said, on oath, that he never laid eyes on Colyar in his life until he met him at the office of Colonel T. B. Felder on Sunday evening, May 18. At the time of deponent's arrival at said office, the conference between Colyar and Colonel Felder, which had evidently been brief, was drawing to a close, and at Colyar's invitation, I made an appointment to meet him at the Piedmont hotel on the following morning, as he stated that he had very important information in connection with the Phagan case, which he desired to impart to deponent. After meeting at the Piedmont hotel, the said Colyar stated to deponent that he had a number of affidavits involving the chief of police and chief of detectives which he desired to submit to him, that he was not here on that mission, and declined to examine the telephonic communications from him stated to said deponent that the city police and detective departments were undertaking to discredit Colonel Felder's, Solicitor General Dorsey's and deponent's efforts, and added that deponent had three things to fight; to-wit: Jealousy, politics and money, and repeated it by saying: "Remember now, you are up against J. P. & M." Deponent reached the conclusion almost instantly that this man was a crook and humbug, and thereupon ended the interview abruptly, and although he has received numerous telephonic communications from him since, he has declined to meet him at his hotel or elsewhere in the city of Atlanta.

"Tobie Has Been Obstructed."

Deponent further says, on oath, that he is advised and believes that in his diligent efforts to unravel the Phagan mystery, he has been obstructed by some secret agency at every "turn of the road." In his efforts to interview witnesses he has found them reluctant to answer questions and to give him necessary information, with the result that deponent verily believes that some that said witnesses were acting under instructions in their conduct.

Deponent further says, on oath, that there is nothing in the Phagan mystery different to other mysteries, and that with the co-operation of the prosecuting officials should be in sympathy with the efforts of the William J. Burns National Detective agency, guilt should be fastened upon the real criminal by absolute and conclusive evidence.

FRANK IS PRAISED BY JOHN O. PARMELE

National Pencil Company Director Gives Written Statement of Confidence in Superintendent.

Declaring that he cannot too strongly indorse Leo Frank's moral character or business capacity, John O. Parmele, president of the Parmele company, manufacturers and importers, and a member of the board of directors of the National Pencil factory, last night gave The Constitution a written statement:

"I am a member of the board of directors of the National Pencil factory," he writes. "My duties require me to be at the factory and in the near vicinity of our superintendent, Mr. Leo M. Frank, and through the different departments of the plant. For about five years Mr. Frank has been our superintendent, and I wish to say that I have never known a more efficient, a more intelligent or more conscientious worker. My intimate association with Mr. Frank enables me to say with the greatest pleasure that I have never known a nobler, nor truer nature; one who exemplifies in everyday life true manhood.

"Mr. Frank is a God-fearing man, and stands for all that is good in our community.

(Signed) "JOHN O. PARMELE."

CHAINGANG PRISONERS ARE POLLUTING SOIL

Washington, May 24.—Prisoners in chain gangs in many communities are compelled to live under conditions of filth that are ideal for the spread of soil pollution diseases, according to an announcement today by Professor Charles Wardell Stiles, of the public health service, who has made a study of conditions in penal institutions.

"During the past twenty years," says Professor Stiles, "I have had a number of opportunities to observe prisoners in penitentiaries, prison farms, jails and chain gangs and have been seriously impressed with the average lack of cleanliness. With few exceptions the authorities permitted things to occur which were dangerous to the communities."

CHARGES ARE DENIED BY THE SCHOOL CHIEF

Pittsburg, May 24.—Public sessions of the citizens' committee investigating rumors reflecting on S. L. Heeter, superintendent of Pittsburg schools, came to a close this afternoon after the superintendent took the stand and denied charges made recently by Mrs. Arthur H. Wessels, who was Miss Alice Lang, a stenographer in the superintendent's office. Mr. Heeter, under examination, said that he did not invite Mrs. Wessels to be unduly intimate, and that he neither threw his arms around her nor attempted to kiss her. His statements were corroborated by two clerks in his office now.

The committee went into secret session to hear the testimony of other witnesses. It is expected a report will be submitted to the board of education Tuesday.

SKIN TROUBLE ON FEET AND LIMBS

Also Hands, Began as Little Red Blisters, Caused Sores, Burning and Itching, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

222 Walker St., Greenville, Miss.—"My disease first began as a humor in my blood, as little red blisters would come and irritation would cause sores. It was on my feet and limbs, also hands. It gave me pain to put my hands in water. I had to wear perfectly white hose on my limbs. At times it was almost unbearable. The blisters would form as a fire blister, a large white puffy place filled with water afterwards, bursting and forming irritating sores. I suffered intense misery and had it for three or four years. I sent for a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and I was completely cured in less than two months. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me." (Signed) Mrs. J. H. Fowler, Apr. 25, 1912.

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

DIXIE VETERANS IN 23D REUNION

Survivors of "Lost Cause" to Meet in Chattanooga Tuesday—Camp Stewart Ready for the Veterans.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 24.—Pitched in the shadow of Missionary Ridge, where "the battle above the clouds" was fought fifty years ago, Camp Stewart now awaits the arrival of survivors of that and other noted engagements in the war between the states, who will attend the United Confederate Veterans' twenty-third annual reunion here May 27 to 29.

Hundreds of army tents tendered by the United States government compose the camp, located in Jackson park, and named after General A. P. Stewart, the famous confederate leader.

While formal opening of the reunion is scheduled for Tuesday, many veterans and visitors are expected to arrive sooner to attend sessions of the Confederate States' Memorial association and the Sons of Confederate Veterans Monday afternoon and evening.

A review of the Eleventh United States cavalry and the first session of the United Confederate Veterans in the city auditorium Tuesday morning will mark the opening of the reunion proper.

General Young to Preside.

General Bennett M. Young, of Louisville, Ky., commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, will preside at the sessions of that body. Among the speakers scheduled to deliver addresses at the opening meeting are Governor Ben W. Hooper, of Tennessee; Mayor T. C. Thompson, of Chattanooga, and General Young. The latter will accept the use of the auditorium in behalf of the veterans.

Sponsors of practically every division and brigade of the veterans' organization will participate in a parade scheduled for Tuesday afternoon. Many of these sponsors are said to be pertarbed over an official order issued recently requiring them to use only side saddles in the event they enter the parade mounted. This order provides that no women participating in pageants during the reunion will be permitted to ride astride.

A spectacular display is expected Tuesday evening when an elaborate reception is to be tendered the sponsors, maids of honor and visiting sons and daughters of the veterans.

Business sessions of the different organizations represented will be held Wednesday morning. In the afternoon a parade of the Sons of Confederate Veterans is the principal feature on the program.

The Grand Ball.

Years are expected to fall from many aged veterans Wednesday evening when the grand ball in their honor will be given in a gigantic pavillion erected on the athletic field of the University of Chattanooga.

Interest in the program for the last day of the reunion centers chiefly in the veterans' parade. This always has been one of the most impressive features of the veterans' reunions. Many of the southern fighters will be too feeble to march in the ranks with their comrades. Realizing this arrangements have been made to furnish carriages and automobiles for those who wish to participate in the parade despite their inability to stand the severe strain. Others will occupy reserved seats in the reviewing stands, where they can witness the parade and cheer their comrades as they pass.

The reunion will be concluded with a pageant participated in by local school children Thursday afternoon and a ball in honor of the Sons of Veterans the same evening.

TODAY'S CONCERT WILL CELEBRATE WAGNER'S BIRTHDAY

The centenary of the birth of Richard Wagner will be celebrated in Atlanta this afternoon by a free concert at the Auditorium-Armory, under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Festival association.

This is one of the regular series of free organ concerts, with the difference that Wagnerian music will preponderate on the program.

The program is as follows:

Wagner—Overture to Rienzi.

Wagner—Aria, "The Evening Star," from Tannhauser.

Wagner—Grand march from Tannhauser.

Wolf-Ferrari—Intermesse from "The Jewels of the Madonna."

Starnes—Grand Choeur Triumphale.

As this program shows, it will be concluded by one of Dr. Starnes' own compositions, a "grand chorus," which is said by friends who have heard it to show talent of the very highest rank. It also displays in a remarkable way the wonderful powers of the great organ.

This concert begins promptly at 3:30 o'clock. The doors will be open an hour beforehand, and all persons are urgently requested to be in their seats by the time the music commences.

NEW BARBER SHOP OF HERNDON'S IS REAL WORK OF ART

A. F. Herndon has this week completed the remodeling and enlarging of his barber shop on Peachtree street, making it one of the real works of art that adorn the city. It has been extended through from 66 Peachtree to another entrance at 65 North Broad street, making a long and handsome facade between these two central thoroughfares.

Herndon is one of the most constructive citizens of Atlanta of the negro race, and has not only worked for the height of art and business management, but has used his influence continuously for the uplift of the negroes. He is the kind of a man that makes the close students of humanity believe there is really a remarkable hope of uplifting the entire negro race—eventually. He enjoys the confidence of the people of Atlanta, and has won their admiration for the success that has crowned his thirty-one years of constructive work in the barber business.

Boy Killed at Rifle Shoot.

Raleigh, N. C., May 24.—While looking from behind the wall surrounding the target pit at the close of the Third regiment shoot this afternoon, Lewis White, well known Raleigh boy, was shot through the head by a stray bullet and instantly killed. It was the first accident in the ten years' rifle contests at the Third regiment men contest. White was 18 years old.

GOVERNOR SHUTS DOWN ON PARDON APPLICANTS

Daily Presentation of Cases Is Seriously Interfering With the State's Business.

So much of his time is taken up by parties interested in securing executive clemency for criminals that Governor Brown found it necessary yesterday to give out a statement calling attention to the fact that he would, in no instance, consider pardon applications except on the last Thursday and Friday of each month.

Owing to the fact, however, that the legislature will be in session on the last Thursday and Friday in June, the governor will hear clemency cases on June 19 and 20. On no other days in June will applications for pardons be heard.

The Governor's Statement.

The statement of the governor follows:

"In view of the fact that parties interested in securing action on applications for executive clemency are insisting upon presenting these cases daily, thereby depriving the law-abiding people of this state of the attention which their affairs merit, I am compelled to state that I shall decline without argument all cases which are brought into the executive office on days other than those appointed for consideration of the same. Those days it has been repeatedly stated, are the last Thursday and Friday of each month.

"But inasmuch as the legislature will be in session on the last Thursday and Friday in June, I will give attention to clemency cases on June 19 and 20. On no other days in June will I set aside the business of law-abiding citizens for the purpose of considering applications for executive clemency to persons convicted of violating the laws."

WORLD NEEDS REFORM, ACCORDING TO DANIELS

Baltimore, Md., May 24.—"This world needs reforming, and it will never get it until men carry Christianity into business and into politics," declared Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels today in a brief address before the Baltimore Sunday School association. Eight thousand Sunday school scholars paraded before the secretary in the second annual "May Walk" of the association.

YOU ARE NOT WELL WHEN CONSTIPATED

"Keep Your Bowels Open." Doctors Estimate 75 Per Cent of Sickness Due to Torpid Liver.

Some undigested food is left in the stomach daily, which the liver should clear away. A heavy or unusual diet, or a change in water, will cause the liver to leave a few particles to press and clog, and the next day more are left over. So this waste accumulates, clogging stomach and intestines, and causing constipation.

That is not all. If the waste is not eliminated it ferments and generates uric acid, a poison which gets into the blood and through the system.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately flushes the stomach and intestinal tract and washes away every particle of waste and fermentation; it purifies the blood by dissolving what uric acid has accumulated and passing it off in the urine.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is much better than calomel; no danger of salivation, no need of an after cleansing dose of oil. It acts quickly and mildly, never forces, gripes or nauseates. It effervesces agreeably. Take it before breakfast and in an hour you'll feel splendid.

Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. All druggists should have the Genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT, 25c. If yours cannot supply you, full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(adv.)

Beautiful Suburban Gardens Are Scenes of Summer Gaiety

Among the dinner parties of the week, one markedly pretty was that given Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little to a party of twelve. The table was decorated effectively with Dorothy Perkins roses, the queen flower of the moment. The roses filled a silver and crystal bowl in the center of the table, and vases at each end. The place cards were adorned with fairies, showing their dainty figures through opening roses. Colonial candlesticks, on the buffet, held unshaded tapers, and throughout the house there were decorations in summer flowers, from Mrs. Little's charming garden in the rear of her home. Here the guests assembled after dinner, to admire the roses which, set in their close foliage, almost concealed the columns of the pergola enclosing the garden on two sides. The roses reached high above the columns and were fairly banked over the frieze of the pergola, hanging in clusters from the vine and meeting the hedge separating the flower garden from the vegetable garden beyond.

Mrs. Little wore a summer gown of white lace, the smart coat of white moire, the corsage given finish by a touch of la France pink.

Other entertainments formal and informal, during the week, brought bright parties into these formal gardens, now all abloom with summer flowers. Mrs. Charles Sciple is having constructed in her flower garden a little Japanese tea house, which will be a charming place for entertaining during the summer evenings. Mrs. Bates Block has a tea house in her flower garden, where she has now a veritable field of variegated sweet smelling flowers. Mrs. Hugh Willet has one of the prettiest of flower gardens, where she cultivates especially the old-fashioned flowers, while further out the suburban housekeepers are reveling in the beauty of their flowers and entertaining al fresco.

Mrs. Slaton's Old-Fashioned Garden.

From her old-fashioned garden Mrs. John Marshall Slaton gathers quantities of flowers which decorate her country home. From her porch a beautiful view is commanded of the garden in the rear, and to the right the forest of symmetrical trees lends its dignity and beauty to one of the handsomest of suburban homes. Mr. and Mrs. Slaton and Mrs. Grant are entertaining informally previous to going to the executive mansion after June 28.

The formal garden of Mr. and Mrs. William Witham, at Bide-a-Wee, is one of the most admired of the many handsome suburban homes, and now abounds in trees and wonderful shrubs, and a luxury of flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Witham will spend part of the summer in Europe.

On Pace's Ferry road, where the "country gentry" pride themselves on their lawns and gardens, there is everything to delight the eye. Mr. and Mrs. Dickey have a beautiful sloping lawn, broken in smoothness by grouped shrubbery, while in the rear is the flower garden, end to the right of the house, the tennis court.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson has a beautiful setting of trees, as well as the pergola and attractive garden, now radiant with flowers of every color.

The woodland foliage and flowers bordering the driveways make the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon a park of charming interest and picturesqueness.

The trees have put forth their greenest leaves, and there has been enough of the natural ruggedness left to blend with the landscape artist's plan to make of the entire place one of continued pleasure to the lover of nature and out-of-door recreation.

The swimming pool is all white and green, and ready for the happy parties Mr. and Mrs. Brandon entertain there during the summer months, while nearer the house one catches a glimpse here and there of the carnival of beauty and color and fragrance which is expressed in Mrs. Brandon's garden, the care of which she supervises.

Poppies Throw Flame of Color.

At present the vivid hued poppy, with silky smooth petals, throws a flame of color over one wing of the garden; there are sweet peas and periwinkles, and lilies, and every flower that shows its face at this season, has its representation in Mrs. Brandon's collection.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Maddox, one of the most beautiful in the south, is in holiday array at present. A background of green extends as far as the eye can reach, and adding to the general effect are the flowered terraces, the pergola, the tea house and the fountain, spraying the borders of flowers at the stone base and the grass and foliage far beyond.

Pansies, in their wonderful rich color, border the walks near the house, while the red Rambler rose and the Dorothy Perkins roses vie in beauty and color, in all parts of the garden on the pergola and on the tea house.

The tennis court is like a miniature Greek theater, with the big columns defining the court, the screened walls between, tapestried with rosevines in radiant bloom. And still to be seen are the hollyhocks, which have all to themselves a garden in which they have not yet put forth their first buds.

Juniors Dine Seniors Of Agnes Scott College

The gaiety of school girl spirit at commencement time found its highest expression in the banquet at the Georgian Terrace Friday evening, when the junior class, Agnes Scott college, entertained the seniors.

The banquet was set in the palm dining room, and the table decoration of Marguerites was appropriate and beautiful. The place cards were decorated with college pennants, and the college colors were evident in elaborate decorative detail.

The forty-five school girls made music with their college songs and an orchestra also provided bright selections.

The talent of the girls in impromptu speeches was a bright feature after dinner.

House-Cook.

Miss Annie House, of Roswell, and Mr. W. M. Cook, of near Atlanta, were married at Roswell on Sunday, May 18, in the presence of relatives and a few friends.

Miss House is well known as a teacher of the Fulton county schools.

Mr. Cook has many friends who will be interested in the news of his marriage.

May Festival.

The May festival for the benefit of the Uncle Remus Memorial association that was postponed on account of the rain will take place next Friday at 1:30 p. m. at the Sign of the Wren's Nest.

The occasion will be one of the happiest events of the season. Hundreds of children will be there to participate in the coronation ceremonies. The beautiful queen, Miss Katherine Vickers, and her lovely attendants will be welcomed to the throne with all the pomp and style befitting the the occasion.

Just before the crowning of the queen and the May-pole dances, Miss Ethel Thornton will give a reading from Uncle Remus stories.

As the band begins to play all the children on the grounds are invited to come under the ribbons and join in the grand march led by William Disbro and Miss Elizabeth Lovett. Sweet and inspiring May songs will be sung by the children of the seventh and eighth grades of the public schools under the leadership of Miss Harralson.

After the chorus the coronation train will enter from Mrs. Lucian Harris' flower garden. The knights will enter two and two, and are Chandler Harris, Thomas Stokes, Warren Pollard, Orvil Floyd, Howard Crumley, Howard Arnold. Miss Frances Stokes, a beautiful girl and last year's queen, will enter with her maid of honor, Miss Elva Kuton, followed by Clifford Smith, scepter-bearer. Then the queen's maids will be met by her knights at the stage, going up together to salute the queen of last year, who is on the throne awaiting the real queen. The maids are Katherine Harris, Lucile Price, Sara Colcord, Kirby Willingham, Mary Crusell, Margie Kurfus.

The little flower girls and pages will enter. They are: Elizabeth Body, leader; Angel Allen, Frank Smith; Ruth Johnson, Jack Poole; Rose Wagner, Edward Bunn; Mary Harris, John Sanders; Helen Beasley, Howard Arnold. Charles Ward will carry the white satin pollow bearing the crown of rosebuds. The queen enters with Brevard Montgomery and Newton McEachern carrying the canopy of snowballs over her. After the crowning ceremonies the May-pole dances will be given. Sandwiches, ice cream, lemonade, candy, cake and ginger bread will be served. Attractive booths and merry maids will be on the ground. Souvenirs enough for all.

Christening Service.

Made very unusual by the presence of the representatives of four generations was the sweet and attractive christening service of Frances Olivia, the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Marshall Holsenbeck Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Andrew J. Kiser, 825 DeKalb avenue, Inman Park.

The four representatives are the great-grandmother, Mrs. Frances C. Dixon; grandmother, Mrs. Emma Dixon Kiser; mother, Mrs. Lucile Kiser Holsenbeck and the great grandaughter, Frances Olivia Holsenbeck.

Bishop W. A. Candler officiated, and the baby's sponsors were Miss Marian Holsenbeck and Miss Grace Holsenbeck.

The house was very attractively decorated with ferns, white rosebuds and daisies. Mrs. Holsenbeck, the young mother, was lovely in white, and the infant daughter, representative of two very old families, was very pretty in dainty hand-embroidered christening robe of white mull, trimmed in lace and ribbon.

DeSausseure-Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeSaussuere have issued invitations to the wedding of their sister, Miss Ida DeSausseure to Mr. W. A. Davis, of Savannah, Ga., the marriage to take place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Orris Perry Randall, on the evening of June 4. Mrs. Thomas Edwards Screven will be matron of honor and the bride's brother, Mr. John DeSausseure, will give her away. Dr. C. B. Wilmer, of St. Luke's church, will perform the ceremony, which will be witnessed by only the members of the families.

Miss DeSausseure is a member of the distinguished DeSausseure family, of Charleston, who for generations have been identified with the history of South Carolina. Mr. Davis is also a South Carolinian by birth and a grand-nephew of President Jefferson Davis, of the confederacy.

After a wedding trip Mr. Davis and his bride will make their home in Savannah, where he is well known in business and social life.

For Miss Kinard.

Mrs. John Cleveland Stallworth was hostess at a lovely party on Wednesday afternoon at her home in Sutherland, complimentary to Mrs. Stephen B. Kinard, of Jackson, Ga.

The living room, where the guests were received, was banked with growing plants, while great bowls of pink and white sweet peas were effectively used throughout the apartment, forming a beautiful background for the handsomely gowned women. In the dining room the table had for a centerpiece a large bowl of sweet peas mounted on a mirrored plateau.

Punch was served on the veranda by a bevy of charming young girls. Here palms and ferns were banked in profusion, combining beautifully with the lovely pink rambler which encircles the porch.

At the conclusion of the games a delicious ice course was served at the tables, the ices and mints carrying out in detail the pretty pink and white color scheme.

Mrs. Stallworth wore a white lace gown combined with black satin. Mrs. Kinard was loveley in blue mousaline with which was worn a white leghorn hat with pink roses. Mrs. Stallworth was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. V. J. Masters and Mrs. Pittman Brownlee.

The invited guests were Mrs. G. Carl Combs, Mrs. J. L. Jackson, Mrs. Robert Barrow Youmans and Miss Youmans of College Park, Mrs. Dee Lee Barrett, Mrs. S. J. Stallworth, Miss Ruth Stallworth, Mrs. Will J. Nolan, Mrs. G. W. Brownlee, Mrs. Horace E. Clarke, Mrs. Lee Burk, Mrs. C. L. Barnett, Mrs. Garland Seaborn, Mrs. Tom W. Sims, Mrs. Eugene A. Russell, Mrs. H. W. Callahan, Mrs. Guy Tillman, Mrs. Parvinia Waters, Mrs. Pink Manley, Mrs. Charles Goss, Mrs. Frank W. Scott, Mrs. Joseph Bomar, Mrs. Rivers Reid, Mrs. Joseph D. Grove, Mrs. J. J. Bennett, Mrs. Margana V. Risley, Mrs. Eugene Willingham, Mrs. Hugo Johnson, Mrs. Robert LeRoy Wallace, Mrs. Samuel Benjamin Hardy, Mrs. Cluss Perry Watson, Mrs. Grady Parks, Miss Jennie Tutt, Mrs. Frank Wilkie, Mrs. W. S. At the Driving Club Afternoon and Evening

The Piedmont Driving club yesterday afternoon and evening presented a scene of bright social life when, according to the new program of the summer season, an orchestra of music was on the club porch at 5 o'clock playing until 7 o'clock. Dinner was served many of the guests in parties on the terrace, where each table had as a central decoration a vase of pink roses. The detail decorations were in that color, and the menu served was a delightful one. After dinner the ball room was thrown open and dancing enjoyed, among the new dances being the Viennese waltz.

The club house and grounds never presented a more attractive appearance. The shrubbery and the flower boxes are at their best, and the rambler rose in full bloom almost covers the side of the porch, which extends the length of the ball room.

Among those entertaining parties at dinner last night were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sciple, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Smith, Jr., Mr. James Ragan, Mrs. Marion Smith, Dr. Osborn, Mr. and Mrs. John Morris, Jr., Mr. George D. Pendleton, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Arkwright, Dr. and Mrs. Bates Block, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hall, Mr. Milton Dargan, Jr., Mr. James Harris and Mr. James H. Nunnally. The party included one hundred and twenty-five, and was a most happy one.

Mrs. J. F. Hentrough, of 10 Howard street, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at St. Joseph's Tuesday morning, is doing nicely.

Mrs. Celia Dormer, of Cincinnati, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Louis Saloshin, 198-A Capitol avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Henderson of 853 North Boulevard, announce the birth of twin daughters.

Miss Alline Fielder has returned from Salem, where she has attended school the past year and will leave Thursday for Auburn, Ala., to attend commencement.

Mrs. L. P. Langston is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. I. R. Stone, of Chattanooga, during the confederate reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. David Craig Shephard announce the birth of a son May 21, who has been named John Bradley Shephard.

Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Callahan have returned from a visit in Montgomery and Opelika.

Miss Mary Beazley of Hopkinsville, Ky., is the attractive guest of Mrs. H. E. Johnson, in East Point.

Measure It By Your Musical Desires

The world of music is measured by each human according to his or her musical desires—

Whatever your desire in music the Apollo Player Piano will satisfy. And it will satisfy you—not for one year or two—but for all time.

You must have an instrument with unlimited possibilities, for as the years roll by, your demands in music are bound to grow more and more exacting.

And the limit of the Apollo Player Piano's musical scope is compassed only by the limit of the possibilities of piano music.

Everything — technique — expression — even inspiration enters into the rendition of Apollo music. It accents the melody or omits it altogether playing only the accompaniment. No other player piano ever made can do as much.

The Metronome Motor rewinds the music without pedaling and you can easily transpose compositions into any desired key for accompaniment purposes.

Come in and compare Apollo music with human music. It is the same because it is produced in the same way and by the same methods.

THE ONLY REAL HAIR SAVER AND HAIR GROWER

Price One Dollar at Drug, Hardware and Dep't Stores

Those who have tried the many so-called Hair Tonics, Hair Restorers, Hair Foods, etc., as found in the shops, know they are practically worthless; they don't reach the spot. Prof. Metchnikoff, Europe's greatest Biologist and Scientist, discovered that all Hair and Scalp ailments are due to certain germs or parasites that are propagated in the hair roots, where they feed on the elements that are intended to nourish the hair and supply its color. And he found that these germs could be reached and destroyed only by the Electro-Magnetic-Heat of the ARSENIRON COMP'D, which also cures Dandruff, stops Hair-fall and Itching, prevents Premature Grayness, and changes a "kink" into a "wave."

LIBRARY REPORT SHOWS EXTENSION WORK BEING DONE

What are you doing in library extension work? Have you a circulating library? Do you send books and literature to factory and rural schools? Urge upon your club the importance of this work and send report. I received seven replies. The Atlanta Woman's club sends books to Tallulah Falls and other mountain schools. The Every Saturday club gives much in the way of reading matter to federal prison, settlement work and rural schools.

The Southern Mountain Educational association have a circulating library for the Mineral Bluff school. The Council of Jewish Women are establishing a circulating library at the Jewish Educational alliance, and the Decatur Woman's club maintains a circulating library of 700 volumes with a membership of 358. The other two promised to work next year.

I feel confident that a majority of the clubs are doing well, but I do think we are negligent in responding promptly to club communications. Please be very explicit when you add suggest to my successor that she add to her circular letter the time-honored proverb, "Procrastination is the thief of time."

Georgia Federation Women's Clubs.

Decatur Woman's Club.

The Decatur Woman's club has a membership of seventy-two, of which thirteen came in this year. Our principal work this year has been educational section with the library. We have 700 books and 358 patrons, of whom 104 came in this year. We have taken in $42.50 in contributions and fines—$15 being spent for equipment, and $28 for books. In conjunction with the board of trade we are planning a further and cleaner Decatur this year. We have had an ordinance that every home have a closed garbage pail. They also have ordered that the colored people clean up their premises. We have also have a regular board of health soon. The Georgia railroad has agreed to remodel their station and put walks and drives around it, and to sod the banks along the right-of-way in town.

The courthouse square is being resodded and made into a park and pavements are being put in order. We have had interesting programs this winter. Mrs. Wey gave us talks on students and Miss Cresswell on the canning clubs. Mrs. Sneed our libarian. We have heard speakers from the board of trade and hope to hear next a lecture on social hygiene. Through our efforts drinking fountains have been placed on school lawn and we hope to have a gymnasium in new building, which will be completed by the fall term.

We have given $10 to Tallulah, $5 for students' aid, $5 for federation entertainment, $5 for Sarah Platt Decker Memorial state Federation dues $5, for city federation $1, for incidentals $8.35, for printing constitution revised $11.25, for kindergarten debt $60, for library expenditures $43, making a total of $156.63 expended. We have raised $184.45, which leaves a balance on hand of $28.32.

FOURTH DISTRICT CLUBS HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

The fourth annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs of the fourth district met in Newnan, Ga., May 14. The convention was called to order at 9:40 o'clock by Mrs. W. A. Turner, Jr., president of the Newnan Civic league.

Colonel T. F. Rawls, mayor, made the welcome address for the city, stressing the relation of women to mankind and calling to mind that since the beginning of time woman has always held a recognized place. He spoke of how ladies of Newnan had cleaned up the town, made parks, given pictures to the public schools and of what a pleasure it was to him, as mayor, to co-operate with them. As sister clubs he welcomed the convention to the city, saying the gates were open.

Next came Mrs. T. Z. Atkinson, welcoming the guests for the Newnan Civic league. The theme of her address was urging the ladies to push forward in their work to try and make God's universe as beautiful and as clean as possible, but not let this work take the place of keeping the home for that is woman's first work. Her idea was that in doing civic work it would make a better homekeeper. She reminded us that with every success achieved, we also had a new responsibility.

To the mayor and council of Newnan did she give much praise for the beautiful city, of which they are so proud. She said they always stood ready to give them the helping hand in whatever way it was needed. In conclusion, she again welcomed the guests, saying they (the Civic league) were most happy to have them as their guests.

Miss Maidee Smith, of LaGrange, made the response in behalf of the convention, saying how glad everyone was to be with them, and that for a whole they had looked forward for this day which had at last arrived.

Mrs. Bankston's address.

Next, Mrs. W. Trox Bankston, president of the fourth district, made her farewell address. She told the ladies how much she loved the district, and how she had served to the best of her ability, and of her sports in doing so. She thanked the clubs which federated under her influence. She spoke of, her willingness to co-porate with the future president. And in conclusion, said, quoting from the warm place in her heart for the fourth district.

Mr. Phillip Weltner, secretary of the Prison association, made an impressive talk in regard to organizing a reformatory for wayward girls in Georgia. He said he knew of seventy girls that needed the strong arm of protection. His earnestness impressed the ladies so much that at the close of his address he was called on to tell the ladies what they could do to help. He replied: "By having it in your hearts, talking it and mainly writing the legislators that you want the ladies to demand a reformatory for wayward girls." Everyone present resolved to do what was in their power.

Worsham Discusses Conservation.

Mr. Lee Worsham, of Atlanta, then talked on conservation. He said that Mr. Weltner had just talked on the greatest conservation—that of "Girl Conservation" but as he had so ably discussed that subject, he would go to his. Conservation, he said, had no beginning, but the women are first to call attention to this important text, in lands, minerals forests, natural resources, birds, etc. He said that conservation did not destroy, but it did protect, and was left to the people whether we would help protect. If the people kill the birds, then what becomes of the forests? For we all know of the thousands of insects that live on the trees, and without the birds to eat them, the trees have no protection. Right here in Georgia the pine forests are being killed by some insect, and it remains to be seen what the loss will be to Georgia. He also called the attention of the ladies to the scarcity of the white heron in Georgia, which abounded so plentifully a few years past at Merrett City. But for the sake of adorning the hats these birds have been killed for their beautiful feathers. The fashion has taken from the bird when she was with her young, thus not only killing the mother bird, but destroying her young.

Mrs. Adams, chairman of junior civics, made her report saying quite a number of junior leagues had been organized in the district, and the prospects bright for the future.

Luncheon for Delegates.

At this time the invitation for lunch was extended by Mrs. Turner from the Civic league and Reading club. The lunch was served in the Elk's hall, a beautiful salad course with ice tea, followed by delicious cream and cake.

On returning to the auditorium for the club reports, every lady was in good spirits, having had such a delightful lunch.

The reports were given in order, and were very helpful and interesting. Especially does the club of Carrollton deserve special mention, having planted 350 shade trees through the town, made sidewalks, planted a hedge around the school grounds, made a park and, as they had no mayor and council, they elected one—and a good one—they reported.

After the reports, Mrs. Mary P. Oslin, of West Point, read a note of thanks to the entire city of Newnan for their delightful entertainment for the day.

Officers Are Elected.

Mrs. Mike Powell was made president, and Mrs. Paul Dismukes, of Columbus, secretary. The convention gave Mrs. Bankston a rising vote of thanks for her devotion and work for the district for the past four years, she having always ready to do what she could in every way.

Hogansville's Woman's club federated when the invitation was given. Two invitations were extended for the meeting for next year—Mulbery and Greenville. After discussing the invitations, Greenville was accepted.

The convention adjourned at 5 o'clock, after which the guests were given an automobile ride around the city, returning to the station in time to catch the 6 o'clock train, thus closing one of the most delightful meetings of the district.

Report of East Point Club.

The East Point Woman's club during the year of 1912 has earned above all expenses $298.83, of which $160 has been expended for charity. The library has been increased from 100 volumes to 250 volumes. A club room has been rented and fitted up, and we now meet in our own club quarters

Arbor day has been celebrated, and it is the aim of the club to make this an annual event in the town. Forty-two trees were planted and crated on the principal streets. The club succeeded in having an ordinance passed to protect trees, flowers and lawns and to have all stores screened and have each house to have a closed garbage can.

On annual "clean-up" day a price of 5 cents per hundred for tin cans was offered, and over 14,000 cans were collected. A prize was given to persons collecting most garbage.

The club has offered seven prizes to be given on October 1 for best yards and cleanest yards and one showing most improvements in year.

We are now taking up signboard and telephone and telegraph pole problems. We are fortunate in having support of mayor and council and board of health of the city, who already ready to help us in any work we may undertake.

Third Ward Civic Club.

The Third Ward Woman's Civic club is two years old and has a membership of 300. Our regular monthly meetings are held the first Friday in each month. We are federated with the Georgia federation. We were instrumental in securing a very liberal appropriation for Grant park in 1913. It is our purpose to assist the park board in every way we can.

Our club has indorsed the woman's edition of The Atlanta Constitution, which is to be published in the interest of the Ella F. White memorial fund, and our members have pledged themselves to support this work.

The 17th of April is semi-annual clean-up day of the city federation, but it is our aim to make every day clean-up day in our ward, and thus render assistance to the sanitary department. We are greatly interested in the work of the Tallulah Falls school, and voted to send five dollars to the chairman.

We are in favor of a mothers' pension fund, and have sent a petition to our legislature members, urging the passing of such a bill.

Our club has offered a prize of five dollars for the cleanest-kept yard and sidewalk during the months of June, July and August. Dr. Florence Truss, of our club, has offered a prize of five dollars for the prettiest porch boxes, and we expect great results.

MRS. J. J. JUSTIS, Pres.;
MRS. A. S. WILSON, Sec'y.

Mothers and Teachers Co-Operate.

The Oconee Enterprise has this account of the Mothers' and Teachers' Co-Operative club, of Watkinsville:

"An enthusiastic meeting of the Phoenix club was held in the school auditorium in May.

"The pictures donated to the school by the club as a reward for having planted a tree upon the campus for every pupil were presented by Mrs. S. P. Reaves, president.

"Descriptions of each picture comprising copies of world-famous masterpieces were given by a group of young girls.

"'How the Women of Oconee Can Aid the Schools'" was ably set forth by Rev. J. W. McWhorter, superintendent of Oconee's schools. He urgently appealed to all the ladies of the town to assist him in giving the glad hand of welcome to the teachers and others who are expected to attend the Teachers' Institute in June. He also made an earnest plea for the ladies to cooperate with him in order to make a success of the Institute to be held in Watkinsville in October.

"Resolutions of thanks were given Mrs. McWhorter by Mrs. W. H. Ashley, secretary of the club for his enforcement, as mayor, of sanitary regulations, thereby obviating the necessity of a 'clean-up' day campaign.

"The work of the club women of Georgia are just now engaged, that of getting out a Woman's Edition of The Atlanta Constitution was presented.

"A resume of the year's work was given, followed by the annual election of officers. President, Mrs. S. P. Reaves; vice president, Mrs. A. Bishop; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Mrs. R. H. Smith; recording secretary, Mrs. A. L. Barwick.

"Mrs. Barwick was elected delegate to the district meeting in Covington, May 29, with Miss Katie Downs alternate. Mrs. Reaves will attend as president."

BEES AND HORNETS AS MOTION PRODUCERS

New York, May 24.—A new way to make subway travelers step lively has been discovered by accident. William C. Bauer, a New Jersey aviarist, came to town yesterday with a soap box full of bees and hornets, 400 of the former for a window display at a Harlem store, and 400 of the latter for a druggist who uses them to make medicine from their stingers. He carried on the turnstile ride up town in the subway and all went well until a youth crowded against him and stuck his feet through the top of the box. The result was a record clearance of the bar at the next stop, with scores of people badly stung.

Bauer himself escaped unstung as he had used an oil which neither the bees nor hornets liked.

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL FEATURE OF COUNCIL

Reception on Evening of First Day Was Unusually Brilliant Affair.

By Mrs. Harvie Jordan, State Editor.

This series of articles on the council meeting would be incomplete if no mention was made of the social features of the program.

The social side of the federation is said to find freer expression at the council than in the very large biennial gatherings.

All the occasions of gracious courtesies extended by the city through its representative, Mrs. William E. Andrews were thoroughly enjoyable.

Literally thousands attended the reception on the first evening in the assembly room of the Raleigh hotel.

Officers and directors of the general federation and the local committees were in the receiving line.

Reception at White House.

A still larger crowd attended the reception at the white house, where President and Mrs. Wilson welcomed the delegates.

The members of the art clubs of Washington, the art critic of the art department of the general federation and the members of the art committee received the visitors at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, and members of the literary clubs were intelligent guides through the beautiful congressional library. It was splendid to have these escorts to explain the wonderful works of art in these buildings.

An afternoon was spent in a trip down the Potomac, a courtesy extended by the Washington Chamber of Commerce. Mt. Vernon and Arlington were the interesting points visited.

Baltimore was hostess for the council one day. Five coaches carried the delegates to the Monumental City.

An interesting session was held in McCoy hall, Johns Hopkins university, followed by luncheon at the Country club and a ride around the city.

Classic Drama of Japan.

A most unique occasion was the interpretation of the "No" or the classic dramatic dance of Japan, by Mrs. Odesie Blattner and her daughter. Very unusual motion pictures illustrate this moral drama, while Mrs. Blattner presents the story and Miss Blattner dances. While not so appealing as the Passion play of Ober, it is somewhat similar in many respects, and means just as much to the Japanese.

Smaller functions, but equally as delightful, were the tea at which the Georgia delegates entertained a number of the national officers, and the ride on the monorail between the senate office building and Congressional hall, suggested by our president, Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

Washington Federation Active.

The Federation of Women's Clubs is the national capital is not only working for the betterment of local conditions, but is also giving its attention to such national issues as conservation, rivers and harbors.

Some of the cases for legislative betterment espoused recently were the pension bill for pensioning policemen and policemen, the need of small parks, the national need of pure water, the protection of national forests and vocational training.

Efforts are being made to build a club house in Washington that will be national headquarters for club women.

SPLENDID WORK DONE BY COLLEGE PARK CLUB

At the May meeting of last year the College Park Woman's club instituted a new regime. For years it has been limited to thirty-five and its activities confined to study of literature and history—always, of course, responding to any call made upon us for charitable and social service work. But in the May meeting it was unanimously voted to throw open its doors, make its membership unlimited and institute an entirely different plan of work.

The whole course was arranged in departmental work—the whole being divided in fourteen different departments. We have contributed $58 for educational purposes—coming under this head is a joint scholarship with the R. E. Lee chapter, U. D. C., at the college—and the club is happy in most gratifying results from this scholarship. For the welfare work, the committee of which Mrs. Willingham is chairman, the club has contributed $87.

We have some pride in the fact that we had honorable mention in the sale of Red Cross stamps to assist in stamping out the white plague, having sold $283.40. Our club at present is engaged in assisting in the success of Woman's Edition of The Constitution. We have been entertained on several occasions by able speakers, who interpreted the arts of which he or she was an exponent.

Long on the Way.

(From The London Chronicle).

Schiller once received a letter which took five years to reach him. In 1793 the national convention created the author of "The Robbers" a French citizen as a mark of admiration for the revolutionary ideas expressed in that work. The clerk charged with the dispatch of this civic diploma addressed the cover to "Citoyen Gille," and Schiller did not receive it until 1798. On its receipt he wrote: "This document has come to me from the kingdom of the dead. Danton and Claviere attested it. The covering letter is signed by Roland. All three have passed away."

"What did you think of the dinner party last night?"

"It was the most daring bareback performance that I ever attended; and as for your niece, she outstripped all her competitors!"

GEORGIA IS READY FOR BOLL WEEVIL

Strains of Cotton Developed That Will Resist "Black Root," and Partially Nullify Cotton Insect.

The state department of entomology has rendered no more far-reaching or efficient service to Georgia than in devising methods to meet the coming attack of the Mexican cotton boll weevil, with the same aim develop strains of cotton that will successfully resist "black root" or the "wilt" disease, which has proven so destructive to cotton, particularly in south Georgia.

This fact is prominently brought out in the annual report of State Entomologist E. Lee Worsham, just submitted to the commissioner of agriculture for transmission to the legislature.

Conditions in Georgia have made this problem a peculiarly difficult one, because the early maturing varieties of cotton, in which have been found the only practicable safeguard against the boll weevil, were all discovered to be peculiarly susceptible to the "black root" disease, which had reached the point of destroying a million dollars' worth of cotton in south Georgia every year.

Will Mature Early.

With the aid of capable assistants, especially A. C. Lewis, of his staff, Mr. Worsham went to work early on this problem, and now reports that next season the department will be ready to distribute seed that are wilt-resistant and mature early enough to avoid the boll weevil in a large measure.

Notwithstanding the fact that this is perhaps the most valuable agricultural development for Georgia in the last decade, the process is one susceptible of far greater improvement than has yet been attained; and under the direction of the department of entomology it will be carried on until the solution is completed.

The department makes no claim to having completely nullified the anticipated attack of the boll weevil, which is expected to make its first appearance in the extreme southwestern counties this year. But whatever it may be called there is no question that the department has succeeded in developing a strain of cotton that will, in a large measure, overcome the attack of this insect through early maturing and, at the same time, resist the disastrous "black root" disease.

Develop Hybrid Cotton.

In connection with its experiments along these lines, one of the important developments of the department was the development of a hybrid cotton of the long staple variety, which can be successfully grown through south Georgia and which, it is said, can be used in the course of time to take the place of Sea Island cotton. At last season's prices, this staple would be worth from 18 to 20 cents a pound.

Widespread and a growing interest in cotton breeding has been another result of this work by the department of entomology. Cotton breeders' clubs have been organized in twenty-five south Georgia counties, and these have been proven a great source of inspiration to the farmers in the selection of their own cotton seed for planting, instead of paying from 8 to $4 a bushel for it.

In his report Mr. Worsham particularly calls attention to the necessity for active and efficient co-operation among all state institutions and agencies working along agricultural lines. The advantage and benefit to the farmer are the paramount object of all of these agencies, he wants and urges that they should work together in the entire state, and that the results of directions given the farmers, hundreds of thousands of dollars were saved during the summer in the attacks of cotton, the army worm and cotton caterpillar.

Farmers' meetings were held in various sections of the state, and specific directions given by Mr. Worsham on cotton insects at the cotton school held at the state college of agriculture in January. The department has agreed to co-operate actively at every possible point with other agencies working along agricultural lines, so that the farmer may profit to the fullest extent. One instance noted was the procuring for south Georgia farmers of arsenate of lead at actual cost during the outbreak of army worm and cotton caterpillar.

Experiments Are Conducted.

When it is known that insect pests and plant diseases cost the farmers and fruit growers of the state $30,000,000 in 1912, the importance of experiments looking to destroying these pests will be better understood. Experimental stations are maintained where the experiments can be conducted under the best conditions. Experiments on insects and diseases that attack the apple and peach are conducted in Habersham county near Cornelia. Experiments on the mole cricket are conducted on St. Simon's island, by Dr. Herrick. Experiments on insects and diseases of the pecan tree are conducted at DeWitt in the pecan growing section.

Results of these experimentation have been the discovery and development of many valuable remedies for keeping down and, in some instances, the eradication of these pests.

The department issues from time to time many valuable bulletins dealing with plant and tree insects and diseases and their treatment, which it distributes to the farmers free of cost.

Considering its limited appropriation the department has, unquestionably, done a great work. The legislature will be asked to increase the appropriation this year to the end that the work may be made still more extensive and effective.

BIG BOOST STARTED FOR CANDLER COUNTY

Advocates Say It Will Develop a Fine Agricultural Section of South Georgia.

Although little heard from, so far, the movement to establish the new county of Candler, in southeast Georgia, is said to be one of the livest and most strenuous efforts in the direction of new county establishment that has been made in Georgia in the last decade.

F. H. Sills, editor of the Metter Advertiser, who is secretary of the new county committee, was in Atlanta today, and when asked about what had been done in the campaign for the establishment of Candler county, replied:

"We are just working along quietly. Our committee has its eyes open, and at the proper time we feel that we will be able to make the satisfactory and effective showing to the legislature."

When pressed, Mr. Sills admitted that some pretty strenuous work has been done in a quiet way in behalf of the Candler county movement, and he is confident that with the progress which has been made. The other members of the committee are Dr. B. D. Jones, chairman; A. J. Bird, treasurer; and J. R. Sills, assistant secretary. The organization is not a large one, but it is said to be one of the best working bodies yet organized with this object in view.

Favored by the People.

Mr. Sills said that 99 per cent of the people in the territory proposed to be included in the new county, which seeks to take in parts of Emanuel, Tattnall and Bulloch, are strongly in favor of the movement, and that it will have practically no opposition whatever from this section.

The territory is an extremely rich one, but largely undeveloped. Its lack of development has been due to the fact that it is in rather remote sections of the counties from which it is sought to be taken, and they have not given it the attention which it merits.

Should the new county movement succeed, its advocates claim that it will mean the almost immediate and splendid development of one of the richest agricultural areas in southeast Georgia.

QUESTION

Hammock swinging 'neath the trees,
Stirred by every passing breeze,
Red and ragged, all the rage,
Of what use this year are you?

ANSWER.

Last year, when I was still new,

This year, though I'm old and staid,
I'm the cradle for their babies.

BIEDERWOLF LEAVES WITH PANAMA PARTY

For a three weeks' trip to Panama and Central America, a party of Presbyterians who came to Atlanta for the assemblies left Friday afternoon, going to New Orleans, where they sail Saturday on the steamer "Aztnas."

In the party were people from Ohio, Indiana, North and South Carolina, New Jersey, Georgia, Virginia and Illinois. Among the tourists were the famous evangelist, Dr. W. H. Biederwolf, and his singer, Mr. Weston. They are planning to hold a revival series in the city of Colon while in the zone.

Dr. George A. Beattie, who planned the excursion, was not able to go, having been called east to attend Union college commencement, to receive a degree from his alma mater and be present at his class reunion, which is held only once every ten years.

"BIG TIM" SULLIVAN RECOVERS HIS HEALTH

New York, May 24.—Reports that "Big Tim" Sullivan, the east side political leader, may claim his seat in congress again, are current among his friends here. It is said that he has made rapid strides toward the recovery of his health since his recent release from a sanitarium at Yonkers. He is now at the home of a brother-in-law with the progress which has been made. The other members of the committee are Dr. B. D. Jones, chairman; A. J. Bird, treasurer; and J. R. Sills, assistant secretary. The organization is not a large one, but it is said to be one of the best working bodies yet organized with this object in view.

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given but only initials or fictitious name will be published. Unsigned prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Morris" asks: "I have suffered with a chronic cough for almost a year, and catch a fresh cold every few weeks. Nothing the doctor gives me has relieved me."

Answer: You need a thorough laxative cough syrup, one that not only relieves but surely drives it from you. The following prescription used will cure any curable cough or cold promptly. Nine of each dose will also affect my eyes. Sip, breath is awful, as I have a severe case of catarrh of the head and throat."

Answer: I receive daily hundreds of letters from people who have suffered as you do and who have been cured with the following prescription: Make a wash by mixing one-half teaspoonful of Villans powder, which you can purchase from any druggist in 2 oz. packages, and add to this one pint of warm water, use this in the nostrils daily to thoroughly cleanse them. A catarrh balm should be used with this. This is made by mixing one teaspoonful of Villans powder with one ounce of lard or vaseline and apply well up into the nostrils twice a day. If you will follow these directions all symptoms will disappear. Be sure to get the genuine Villans. It should, however, be used occasionally to prevent a return of the disease.

"C. G." writes: "If you know of anything that will cure dandruff. Nothing scalp and premature baldness, please let me know what it is."

Answer: For several years I have prescribed plain yellow ointment as superior to anything known for the treatment of diseased scalp. Get it in four-ounce jars with full directions. It quickly overcomes all diseases of hair and scalp and gives new vigor and intense natural color to the hair. Try it fairly and you will advocate its use for your friends.

"Mildred" writes: "I am constantly embarrassed by the appearance of my extreme slimness. I have absolutely no color in my face or lips, and I am dull and lifeless most of the time. Please advise me what to do."

Answer: If you are so thin and pale and your lips and cheeks colorless it is because your blood is deficient in red corpuscles. This can be easily overcome by the use of three-grain hypo-nuclene tablets, which can be had from any druggist in sealed cartons with full directions for taking. When the blood is enriched by the use of these tablets your color will increase, the color will come back into your face and lips, and it will improve your whole system so that you will become strong and healthy.

"Dixie" writes: "I suffer with rheumatism all the time and I shall be very glad if you can tell me something to relieve me."

Answer: I can give you a prescription which will not only relieve but will cure your rheumatism. This is my favorite remedy and from the number of letters received from people who have used it I believe it is the best known. The following is made by mixing well: Fluid extract of prickly ash, 1 dram; fluid extract of poke root, 1 dram; fluid extract of stillingia, 1 dram; fluid extract of yellow dock, 1 dram; fluid extract of cascara aromatic, 1 dram; fluid extract of sarsaparilla comp.,

THOMAS FELDER BRANDS THE CHARGES OF BRIBERY AS DIABOLICAL CONSPIRACY

Thomas B. Felder, the Atlanta lawyer who is accused of having offered a bribe for an affidavit of J. W. Coleman, stepfather of Mary Phagan, now in the possession of the police, yesterday issued the following statement: To the People of Atlanta:

The publication of the sensational "story" in The Atlanta Journal on yesterday afternoon relating to myself and my connection with the Phagan case is but the symptom or manifestation of one of the most diabolical conspiracies ever hatched by a venal and corrupt "system" to protect crime in a murder case.

To be more specific, this conspiracy was formed just after the arrest of Newt Lee and Leo Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan. The controlling genius of it is Newport Lanford, chief of the city detectives; its object is to shield and protect the murderers of Mary Phagan, and in its wicked ramifications it marks our distinguished (?) chief of detectives as the Lieutenant Becker of our "system," and renders his co-conspirators as dangerous to the lives, liberty, property and reputation of our citizens as the bloody and deadly Society of the Mafia.

Part Played By Papers.

Pity it is that the press of the city has been and is being made the innocent, if effective, instrument in their hands to further and effectuate the object of this wicked conspiracy by prostituting their potential columns to the exploitation of the mass of forgeries and perjuries which has been given to the public through their columns, for be it known that these papers have tacitly sanctioned the utterances of Colyar by reproducing his affidavits in the face of the fact that the editors and proprietors of all would without hesitation swear that they would not believe him on oath if called upon to do so. Strangely enough, a portion of the criminal record of this man Colyar is reproduced, showing him to be a man steeped in crime and infamy, while in the parallel column is published his defamatory utterances against me.

I would have the good people of this community know that from the day and hour of the arrest of Lee and Frank, charged with the murder of little Mary Phagan, Newport Lanford and his co-conspirators have left "no stone unturned" in their efforts to shield and protect these suspects, and I shall demonstrate later the truth of this statement with so much clearness that "he who runs may read."

Winked At Forgeries.

In furthering and effectuating this conspiracy they have suborned perjury, winked at forgeries and, in short, employed every agency that low and depraved criminal instincts could contrive and conjure up. In their frantic efforts to shield the murderers of this girl "Lieutenant Becker" Lanford secured the services of A. S. Colyar, Jr., whose criminal record was known to the "lieutenant," but whose services he willingly availed himself of.

Having premised this much, I shall now address myself to the task of disposing of "Lieutenant" Lanford's "Man Friday," A. S. Colyar.

About two and one-half years ago, while I was engaged in a controversy with the criminal and vagabond governor of the state of South Carolina, a prominent citizen of Atlanta, a client and friend of mine, whose name I withhold because he is not now in the city and I have been unable to reach him over the phone, but whose name will be given later, called at my office, and, discussing this controversy, said that he knew a man by the name of A. S. Colyar, Jr., sometimes lawyer, detective, newspaper man, etc., who had spent some time in the state of South Carolina, and who was in possession of valuable information touching that situation.

Brought Colyar To My Office.

He afterwards brought this man Colyar to my office, and after discussing the matter with him at length, I reached the conclusion that he was thoroughly undependable, and the interview closed. Afterwards, he was sent to the state of South Carolina, to obtain the information, and forwarded to me three affidavits which seemed to establish conclusively that the governor of that state had been engaged in criminal practices. Upon a careful examination of these affidavits, I discovered that the jurats attached to the three affidavits were all upon separate sheets, attached to what purported to be the genuine affidavits. This aroused my suspicions, and I sent a trusted clerk from my office to the state of South Carolina to personally interview the affiants, with the result that he was informed by them that this man Colyar had represented to them that they were heirs at law to a considerable estate in Tennessee, and that if they would make an affidavit stating who they were, he would see that they got their respective inheritances without cost, indeed, that he was sent to them for that purpose, whereupon the affidavits were prepared, and it developed that afterwards Colyar detached the jurats attached to the genuine affidavits and attached them to the spurious affidavits which he furnished. These affidavits are now in my files and are subject to the inspection of anyone who may be interested. It is needless for me to add that I have never made public information touching this matter in connection with the charges of criminal conduct lodged against the vagabond governor of South Carolina.

Met Colyar In Chattanooga.

Afterwards I met this man Colyar accidentally in the city of Chattanooga, and when I confronted him with the fact that he had forged these affidavits, he freely confessed the forgery to me, and stated that he had been reduced financially to dire extremities, and that he had forged the affidavits in order to get money from the gentleman who had introduced him to me. I respectfully submit that after this experience with this man it does not seem reasonable that I would entertain respect for him, much less repose confidence in him.

On Sunday afternoon, while engaged in a conference at my home with parties interested in the Phagan case I received a telephone message, and was informed that the party speaking was A. S. Colyar, Jr. He stated to me that he was important for him to have an interview with me during the afternoon or evening of Sunday. I made an appointment to meet him at my office at 8:15 o'clock. I met him by appointment. Knowing the man's character, I telephoned Mr. Tobie, of the William M. R. D. Miles, my friend and client, to come to my office

Sleuths Suppress Evidence.

In my conversation with Colyar, he stated to me that the city detective force was engaged in suppressing evidence in the Phagan case; that they were in a conspiracy with the Pinkertons, who had been employed to investigate this case by Frank, one of the suspects, and that they had entered into a conspiracy to thwart the efforts of the Burns agency and myself in the investigations in progress; that he overheard a conference between Lanford and a Pinkerton agent who was employed in the case by Frank to the effect that it was important to circumvent the efforts of the Burns agency and prevent establishing the guilt of the murderer or murderers; that on the morning of the Sunday evening Lanford had secured an affidavit to be prepared and dated back, and had forced Mr. and Mrs. Coleman to sign it under threats and duress, repudiating my employment; that Lanford had arrested a negro by the name of Connelly, as I remember, and had held him at the police station for two or three weeks, and had forged a confession of the negro to the effect that he himself had killed Mary Phagan, and that Newt Lee and Frank were neither participants in the murder or had knowledge thereof; that in order to discredit the Burns agent, the solicitor's office and myself, they had framed up affidavits charging the solicitor general, the Burns agent and myself with corruption, and that at the opportune time these would be given to the public through hand bills.

Would Not Accept Statement.

I stated to Colyar that I would not accept his statements even under oath, and that if he had any documentary evidence establishing the fact that these parties were engaged in a conspiracy to suppress evidence, I would like to see it, whereupon he handed me the original Coleman affidavit, that purported to be a copy of the confession of the negro Connelly, what purported to be an original affidavit in relation to the solicitor general, and also two affidavits purporting to be an original affidavit that one of the leading newspapers of the city had been bribed by the suspects or their friends.

In this conversation he told me that he had original affidavits establishing the immorality of the chief of police and the chief of detectives, and that they were guilty of acts involving moral turpitude, and he specified the acts, but it is not necessary to give these to the public at this time, but they will be published later.

Relation to Phagan Case.

I stated to him that I was not interested in the moral and official derelictions of the chief of police and chief of detectives, except in so far as they might relate to the suppression of evidence in the Phagan case. He thereupon asked me if the mayor of the city was interested in obtaining this evidence. I told him that I was not in the confidence of the mayor; that I had not spoken with him for months, but that if he was interested in the exposure of official rottenness in the various city departments, he would be a strange and unnatural official, and that I would bring the matter to his attention, which I afterwards did.

On the following day Colyar called me over the phone and asked me if I would meet him and some friend of his who had knowledge of the facts heretofore adverted to in conference. I stated to him that I was coming into the city on Monday evening, and would meet them at my office. I met Colyar and a young man by the name of Feburary at my office, according to appointment. The interview of Monday evening developed in substance and effect what was developed on Sunday evening, together with the additional fact that young Feburary stated that he had been used so much by the chief of police and chief of detectives in carrying out their projects of suppression that he was sick and tired of the job and would like very much for me to assist him in getting other employment; that if I would assist him he would willingly turn over to me all documents, files, etc., going to show that the parties were engaged in suppressing evidence in the Phagan case, and that while they were ostensibly working for the city and for the interest of the people, that they were really working in conspiracy with the Pinkertons—the employees of Frank—to shield and protect Frank.

Showed Me Affidavits.

He also exhibited to me numerous affidavits, documents, etc., purporting to be evidence of the official corruption of the two chiefs. Among othe documents submitted were two lists which he claimed that he prepared in Chief of Police Beavers and Chief of Detectives Lanford, purporting to contain a list of blind tigers and immoral houses which were under the protection of these departments, and from which they received monthly payments for this alleged protection. I made it plain to both of these parties that I had no interest whatever in any of these documents except such as might tend to establish the fact that they were suppressing evidence in the Phagan case.

They asked me if in my judgment they could be indicted and punished if they turned over this evidence to the mayor or his agents. I gave it as my judgment that they could not, and that even if they could they would not be; that I had too much confidence in the mayor of the city of Atlanta, in the prosecuting attorney of the circuit, of the criminal court and of the governor, as a last resort, to believe that any of these officials would suffer them to be punished if they made of themselves instrumental means of exposing the colossal corruption which they represented existed in the various departments of the city government.

This conference lasted one hour and fifteen minutes. Just before it drew to a close Colyar asked me if I would be willing to pay to him and Feburary $1,000 for this documentary evidence.

Not Willing To Play.

I told him emphatically that I would not. He then asked me if I thought the mayor of the city would be willing to pay to him and Feburary $1,000 for this evidence, and to prevent the penitentiary with as good a position as the one he now held, upon the delivery of the evidence to them. I told him that I entertained no doubt that if they could furnish the mayor with the evidence conclusively establishing the guilt of Beavers and Lanford, the mayor, through the public-spirited citizens of the town, would be willing to raise the sum of money and give it over to them for the documentary evidence. This ended my interview upon this occasion.

On the following morning I received a telephone communication from this man Colyar asking me if I would come to his room at the Williams house at 1 o'clock. I told him that I had an engagement. He asked me when it would be convenient for me to meet him. I stated at 3:30, so as the appointed time I called upon him at his room at the Williams hotel. While there I met Feburary. My interview with them lasted perhaps ten minutes, as I was back in my office before 4 o'clock to meet an appointment having stopped en route for at least ten minutes to receive a treatment from my throat specialist.

I shall demonstrate in an affidavit attached to this card, and made a part thereof, that the alleged dictagraph stuff is manufactured.

In my brief interview with these parties at the Williams house, I stated to them that I would not pay them a cent for the documents that they had in their possession establishing the moral turpitude of the chief of police and Chief Lanford; that I had no interest in this branch of the controversy, and that I had declined employment in this branch of the controversy; but I stated to them that I had talked with the mayor and that I had made an appointment with Mr. Miles, who was making some investigations for the mayor, at my office at 4 o'clock, and that I would send him over to see them.

When I arrived at my office at 4 o'clock, Mr. Miles and Mr. Tobie, of the Burns National Detective agency, were awaiting me, and I gave Mr. Miles a note of introduction to this man, Colyar, which, I am informed, was presented. On the day after Mr. Miles asked me if I would object to accompanying him to Lakewood for a conference with Colyar and Feburary. I stated to him that I unconditionally declined, and would advise him to do likewise, and he acted upon my advice. I stated to him further that I knew I had any business with me, they could conduct it at my office, but, as I understood the situation, I had no business with them.

If I had consented to pay money for this evidence I could have quit it either on Sunday or Monday night, and all of the documents would have been turned over to me.

Statement Is Absurd.

The statement contained in the affidavits of this man Colyar that I solemnly stated that I offered them $1,000 for the Coleman affidavit is too absurd to justify a denial. Why would I pay $1,000 for this affidavit when it was within the power of the conspirators to obtain another affidavit within five minutes after the surrender of this affidavit to me? In this connection I desire to state that in my career at the bar, covering a quarter of a century, I have never, directly or indirectly, sought employment in any case—civil or criminal. I have never found it necessary to resort to bartering to keep busy in my profession. It is inconceivable that I, or any other reputable lawyer, would seek employment to prosecute a man for murder.

I was employed in the Phagan case by a committee of citizens residing in the vicinity of the family of the Phagan girl. My contract of employment is in writing, and duly signed by my employers. I do not give in this connection a copy of the contract and the name of the signers, for the very obvious reason that with their names in possession of "Lieutenant Becker" Lanford and his co-conspirators, my clients would immediately become the objects of attack at the hands of the "system." The contract above referred to was made with my law firm, Felder, Anderson, Dillon & Whitman, and is in our files and open to the inspection of any decent citizen at any time.

How Felder Was Employed.

In addition to this employment, we were employed by a committee of prominent and distinguished ladies in the city of Atlanta to aid in this investigation. The names of these ladies are withheld from publication for obvious reasons. I have never said, and I do not now say, that I was ever employed either by Mr. or Mrs. Coleman, but I do say that on Friday afternoon —the date I do not remember—but it being the day upon which the coroner's inquest was to be held at the police barracks, I was called over the phone by one of the gentlemen who employed me in the case and asked to come down to the barracks. I immediately repaired to the barracks and stated to my client that I felt a delicacy in appearing at the coroner's inquest unless my employment was approved by the parents of the deceased girl. I was thereupon introduced to Mr. Coleman, and explained to him my feelings in the matter. He stated to me that he had no money to employ counsel; that he appreciated the unselfish act of his neighbors in their effort to assist in the prosecution, and so far as he was concerned, my employment met with his approval; but being the stepfather of the young lady, he would prefer not to ratify my employment in public, but would ask his wife to come to my office on the following day to the end that she would ratify the same. On the following day Mr. and Mrs. Coleman of New York without seeing the mother of Mary Phagan, and was absent from the city for ten days.

I entertain the same feeling now that I did then, namely, I feel a delicacy in participating in the case without the approval of the parents of the deceased girl, although I am urged to do so by my clients and many of the best people in the city of Atlanta. In this connection, I desire to submit for the consideration of the right-minded people of this city, the statement that my employment in this case was never brought into question until the criminal investigator of Mr. Burns appeared on the scene.

On Sunday following his appearance "Lieutenant Becker" Lanford dictated an affidavit in his office. Mr. Feburary, not in the presence of either Mr. or Mrs. Coleman, and without knowing what they would be willing to sign in relation to the matter, and hurriedly repairing to the home of the Colemans coerced them into signing the same, as I am informed, by threats that if they or either of them refused the connection of Mr. Burns or myself with the case, they would take no further interest in the matter.

Burns Well Indorsed.

The character of William J. Burns for honesty and courage is too well established in the American union to need indorsement at my hands. The insinuation emanating from "the city detective department that he could be hired to betray a trust, and industriously circulated by them, needs no contradiction or refutation at my hands. A sufficient answer to this vile insinuation is that there was no time during the McNamara investigation, if Burns was purchasable, that he could not have received to call off the case a million dollars flat. This fact is known to all men who are familiar with the current events appertaining to that investigation. Moreover, I deem it the work of supererogation to enter a denial in my own behalf to the base insinuation that I have been employed in conjunction with Burns by the Jews of the city to assist in shielding Frank from prosecution. I have never conferred with any Jew upon this subject, and in behalf of the Jews, who constitute a large and most respectable element of our population, I desire to brand the insinuation as a vile, baseless slander, promulgated by the city detectives as a part of the conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice in this case.

The statement that Tobie had an appointment at my office for a conference with Messrs. Hirsch, Meyers and Greenstein is a figment of the disordered and distempered imagination of "Lieutenant Becker" Lanford and his "Man Friday," A. S. Colyar, Jr.

Mr. Joseph Hirsch needs no defense at my hands from this vile and baseless insinuation. He has lived a long and honored life in this community, and I gravely doubt if there is a man, woman or child in it who would unbelieve any man who stated on oath that Joseph Hirsch would do a dishonorable thing to shield either Jew or Gentile, much less enter into a conspiracy to bribe and corrupt lawyers and detectives who are engaged in an honest effort to establish the guilt of a murderer. Let me put this question frankly to the people of Atlanta:

Is it not passing strange that the city detective department, whose wages are paid by the taxpayers of this city, should "hob-nob" daily with the Pinkerton Detective Agency, an agency confessedly employed in this investigation to work in behalf of Leo Frank; that they would take this agency into their daily and hourly confidence, and expose in it their confidence, and co-operate with it in every way possible, and withhold their cooperation from W. J. Burns and his able assistants, who are engaged by the public and for the public in ferreting out this crime.

What Is The Purpose?

What is the purpose of the city detective department in violently assailing me and this agency, if it is not to protect the real criminal in this case? What motives inspired them in their almost superhuman efforts to hinder, circumvent and defeat the efforts of this great agency in locating the criminal or criminals in this case? From the moment that Leo Frank and Newt Lee were placed under arrest the city detectives, or a majority of them if am advised and believe that there are several good and honest men on the detective force, have been engaged in a systematic effort to destroy all tangible evidence against the suspect. When they discovered that the note that was found by the body of the dead girl, and which constitutes, or should, the "Rock of Gibraltar" of the evidence in this case, and which would have been promptly placed for safekeeping in a safety deposit vault, was turned over to a reporter of one of the papers who had the custody of this note for several days, and when it was demanded by the able solicitor general of the circuit, it was only forthcoming after a diligent search.

I was informed by Messrs. Colyar and Feburary that shortly after the murder the city detectives arrested a negro by the name of Connelly and kept him in close confinement for several weeks, and that they extorted from him a written confession that he, and not Frank, was the perpetrator of this crime, and the further confession that the negro had been prompted to write this note that was found by the body of the deceased, thereby destroying the effect of any evidence that might be introduced in this case to show that Frank was the author of the note so found.

Thereafter, on the day the grand jury was convened for the purpose of investigating the charges against Frank and Lee, "Lieutenant Becker" Lanford furnished the press of the city an affidavit which he had secured from a woman of questionable veracity, and character, containing the recital that between the hours of 9 and 10:30 on the fatal evening Frank called her over the phone several times, importuning her to permit him to see this girl between the hours of twelve and one on Saturday, and further to establish the fact that the girl was in life between the hours of 6:30 and 10:30 p. m., thus enabling Frank to establish by positive and conclusive proof an alibi.

Hour by hour, day by day and step by step, has the man Lanford headed all of his energies and efforts to the single purpose of diverting suspicion from the accused in this case and throwing it upon the shoulders of his protection. I have neither the time or the disposition to discuss at length the affidavits introduced in the press of the city made by Colyar and Feburary. As to these, I deem it only necessary to say that they are false from beginning to end.

As to the so-called dictagraph, I wish to say that I shall demonstrate that this is either manufactured and fabricated, or was so grossly revised and changed by the stenographer who took the notes, if a dictagraph was in fact used, which I doubt, as to greatly impair if not completely destroy the meaning of what was said on the occasion referred to. To begin with, it is impossible for the conversation imputed to me to have occurred and been transcribed in less than an hour. As I have stated heretofore in this article, I left my office at 3:30 p. m., stopping en route to have my throat treated by a throat specialist, which consumed from twelve to fifteen minutes.

Colyar is quoted in the alleged dictagraph report as illustrating the impossibility that the so-called dictagraph report could be genuine. The following is an instrument that records conversations with exactitude and any expert can instantly detect the genuine from the spurious. Walle this purported conversation is permeated with evidences of its being a frame-up, I think it will be sufficient to call the attention of the public to only two extracts therefrom to illustrate what I have stated.

Colyar is quoted in the alleged dictagraph report as follows: "But I said this young man does not want to lose his position." I am quoted as answering "Well, he says, tell him for me that I will give him a position today just as good as the one he has." It will be observed that my answer, instead of being in the first person, singular number, is in the second person, singular number, thereby clearly establishing that it is a frame-up.

The next illustration: Felder: "Well, you understand I do not want the papers unless they are evidence enough to put Lanford and Beavers out of business." Colyar made the answer as follows: "Now, Colyar says, you say that you have got the papers that will put them out." This alleged colloquy, reported from the dictagraph between Colyar and myself, clearly demonstrates that it is a frame-up.

In conclusion, permit me to say that I have written the above and foregoing pages under great difficulties. I have been constantly interrupted during the day by diligent newspaper reporters and by friends throughout the city and state assuring me that they are ready to aid in exposing the conspirators in their efforts to prejudice Burns and myself and to protect the murderer or murderers of Mary Phagan. Owing to the interruptions, I have only been able to devote some fifteen or twenty hours to the task of writing this statement. In a later communication, which I will furnish the press for publication, I expect to go into details in respect of the alleged corrupt practice of the heads of the several departments at the police station. Their many acts of moral turpitude are well known to numerous citizens of the city of Atlanta, and to them my recital will be no news.

I pledge the good people of Atlanta to address myself at an early date assiduously to the task of not only fully exposing all of the conspirators, but to bring about their impeachment upon proceedings that I expect to institute looking to this end, and if I am successful in "scourging them from the high places," I shall regard it as not only a great service rendered to a graft-ridden people, but the greatest achievement of my professional career.

BENJ. N. BOGUE

OF INDIANAPOLIS

The Man Who Cures

STAMMERING

Was laughed at twenty years ago because he stammered.

Now Recognized the World Over as a Public Benefactor, Will Give Free Advice to All

STAMMERERS

From the time Mr. Bogue began to talk in mere childhood he was afflicted so badly with stammering he was almost speechless.

His days were embittered throughout his early life. The trouble grew worse with the years, and finally compelled him to leave college, when, as a young man, he gave promise of becoming a brilliant scholar. He could not recite when called upon, even though he knew perfectly well what he desired to say. He could not get employment because he could not ask for it without revealing his infirmity, then they did not want him. Socially it was impossible, because of the faces he made when he tried to converse. His parents spent hundreds of dollars in attempts to correct his speech trouble. He was sent to various institutions and private schools which claimed to be able to cure "Stammering." But they tried and failed. Even mail order "cures," of which he read in the papers. But without avail. He was pronounced a "hopeless case" by emi nent specialists, and went out into the world to pass the balance of his life in gloom. Stammering had taken all the joy out of his childhood. It had marked his youth with sober melancholy. He began to realize that he was slipping away from him, and that the years spreading before him held no hope of better things. Stammering was ruining his life.

With characteristic determination and energy he set about the arduous task of mastering the principles of voice and speech for himself. He studied for years, reading everything that pertained to the subject of voice culture. These principles he applied to his own case, resulting in a complete and permanent cure. Mr. Bogue is today one of the clearest speakers and most fluent talkers in the professional world.

The result of this wonderful scientific achievement soon became known far and wide. It was commented upon in the public press. It put an entirely new light upon the heretofore sadly-neglected subject of Stammering. Mr. Bogue was entreated to do for others afflicted as himself the same service he had rendered himself.

Mr. Bogue has made the cure of Stammering his life profession. He is personally associated with many stammerers every day. He often examines as many as one hundred cases in a single day. He has met, examined and diagnosed, personally, nearly twelve thousand cases during his life; personally and by mail he has diagnosed nearly twenty-one thousand, and he has corresponded with more than one hundred thousand persons who are afflicted with the widespread speech trouble. Through his careful research he has learned all the peculiarities of speech difficulty. He understands every case of stammering. He has probably examined a greater number of more cases than any other man of the present century or at any time during past history. His wide personal experience has made him known in America and in Europe as the foremost authority on Stammering and Stuttering.

Mr. Bogue is the author of several books on Stammering, an educator of note, and the Founder and Principal of the Bogue Institute for Stammerers at Indianapolis, which is always crowded. It operates officially that Stammering cannot be cured in less than from three to five weeks. His method, purely natural, involves no drugs, no medicines, no hypnotism, no surgery. It is simply the application of educational principles to the fundamental causes of Stammering. He has mastered the secrets which underlie defective speech. He has cured hundreds at this institution. The cure is absolutely certain.

A few months ago Mr. Bogue was stopping at the Hollenden Hotel, at Cleveland, where he was attending some personal business. No sooner had his presence become generally known than scores of stammerers called at the hotel to see him and get the benefit of his advice. So great was the crowd that Mr. Bogue was unable to see more than one in every four of those who called.

Recently when Mr. Bogue was in St. Louis, people learning of his visit there traveled upwards of 200 miles to secure the personal opinion, examination and the advice of this famous speech expert.

Mr. Bogue will be at the Piedmont Hotel, Atlanta, May 27th, for one day only, and will meet personally and privately all persons of this vicinity desiring to confer with him on the subject of Stammering who may call between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. and between 7 and 8 o'clock in the evening. He will make a complete examination and thorough diagnosis of each case, and tell whether or not the case can be cured, and if it can, how long it probably will require and how much it will cost.

And, remember, he will not accept a case as a student at his institute unless he is certain that he can effect a positive and permanent cure. But he does not ask a stammerer to take his word for this. He gives a written guarantee, with satisfactory security. Therefore, persons that Mr. Bogue accepts as students assume no risks whatever.

But at this time Mr. Bogue only wants to see every stammerer of this locality face to face, to talk with them personally and to give to them the best of his advice. There will be no charge whatever for consultation or advice for those calling at the Piedmont during Mr. Bogue's stay in Atlanta, which ought to prove of tremendous value to all persons who Stammer or Stutter. Stammerers, without a single exception, should at least call on Mr. Bogue and get a copy of his new book, a valuable volume of 63 pages, explaining the causes and cure of Stammering and Stuttering, which he will give away absolutely free. Mr. Bogue treats every case that is brought to his attention sacredly confidential. No one need have fear of embarrassment or publicity.

Remember, any stammerer can secure the advantage of a private interview with the World's greatest speech specialist without one penny of expense and without the slightest obligation. This is an opportunity that may never come again to the people of Atlanta, and it is expected that scores of stammerers will take advantage of it.

A. Holzman has given a medel to be presented to the member of the senior class who has made the best record in scholarship. The Atlanta chapter of the U. S. Daughters of 1812 has offered a medal for the boy making the greatest improvement in physical culture.

The Harold Hirsch scholarship of $150 cash to the University of Georgia, is to be awarded, and also scholarships to Emory college, Mercer university, University of North Carolina, Washington and Lee, University of the South, Tulane, and $120 scholarship to the University of Chicago.

There will be sixty-five boys to graduate—twenty-five from the classical course, ten from the scientific course and thirty from the business course.

Boys Who Made Good Records.

The members of the graduating class have played an important part in the school life since they first came to the Boys' High school in 1909. Among the boys who have done well in their work and who have made good records are: H. O. Calhoun, who made a good record in his studies and edited The Boys' High School Tattler; Sam Armistead, manager of this year's successful baseball team; Lawrence Fox, who has pitched for the baseball team three years, and who also plays on the football team; Edwin Lochridge, who served one term as president of the Alciphronian Literary and Debating society, and who was given a silver loving cup for his track work; Bascom Torrance, who was president of the Alciphronian Literary and Debating society, and also played second base on the baseball team. In the business course, Eplan and Stanfiel stand foremost.

The members of the graduating class are as follows:

Classical Course—Sam Armistead, Glenn Bell, Herbert Calhoun, Charles Candler, Lamar Carson, Edwin Coolidge, Charles Cotney, Raymond Englett, Spencer Folsom, Lawrence Fox, Evelyn Hamilton, P. B. Holtzendorff, Jr., George Hoyt, Jerome Johnson, Bolling Jones, Wharey Little, Edwin Lochridge, William MacDougall, Arthur Newsshuten, Frank Price, Lewis Rosser, Herbert Sams, James Setze, Arthur Small, Bascom Torrance.

Scientific Course—Robert Bedinger, Lawrence Goldsmith, Eugene Johnson, Guy Lipscomb, John Lopes, Ernest Lowenthal, Roy Manning, Bernard Neal, Pat Seawright, William Wash.

SHOULDER FRACTURED WHEN AUTO HITS BOY

While driving toward the city on Gordon street, near Lee street, Saturday afternoon, J. M. Hooks, negro chauffeur for Alfred Austell, ran into 8-year-old John Treadwell, of 23 Welbert street, and injured him slightly.

When taken to Grady hospital it was found that the little fellow had one shoulder fractured and a number of minor bruises. It is not thought that his injuries will prove serious.

Hooks, who was later arrested, stopped his car immediately upon striking the boy and carried him into a nearby drug store. It is said that Johnny jumped off the sidewalk in front of the car before the chauffeur could apply his brakes.

RISING TEMPERATURE AND CLEAR WEATHER

A slowly rising temperature with clear weather is the official forecast of the local weather bureau for today. The maximum temperature of aSturday was 70 degrees and Sunday's highest mark is expected to rise several degrees above that. General indications throughout the country are for a rising temperature for Monday, with continued clear weather.

The noraml rainfall for May is 3.40 inches, and as 3.10 inches has already fallen and the forecast is for a clear spell of weather, it is believed that the month will end with no more clouds or rain.

WOODMEN OF WORLD OFFICIALS ARE COMING

Gen. John T. Yates, of Omaha, to Make Address Tuesday Evening at Cable Hall.

Several national officials of the Woodmen of the World will reach Atlanta Tuesday.

Hon. Joseph Cullen Root, sovereign commander and General John T. Yates, sovereign clerk of the order from Omaha, Neb., accompanied by Mrs. Yates, will arrive in the city at noon, and will be met at the Terminal station by the local officials of the Atlanta camps, officers of the Uniform Rank companies, and the Georgia Head camp officers and escorted to the Piedmont hotel.

A reception will be tendered them Tuesday evening at Cable Hall by J. C. Root camp, No. 80, assisted by all the other camps of the city and the state officials of the order and their wives.

Dr. F. L. Rosenthal, of Columbus, head consul of Georgia, will make the welcome address on behalf of the 600 camps of Georgia, introducing General Yates, who will be the principal speaker of the evening, followed by Judge Roan and others.

Mr. Yates was one of the co-founders of the Woodmen of the World 28 years ago, and is also now major general of the uniform rank department of the east. General Yates' trip south at this time is purely of a social nature, visiting the larger cities of the state.

Wednesday forenoon will be taken up with automobile rides through the city, and Wednesday evening the officials all leave for Columbus, Ga., their next stop. This southern tour of the Woodmen officials will end at Jacksonville, where the national biennial convention of the order meets early in June. Sunday, June 1, is the annual memorial day of this order, and all graves of Woodmen will be decorated with impressive ceremonies, and all members of the order in this city will assemble in the "Forest" of J. C. Root camp, No. 80, corner of Peachtree and James street, at 3 p. m., and then proceed to the cemeteries.

POSTAL CLERKS PLAN BENEFIT ASSOCIATION

Railway postal clerks living in Atlanta and nearby towns are now arranging through a committee for a general meeting of postal clerks Saturday evening, June 7, at 8 o'clock, at the Railway Young Men's Christian association rooms.

Several days ago a number of the railway postal clerks held an informal gathering at W. G. Travis' home in East Point, during which it was suggested that the postal clerks of the Atlanta district should form a sick benefit association for the immediate relief of the families of the members in case of accident to one of its members.

At the meeting were John Hogan, J. W. H. U. Eastman, F. W. Rooney, W. J. Fuller, W. G. Travis, John Rooney, R. P. Thompson, J. L. Culver, J. F. Bradley, J. O. Jarnett and J. V. Woodruff, all of whom have been riding mail cars out of Atlanta a long time. The benefit association given a full discussion at the Railway Young Men's Christian association rooms.

J. RANDOLPH ANDERSON CONFIDENT OF WINNING

Claims 25 Votes for Senate Presidency—Legislature to Revise State's Finance System.

"I have twenty-five votes practically pledged," said Senator-elect J. Randolph Anderson, of Savannah, who was in Atlanta yesterday. "There is no doubt that I will be the next president of the senate. I do not believe my opponent will poll over ten votes."

Mr. Anderson, it will be remembered, is a candidate for president of the state senate. His chief opponent is Senator John Allen, of Baldwin county. Both have been working hard for the place, and both have many strong supporters.

Finance Revision Coming.

Mr. Anderson talked interestingly about the problems of legislation which would confront the general assembly when it meets next month.

"The leading question which this legislature will have to solve," said Mr. Anderson, "involves the revision of state's system of finance. This problem, I believe, will call for more serious study and more genuine patriotism than any other that will confront us.

"It is idle to talk of the state's insolvency when everyone knows that Georgia is growing richer every year. With the growth of the state, there has come the expansion of the state's educational and elemosynary institutions and the need of more money for their maintenance. That this is not forthcoming is due to the fact that Georgia's method of collecting her taxes is a full generation behind the times. It is as if you should encase a boy in a close-fitting armor of steel and keep him in it until he grew up.

"This question has been discussed for some years, and we have already enacted some remedial measures, such as requiring corporations to pay their taxes six months earlier than formerly and increasing the borrowing power of the governor; but these are only palliative, and do not go to the root of the situation. We want to do away with the perpetual cry that the state is 'broke,' when in truth it is far richer than it ever has been. We want to devise some means to avoid these recurring periods of financial stress, and I believe we will do it this year.

Factionalism Absent

"I feel that there is one thing about the coming legislature for which the state should be congratulated. It is freer from the spirit of factionalism than any legislative body that we have had in seven or eight years. We will have more business done for the state and less politics. The new senate is a particularly well-equipped body of men to tackle legislative problems. Twenty-four of them, more than a majority, have had previous legislative experience, I believe. I have not made such a careful study of the house as have of the senate, but I am confident that it is a good house, and that we will enact a law that will put the state's finance on a more solid basis than it has ever been."

Savings of School Girls Are Offered to Hunt for Murderer of Mary Phagan

Echoing over Georgia, the cry of "justice" has reached the town of Williamson, and stirred the hearts of two little school girls to resentment at the unavenged murder of Mary Phagan.

Their names are Vivian Drewry and Frances Dingler, and together they have collected $3.35 from their savings, which they have sent to The Constitution, asking that it be used to help find the murderer. The money will be placed by The Constitution where it will serve some useful purpose in tracing the evidence in the case.

The letter of the two little girls bears a pathetic note of human interest, as it reflects the intense desire of all Georgia to see justice done in this famous murder mystery.

Their letter is as follows:

"To the Editor of The Constitution.

"Dear Mr. Editor: We are only two small little schools girls of Williamson, and just feeled like doing some good to help out in bring justice to the gility party or parties who murded the dear little girl Mary Phagan. Enclose find small amount from us to help pay for the man on the case to find the gility party. Wishing you success and triumph, your little friends,

VIVIAN DREWRY, and FRANCES DINGLER."

PRESBYTERIANS THANK ATLANTA POSTMASTER

Postmaster Hugh McKee is in receipt of the following letter from Jere A. Moore, secretary of the executive committee of the general assembly of Presbyterians recently held in this city:

"Hugh McKee, Postmaster, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: On behalf of our general assemblies' executive committee, I extend to your our hearty appreciation of the efficient service rendered by the postoffice department in handling mail at the assemblies' churches. Would also call your attention to the fact that the assemblies, before adjourning, passed a resolution of thanks to the post office department for its kindness and service rendered. Very sincerely yours,

"(Signed) JERE A. MOORE, Secretary."

Armor Plate Probe.

Washington, May 24.—Chairman Tillman, of the senate naval affairs committee, expects to take up next week the proposal to begin an inquiry into the bids for armor plate for the dreadnought Pennsylvania and the general system of awarding contracts for armor plate. Senator Tillman favors a thorough investigation of armor plate contracts. Senator Ashurst has attacked the system of contracts as unfair to the government.

COW PEAS
Time Is Here to Plant

For several years peas have brought from $1.50 to $2.50 per bushel. The poorest land you have will raise good peas, and you should plant peas on this land instead of some other crop which will make your ground poorer and probably not make you as much money as you could make by planting peas.

We have the right quality and the right prices. We made a good crop this year in this section. Write for samples and prices.

ATLANTIC BEACH HOTEL

FORMERLY

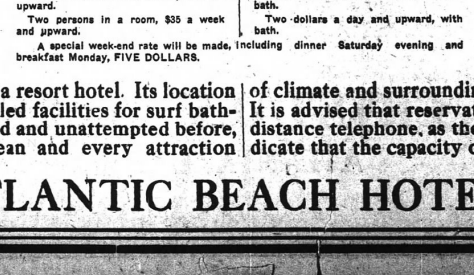
THE CONTINENTAL

Will open for the season of 1913 on Saturday, May 31st, under the management of Mr. Henry M. Stanford, for the past two years manager of the famous Tampa Bay Hotel

THE Atlantic Beach Hotel is to be operated continuously from this opening, and not merely for a brief summer season. It will be run on the American and European plans. The rates will be moderate and will not be advanced over those of previous seasons, while the service will be vastly superior in every respect.

Mr. Stanford has assembled an operating staff such as has never before been gathered for the comfort of hotel guests and patrons in the South.

Ferdinand Grand, formerly of Martin's, Twenty-Sixth street and Broadway, New York City, and for four years chief steward at the Windsor, Montreal, will fill a similar position at the Atlantic Beach.



Joseph Olivetto, formerly chef at the Rudolph and the Shelbourne, Atlantic City, will be in charge of the culinary department. He will be assisted by Albert Corvi, Martin's famous fish cook; Ulysses Martos, pastry cook at the Waldorf-Astoria, and Francisco Vinny, baker from the Boulongerie de Paris, Boston, and later of the Plaza, New York.

James Demorest, of New York, will be in charge of the buffet and cafe.

An orchestra of fourteen pieces will give concerts morning, afternoon and evening. Special music for dancing Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

The following schedule of rates will be in force:

AMERICAN PLAN.	EUROPEAN PLAN.
One person in a room, $21 a week and upward.	One dollar a day and upward, without bath.
Two persons in a room, $35 a week and upward.	Two dollars a day and upward, with bath.

A special week-end rate will be made, including dinner Saturday evening and breakfast Monday, FIVE DOLLARS.

The Atlantic Beach Hotel is without a rival as a resort hotel. Its location on the finest beach in the world, with unequalled facilities for surf bathing, for automobiling, with a menu unsurpassed and unattempted before, with the cooling breezes straight from the ocean and every attraction of climate and surroundings, will make this the social resort of the South. It is advised that reservations shall be made immediately by wire or long distance telephone, as the large number of applications already on file indicate that the capacity of the hotel will be taxed from the opening day.

SOCIETY

A Handsome Memphis Matron

For Miss Truett.

Miss Grace Truett, of Clayton, Ala., a popular student of Brenau college, will arrive Tuesday to visit Miss Mary Andrews at her home on Peachtree circle. A number of entertainments will be given in honor of Miss Truett. Among them will be the box party at Mrs. L. W. Gray at the Atlanta Wednesday afternoon. She has invited ten guests to meet the guest of honor.

Webb-Hoffman.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Webb announce the marriage of their daughter, Esther Olivia, to Mr. J. T. Hoffman on May 14. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. H. Peacock, pastor of Buckhead Baptist church.

College Park Woman's Club.

The College Park's Woman's club closed the most successful year of its history Wednesday afternoon in the club room at Cox college. Yearly reports from the different chairmen showed that this club had been most active along all lines.

Notable especially was the work of the educational committee under Mrs. R. D. Gray, the welfare committee under Mrs. Bayard Willingham and current events with Mrs. W. E. Whitehead at the head.

During the year the club has shared with the local U. D. C. in caring for a girl on a scholarship in Cox college. The fact that the young lady is doing excellent work and is a credit both to the institution and her friends makes all the effort on her behalf beautifully worth while. Many other things along the line of club work, both locally and along federated lines, have been accomplished, a good showing for the Ella F. White memorial edition included.

Each department has been responsible for one program during the year, and the result has been that the women of College Park have had the very best obtainable and that which was vitally interesting. This has been the first year of the open club, having previously been limited to thirty-five members. This year the doors were thrown open and the club made a real Woman's club. Eighty-two women enrolled.

Too much cannot be said of the courage and wisdom of the retiring president, Mrs. Dan Lyle. With the singleness of purpose, "the good work of the club," she has been untiring in her efforts to bring to pass the best results. Her management of the club, this its first open year, has been such as to challenge the admiration of all and to win the love of its every member. By reason of the time limit, her term of office expired, but the words of regret expressed by the new president, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, and from the floor by Mrs. B. W. Martin and the chatauqua salute given as she left the chair were all inadequate expressions of the love and appreciation of her splendid work and lovable personality.

The following new officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson; first vice president, Mrs. Dan Lyle; second vice president, Mrs. V. C. Mason; recording secretary, Miss Broom; corresponding secretary, Miss Annie Thornton; treasurer, Mrs. Eva Thornton; auditor, Mrs. W. W. Reid; librarian, Mrs. M. E. Hogan.

Mrs. Simmons Entertains.

The Modern Aristilia Sewing club members and several invited guests were delightfully entertained by Mrs. J. J. Simmons on Thursday afternoon at her home on Glennwood avenue.

Pink and white were the colors harmonizing in the decorations of the lovely home and the color scheme of pink and white was also seen in the delicious ices and cakes which were served.

Punch was served throughout the afternoon by Miss Fannie Cowan. Delightful piano music by Miss Pearl Simmons, Miss Mabel Hall and Miss Fannie Cowan contributed to the entertainment of the guests.

The guests were Mrs. Oscar Harrison, Mrs. R. J. Ingram, Mrs. W. O. Miller, of Big Springs, Texas; Mrs. Annie Cowan, Miss Mabel Hall, of Breckenridge, Mo.; Miss Pearl Lacy, Miss Olga Polk, Miss Fannie Cowan, Miss Pearl Simmons. The club members in attendance were Mrs. J. T. Cowan, Mrs. T. J. Counts, Mrs. W. E. Armistead, Mrs. T. N. Abernathy, Mrs. W. C. Goodingfield, Mrs. C. W. Arnold, Mrs. J. A. Sewell, Mrs. A. H. Adams, Mrs. W. H. Burgess, Mrs. L. H. Fairman, Mrs. Gussie Polk, Mrs. J. G. Hale, Mrs. J. J. Simmons.

The next club meeting will be with Mrs. J. A. Sewell at her home, 159 Grant street, on Thursday, May 29.

Important Meeting.

The last meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club will be held Monday afternoon, May 26.

The meeting is one of importance and interest, as reports will be read from the officers and chairmen of committees and new officers will be installed. An attractive feature of the afternoon will be the group of songs sung by Mrs. Jarnagin.

A large attendance is urged to show appreciation of the year's work and give encouragement for future endeavor.

Ripley-MacIntyre.

One of the prettiest of the June weddings will be that of Miss Louise Ripley and Mr. Daniel Irwin MacIntyre, Jr., which will take place on the evening of June 11th at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Ripley, on West Peachtree street.

Miss Laura Ripley will be her sister's maid of honor, Mrs. Homer McAfee will be matron of honor, and Misses Sina White, Julie MacIntyre, Frances Ansley, bridesmaids. Mr. Remer MacIntyre, of Thomasville, will be best man, and Messrs. Cherry Emerson, E. V. Carter, Jr., Marion Swanson, groomsmen. Miss Elizabeth Owens and Margaret MacIntyre will be flower girls.

A series of parties in compliment to the pretty bride-elect will anticipate the wedding.

Among those entertaining will be Mrs. Homer McAfee, Mrs. O. D. Gorman, Mrs. E. D. Kennedy, Mrs. Joan Moore, Miss Jane Stanfield, Mrs. T. S. Wilkins, Mrs. William D. Owens, Mrs. Asa G. Candler, Jr., Mrs. Karl Britton.

Pioneer Women to Picnic.

A unique occasion will be the picnic the Pioneer Women's society will enjoy on Wednesday, June 4th. Mrs. V. P. Sisson, a popular member, has extended them the courtesy of her attractive home in Kirkwood, and its extensive grounds, and luncheon will be spread on the spacious lawn in front of the house.

The ladies have invited to be their guests on that occasion Governor and Mrs. Brown, Governor-elect and Mrs. Slaton, and the heads of the most prominent organizations of women in the city—Mesdames W. D. Ellis, A. P. Coles, J. K. Ottley, H. M. Willet, C. J. Haden, Z. I. Fitzpatrick, of the state federation, S. W. Foster, W. L. Peel, Jr., A. Perdue, J. O. Wynn, R. P. Brooks, of Forsyth.

Mrs. Robert Blackburn is preparing several bright features of entertainment for the afternoon.

To Mr. and Mrs. Seydel.

Mrs. James Jackson's matinee party yesterday in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seydel, of New York who are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Vasser Woolley, included Mr. and Mrs. Seydel, Mrs. Rutherford Lipscomb, Mrs. B. M. Woolley, Mrs. W. M. Slaton, Mrs. Vasser Woolley.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Seydel were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Block, at the dinner dance at the Driving club, and tonight Mrs. W. D. Grant will entertain at dinner in their honor. Monday afternoon, Mrs. George Forrester entertains at tea, and Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. George Forrester gives a matinee party.

To Mrs. John Wing.

Miss Louise Hawkins was hostess yesterday at a beautiful luncheon at her home, the occasion a compliment to Mrs. John D. Wing.

The party of eight were seated at a table, picturesque in pink, its centerpiece of roses. At each place were little, old-fashioned corsage bouquets of sweet peas, and the place cards were pictures of old-fashioned ladies.

Miss Hawkins wore a becoming lingerie gown.

Mrs. Eubanks' Party.

Mrs. J. W. Eubanks, of East Point, was hostess at a pretty pink party Thursday afternoon, given in honor of her guests, Mrs. Joseph Carsle, of Cartersville, and Mrs. E. E. Smith.

The occasion was in celebration of the seventy-sixth birthday of Mrs. Carsle, and the fifty-sixth birthday of Mrs. Smith.

Studio Recital.

Pupils belonging to the private class of Mrs. Mary Craft Ward played in a studio recital Thursday afternoon.

Those contributing numbers were Misses Bernic Schuessler, Hortense Moran, Effie Boykin, Edwina Harper, Mary Tiller, Ruth Crusselle, Frances Conklin, Marion Stone, Dorothy Elyear, Mildred Summerlin, Florence Boykin, Hattie Schuessler, Winfred Testard, Gladys Griffin.

To Miss Whaley.

A pretty compliment to Miss Willie Whaley was the birthday party given by Miss Lennie Thompson at her home on North Main street, in East Point, Thursday evening. The spacious parlor, in which the guests were received, was a mass of lovely pink roses. Frosted cake, surrounded by sixteen small waxen tapers and an interrogation point, which asked the question, "How old am I?" An interesting program was rendered with readings from Misses Blanche Whaley and Marguerite White. Music and games were also pleasing features of the evening.

Miss Thompson wore a handsome dress of lavender silk, with lace draperies. Miss Whaley, the honor guest, wore a dainty frock of pink voile over pink satin.

In the dining room, where ices were served, the colors were pink and white. The table centerpiece was large and beautiful.

Superfluous Hair Truths

De Miracle
The Only Safe Hair Remover

Each application of an unknown depilatory is a dangerous experiment and likely to cause permanent disfigurement. The mere fact that such preparations are short-lived should alone be sufficient warning to avoid their use. De Miracle has stood the test of time, having been sold for over 11 years, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

The Unoffensive Depilatory

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor an offensive tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

PICNIC FOR FORMWALT STREET BASEBALL TEAM

Grand Time for Boys and Their Girl Friends at Henry Durand's Farm.

The class leaders for this month in the eighth grade are William Johnson, Georgia B. Withers and Frances Goldin; seventh, Stanton Hale, Grace Donahoo; sixth, Leon Shimoff, Mary Lee Wilhelm; fifth, George Freeman, Sarah White; fourth, Edward Shotzen, Vivian Baxter; third, Fain Abbot, Eva Lassiter; second, Francis Mott, Lilla Fifer; first A, Edward Wilder, Grace Garrison; first B, Lowell Battle, Nora Rels.

The medals for declamations and speeches were won by William Johnson and Lois Fowler, of the eighth, and Morton Dameron, Maggie Williams and Ruth Moore, of the seventh. Ruth and Maggie tied in the number of votes, and, therefore, they will wear it two weeks each.

On last Saturday Mrs. Sams entertained the members of the Tenth and Formwalt baseball teams and their girl friends with a picnic at Mr. Henry Durand's farm. With its varied attractions there was something for everybody to do all the time. The lake furnished a splendid place for boating and fishing, while the pavilion was a source of pleasure to the dancers. Many pictures were made of the beautiful falls, especially when the boys slipped up on the girls while they were in wading. Needless to say some form of baseball was going on practically all day. Last, but not least, was the bountiful dinner prepared by Mrs. Sams, and to which we all did full justice. With ice cold lemonade and milk fresh from Mr. Durand's dairy we all drank to her health and happiness and to the success of our team on Wednesday.

In our last letter we promised to give the results of our championship games, so here goes. On Thursday our boys defeated Edgewood, 3 to 0, in one of the prettiest games ever pulled off by an amateur team. Our pitcher, Ralph Wallace, pitched a magnificent game, and the team gave him jam-up support. The entire team is due credit for the victory, for every man played his own position perfectly. On Friday, we are sorry to say, the situation was just reversed. Our pitcher was too young and too light to stand the strain of pitching two days in succession, and the support given him was just as poor as it was excellent the day before.

But now it is all over, and Formwalt having defeated Edgewood in the first and last games of the series, is still the champions of the Grammar School league, as she has been ever since its organization. All hail to our team.

Divorces $2 Each.

(Los. Angeles Cor. New York World.)

Advocating the establishment of a divorce license bureau, where a divorce may be obtained for the asking and a two-dollar fee, Mrs. Mary Huston, director of the Parent-Teacher federation, proposes a unique remedy for the present divorce evil.

"I would make divorces as easy to obtain as marriages," she says. "I believe if a man or a woman wants a divorce, he or she should be able to get it without legal disputes. The wanting of a divorce is sufficient reason for obtaining it.

"Would I abolish a judge? No. I think there should be a judge to render decisions about property settlements and the custody of children when these matters are in dispute. But he should have no power whatever to deny decrees.

"There is no arrangement which forces persons to make partnerships without the privilege of dissolving them if they prove to be unwise and a mistake. Why, then, should be prevent the dissolving of this partnership which, far more than any business deal, can mar and ruin lives."

A Gift Not an Investment.

(From The Chicago Record-Herald.)

"Have you ever invested on the board of trade?"

"No. A broker once told me I was investing there, but I discovered later that he was deceiving me."

It Looks Like Tag Day

It might be tag day, but it isn't. Professor William M. Slaton, superintendent of public schools, is here shown wearing the colors of all the schools that participated in the annual field day.

Superintendent William M. Slaton has done an invaluable work in the improvement of the public schools. Under his recommendation, important departments have been added; discipline of the school has been improved; methods are in accord with modern ideas; the curriculum has been broadened. He strictly advocates domestic science in the two high schools for girls and a broader industrial feature for the public schools. He has done much to increase the salaries of the teachers in order to secure the best talent. Under his administration the schools have grown from 325 teachers to 862, enrollment from 15,388 to 24,000; all the salaries of the teachers have been raised; normal school work has been organized and systematized; the school spirit has been strengthened. He devotes his tireless energies, courage and scholarship to the schools. The above picture shows him on horseback decorated by the public school children on Field Day, May 10. He has the cordial affection of the public school children of Atlanta and the confidence of the city. His methods are progressive. With sufficient funds he would do much more to improve the schools. He is a University of Georgia and Emory college man, and keeps in close touch with all questions looking to the improvement of the public schools.

LETTERS FROM THE SCHOOLS

Walker Street School.

The eighth grade gave a picnic last Friday afternoon and some of the pupils of the seventh grade also shared the pleasures of the occasion. We went to the Old Soldiers' Home and they gave us a hearty welcome, and said they liked company. We were shown over the building and our guide gave us interesting talks on the historic pictures, which are out there. We were very much interested in these old heroes of the south and they seemed to be just as much interested in us. They gave each of us a bunch of pretty roses, in return for which we sang several of the old songs, the last being Dixie. Of course they were exceedingly glad to hear this.

The last hour last Friday was given up to Peace Day exercises. We received an interesting talk on this subject from Mr. Orr, on the evils of war, and the blessings of peace. We enjoyed his talk very much.

A small boy in the second A grade may some day rival Milton in blank verse. This is his work:

"People in the house,
House in the street,
Street in the city,
City in the county,
County in the state;
State in the country,
Country in the continent,
Continent in the world;
World in the air,
Air in the light,
Light, I do not know."

In the third B not one of the whole class was absent or tardy all last month.

A check for $50, made by our candy pulling, has done wonders toward improving our school yard. The Mother's association did much in planning and selecting what was nice for the yard, but it was the hard-earned dimes of the children that paid for the plants and work. The following is the eighth grade honor roll: Bennie Camp, 98.8; Claire Gershon, 98.2; Toulman Hurt, 98.1; Frances Broyles, 96.8; Elizabeth Floding, 96.5; Eastman Hunter, 96; Harlet McCullough, 96; Helena Corey, 95.8; Sidney Rosser, 95.8; William Warren, 95.7; Frances Brown, 95.6; Elizabeth Collings, 95.6; John Hopkins, 95.4; Cathrine Brady, 95.3; John Reid, 95; Elizabeth Hawkins, 95; Julia McCullough, 95.

GILBERT FRASER.

Pryor Street School.

Our Courtland S. Winn society met on Friday, the 16th, and we had a very interesting program. In fact we always have good programs, and the children are glad to spend an hour in the auditorium on society day.

We are going to have our annual "pay" entertainment on Thursday, the 29th, and on the Friday following we will have a matinee of the same entertainment. Chiefly the eighth, assisted by some of the other grades, will furnish the performance. The admission will be small and we hope some of the public will attend.

Miss Parks, the eighth grade's teacher, was sick and had to remain at home on Tuesday. They were very glad to see her back on Wednesday, and they hope she will be restored to her former health so that she can be with them for the remainder of the year.

WILLIAM F. STEELE, JR.

Georgia Avenue School.

The children of Georgia avenue school enjoyed a delightful program in our auditorium last Friday. We assembled in honor of peace day.

The program was as follows: "Heroes in Time of Peace," Janie Eubanks, seventh grade; "Tubal Cain," Richard Kahn, fifth grade; "The Better Way," Irvin Holland, sixth grade; "The Fatherland" Lucius Smith, seventh grade; "Recessional," Gladys Hawes, eighth grade; "The Cherry Festival at Nurenburg," Samuel Florence, seventh grade; "A Country School Boy's First Composition on the Horse," Julian Johnston, seventh grade; "O, Beautiful, My Country," Theodora Nussman, fourth grade; "Stars and Stripes," Charles Heyman, seventh grade.

Because we had a large representation in the exercises on field day we were given a basket-ball.

Last week the fifth grade had a spelling match and 11 children remained standing.

All the little children were delighted to join the "Don't get run over" club. They feel very proud of their buttons.

PEEPLES STREET PROUD OF ATHLETIC PRIZES

Two Plaques Won by Eighth Grade and One by Girls of the Fifth B.

Peeples Street feels quite proud of the prizes won for athletic work this year. Two plaques were won by the eighth grade and one by the girls of fifth B. Mitchell Benton, of the eighth grade, came out second among the boys over thirteen, being beaten only two points. He was awarded the silver pen. Among the smaller children, Augusta Gregory won a first prize, Florence Cotton a second prize and Martha Hull a third prize.

Helen George and Mary Arnold had the highest averages in the seventh grade last month. In the fourth grade Elizabeth Carrol and Charles Fraser received the highest averages.

The second grade B and the fourth grade received stars in music from Miss Milledge.

In the third grade Louise Ray won the picture last week and Alta Lynn Word and Reese Tumlin had the best averages.

Charles Burke and Albert Day won headmarks in spelling last week in second B.

In second grade A, Katherine Rodehaver and Ralph Fuller had the highest averages for last month. Gladys Ried had the highest average of the girls and Abel Winburn of the boys in sixth B.

Thomas Stokes and Elizabeth Lovett made the best averages in the eighth grade.

Everyone thought that all the grades in the drills Field day did splendid. They were almost perfect in their exercises, and their behavior did them credit.

The same may be said about the seventh and eighth grades in their concert May 9. Everyone liked the songs and said that they had never heard anything better.

WARREN R. POLLARD.

Helen Keller's Fame.

(From Le Cri de Paris.)

Madame Georgette Leblanc sang last year in America. She had the rare joy of learning that a young blind deaf-mute, Helen Keller, of Boston, had "heard her sing." Blind though she is, Miss Keller has written quite a work upon this. She had already published other works in which she gave counsel to other deaf-mutes that they might diminish their infirmities perhaps to the point of cure, as she has done for herself. The reputation of Miss Keller has come to the court at Madrid. King Alfonso and Queen Victoria have decided to call her to their little Don Jaime, their second son, who is a deaf-mute. The queen is so affected by the infirmity of her son that she is seeking all means for alleviating the sad state of the young prince. Masterlinc khas written, speaking of Miss Kellen, "She has conquered science and darkness," and the great writer has spoken truly.

Is not that a great thought, that we can escape the bondage of mere servitude by simply rising above our work, putting our heart into it and doing our best? Do not envy the "boss." Many are his perplexities, great his problems to make his venture succeed. Heartily co-operate to help him and begin to say "we," not always "me." "We" are going to grow the best corn ever this year in the north forty that was ever seen. "We" are fitting the best lot of calves for the international ever shown. Compel that employer to take you at once into an invisible partnership just by using that word "we" and putting your heart into the work.

PREP CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY THE B. H. S.

Students Are Busy Trying to Win the Fly Prize Essay.

Boys' High defeated Tech High school at Ponce de Leon Wednesday, which gave them the prep championship. The score was 4 to 0, and the Gilmer street boys had a walkaway from the start. Spurlock, the first man up for Boys' High school, knocked a homer to the scoreboard. Only one more game remains for the pennant-winners to play, and this will probably be easily won, judging from the way Marist was defeated the last game. The remaining game is a play-off of the tie game at the first of the season.

The chamber of commerce has offered a prize of $10 for the student of any of the four high schools who writes the best composition on the fly. Pamphlets containing information about the fly have been given out, and the boys are carefully studying these. The compositions will be written on May 21, at Boys' High school, between 8:30 and 10 o'clock, and the motto of all the boys is "Swat the fly."

Peace day will be fittingly celebrated on May 19, as May the 18 comes on Sunday. Exercises will be held in each room, with programs containing peace declamations and debates on the present peace problems. An interesting debate was heard in the hall last Friday. The subject was: "Resolved, That international disarmament would be wise." The affirmative won, C. W. Binns, of the affirmative, having the most interesting debate.

The summer school will be held in the Boys' High school building this year, and will have the usual courses.

"DON'T GET RUN OVER" BUTTONS DISTRIBUTED

School Children Badged by the Public Safety League to Prevent Street Accidents.

Twenty thousand buttons bearing the phrase "Don't get run over" have been distributed to the public school children through the office of Superintendent of Schools W. M. Slaton. The buttons are emblems of membership in the Atlanta Public Safety League, and were furnished by the league to remind the children of the dangers of street traffic.

The buttons are designed especially for the pupils of Atlanta schools, and are most attractive in appearance. In the foreground is the figure of a little girl with a doll clasped in her arms. This figure is outlined against a background composed of an automobile and a trolley car, the group conveying the suggestion that children should watch out for danger while in the vicinity of these vehicles. The phrase "Don't get run over" is printed in red letters around the edge of the button.

Superintendent Slaton has instructed teachers in every grade of the forty public schools to lecture the children regularly on the dangers to be encountered in the streets and the proper manner of avoiding these dangers. This policy is in co-operation with that of the safety league, and it is estimated by experts who have studied the plans of similar organizations in other parts of the country that street accidents will be reduced more than 30 per cent each year if the system is faithfully carried out.

It is also planned to bring all the children together in the Auditorium at an early date for a moving picture exhibition showing how accidents in the streets occur and how they may be avoided. The buttons distributed this week will be recognized as badges of membership which will permit wearers to witness the exhibition free of charge.

Getting Education and Fresh Air at Same Time

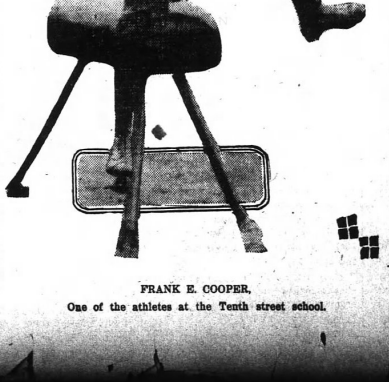
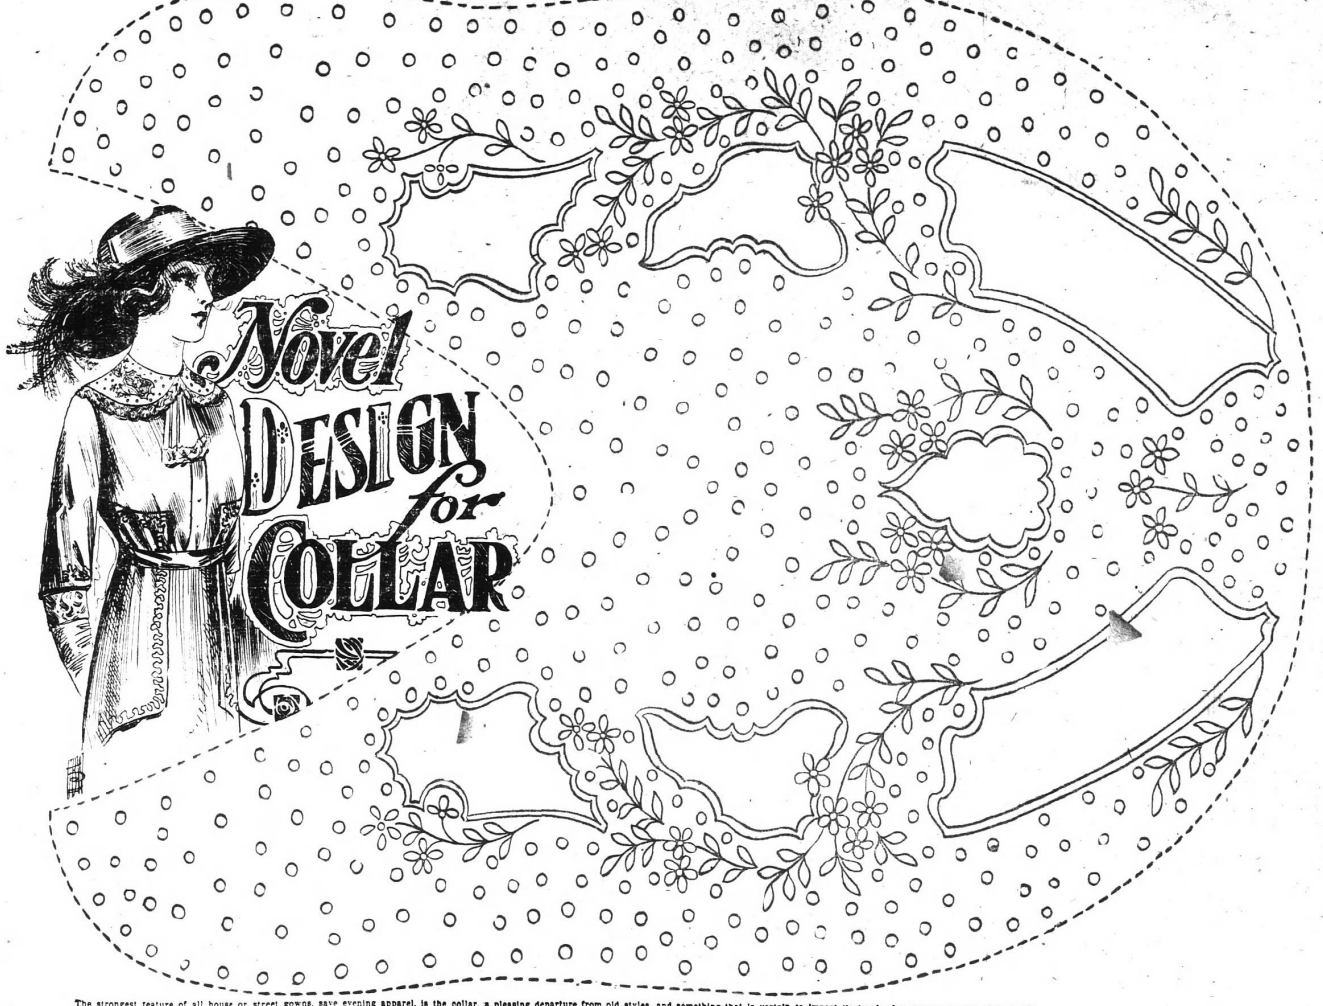
Some Jumper, This Boy



FRANK E. COOPER,
One of the athletes at the Tenth street school.

This Attractive And Useful Design For Needleworkers Can Be Transferred Without Recourse To The Old And Obsolete Tracing Paper Method Which Is Unreliable At Best.



The strongest feature of all house or street gowns, save evening apparel, is the collar, a pleasing departure from old styles, and something that is certain to impart its touch of smartness to any plain frock. This collar design should be transferred to very sheer handkerchief linen, a closely woven fabric, yet firm and gauzy. It would be labor and time lost to embroider it upon cheap material.

First embroider the flowers and leaves. Since they are small they will look neatest if finished in solid satin stitch.

Before working the eyelets press the goods, then lay the material upon a cake of hard white soap, drive the metal or wooden skewer through the goods into the soap until the hole is enlarged to the indicated line of the eyelet. Only one eyelet should be prepared at a time. This method is preferable to the usual running thread around the eyelet, and it better preserves the shape. Then use a single or double thread to whip the edges of the punctured eyelet. Make no knots in the thread, and do not carry the thread from one eyelet to its neighbor. Each must be single, neatly finished and perfect in contour.

Baste any desired lace or net under the motifs indicated for lace motifs, embroider the edge solidly and cut superfluous net from the back. Or, better still, work that portion in lace net stitch. Finish the edge with soft white lace, and make a plain jabot suitable to wear with the collar, only make it severely plain.

TO TRANSFER THIS DESIGN.

Put a cake of soap (laundry will do) in a pint of hot water, stir vigorously and remove the soap. Saturate this Design with the soap and water mixture, then remove the excess moisture by partially drying the saturated Design or by applying a sheet of blotting paper. Place the material or fabric to which the design is to be transferred on a hard, flat surface and lay the Design, face down, upon the material. Cover with a dry sheet of thick paper or two folds of newspaper, and with the bowl of a tablespoon rub, pressing hard, until the Design is entirely transferred, being careful to rub from, rather than toward you. When rubbing, you can see if enough pressure is being applied by lifting a corner of the Design to note how well it's taking. Do not wet the material nor rub the face of the Design with damp fingers. To remove the Design lines after the article is completed, wash in warm water, with soap. The entire process is very simple and with a little care you can easily make perfect transfers to any kind of goods.

PATENT PENDING.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Our Hint Department For Busy Housewives

A SOFT rag moistened with lemon juice and then dipped in silver whiting will be found excellent for cleaning piano keys.

WHEN baking potatoes, rub dry and grease. This causes the outer skin to peel off very thin, thus saving the most nourishing part.

LAMPS will not smoke if with a sharp pair of scissors the wick is trimmed the shape of burner and a small V is cut from the center.

A PAIR of cotton blankets make better lining than cotton batting. They require little tacking, and can be washed successfully.

WHEN silk is spotted with grease rub it with French chalk or magnesia, then hold the spotted portion, near the fire. The chalk will absorb the grease and can be brushed off, taking the grease with it.

CRUSHED ribbons should not be ironed; it makes them shiny. Dampen them and then fold them smoothly and tightly around a rolling pin or empty bottle. This will remove slight creases. There is nothing for bad creases but to iron them.

TO wash an eiderdown quilt, put it into a tub of tepid water into which you have stirred about three tablespoonfuls of a good soap powder. Leave it in about an hour, stirring occasionally. Then put it into fresh, rather warm water, and add more powder. Wash it in this, and rinse it two clear, tepid waters, and wring carefully. Shake well (this needs two persons), hang out and as it dries pull up the filling gently.

TO clean silver, put a quantity of sour milk in a shallow pan and place the articles in the milk, allowing them to remain there until they become bright. Afterward wash them in warm water which contains a few drops of ammonia and the silver will be bright and clean.

TO fill preserving jars without splashing and spilling the preserves over them, use a gravy boat. It is easily dipped into the hot kettle of fruit by means of the handle and the long mouth fits into jars of almost any size and thus prevents spilling.

NOTHING ruins ivory handled knives so quickly as putting the handles into water. Indeed, no knife should be put entirely into water. Wash the blades and wipe off the handles. If plunged into water the water is apt to work its way into the handle where the blade is fastened and in time will rust the handle so it cracks.

TO put on kid gloves that are too tight, hold a piece of woolen cloth that has been dipped in hot water and wrung as dry as possible. When the gloves have become warm and damp, they can easily be drawn on the hands. Gloves that have shrunk in cleaning also respond to this treatment.

WHEN filling a cake tin remember that the center of the cake is the part which will usually be the highest, so spread the batter as much to the sides as possible, leaving a depression in the center, then the cake, when baked, will be level and much more convenient for icing.

BORROWING HABITS

BY ANNETTE ANGERT.

ONCE upon a time there was a girl who had the borrowing habit in its worst form. She borrowed stamps and letter paper, ribbons and handkerchiefs, shoes, gloves, hats, and coats from all the girls who went to the same boarding school she did, and never by any chance did she return wearing apparel in as good a condition as she received it, and she never troubled to return at all such things as postage stamps and books and paper. The one who had loaned her these things simply went to the borrower's room and asked for her property. And Ruth would return it quite as casually as she had borrowed it.

It didn't take long for this girl to be the most unpopular girl in the whole school. And she never understood why. I dare say now she is a matron of some years she is just as busy borrowing as she ever was, sending over to her next neighbor's for a pound of sugar or a little vanilla or a cup of coffee. And her neighbors dislike her just as much as her mates at school did.

The borrowing habit is bad. Bad for the borrower and worse for the lender. It ought to be a motto. "Think twice before you lend, but three times before you borrow." Of course, once in a while the best of us and the most careful may be caught, through some unfortunate chain of circumstances, in a position where we need some little thing we haven't got and our neighbors has. Then, and then only, is borrowing permissible. And even then it is just as well to stop and consider if there is no way by which we can substitute or eliminate the needed article from our necessities. Usually there is.

"You have all read stories like this "Now, Johnny," says Mrs. Shiftless, "run over to Mrs. Smith's and see if you can borrow a pint of flour, and Sarah, you run over to Mrs. Jones and get the loan of a couple of eggs, and Mattie, you hurry around to Mrs. Brown's and ask her to let me have a cup of sugar till tomorrow, and Timmy had better go across to Mrs. Robinson's and ask her to lend me a pint of milk and a cupful of butter. I think maybe I'll stir up a cake for Sunday." Here was the habit of borrowing brought to a fine art.

Every one of us has had experience with a Mrs. Shiftless of some sort, the type of housekeeper who is always "just out" of something which is essential to her cooking or her cleaning or her sewing. And that reminds me of a good story I read the other day of the way a canny woman cured one of these Mrs. Shiftlesses from bothering her.

Mrs. Shiftless sent over for a cupful of ground coffee for breakfast. Two days later the youngest Shiftless boy approached the door of Mrs. Canny with a cup filled with ground coffee to return the loan. But Mrs. Canny would not receive it.

"Take it right back to your mother," she told the boy with an amiable smile, "and tell her it's a strange thing if I can't oblige a neighbor with a little coffee without having it returned to me as if I were a regular miser or something like it."

The small boy retired, puzzled. Another day Mrs. Shiftless wanted a cupful of lard. She got it promptly, and the return of it was indignantly refused. After the third repetition of this little scene Mrs. Shiftless, for shames sake, borrowed no more of Mrs. Canny. And there was no hard feeling between them, either.

To go back to Ruth and her kind, all girls at boarding school and college borrow more or less. It is a great lark to wear some one's else evening dress to a concert or reception. If Milly isn't going to the basketball game, why shouldn't she let her roommate wear her sweater and Tam o'Shanter? If Helen's dancing slippers just fit Nancy I am sure that Nancy will be wearing them if they suit her gown better than the slippers in her own shoe bag. And so it goes. Harmless enough, perhaps, yet much better not carried to excess.

You will never be quite so fond of the girl who borrows your pink silk frock and gets candle grease on it as you will if you had gotten candle grease on it yourself and she had condoled with you, meanwhile wearing her own pink silk. Even if Milly isn't going to the game she may sigh to see her roommate, who is always careless with her clothes, wearing that pretty scarlet sweater which Milly's mother made for her. And Helen would rather wear out her own dancing slippers, though they look ever so well with Nancy's blue gown.

At home, among sisters, it is far better if each girl has her own belongings and doesn't borrow "through the family," as the New Englanders say. A well understood family law on this point will save many squabbles and much annoyance.

As for the people who borrow books and don't return them, or if they return them at all return them with dog-eared pages and covers spotted and sagging backs—well, such people should be beaten with many rods. There ought to be a real big United States law to catch and punish terribly the people who borrow and are careless with other people's books. I can't think of a punishment that fits the crime.

A book is such a dear, intimate thing—such a friend, such a companion, such a solace, such a joy, such a comfort. You might just as well lend your eyes or ears and get them back sightless or deaf. The poor battered books look at you so pathetically when they get back on your shelves, as much as to say, "How could you let me, I who have given you so much pleasure, be so abused?"

When I was a young girl I used to live next neighbor to three sisters who borrowed books everywhere and returned them—it seems too dreadful to tell—with peanut shells between the leaves and with pages doubled in or with rings on the cover where they had set a glass of lemonade. And when I saw books so treated I made a rule not to lend them anything but paper bound books, such as could be easily replaced, and I kept my dear friends and companions in all their nice maroon and green and blue bindings right on my own book shelves, where I could turn to them and read and keep them as they deserved to be kept, used yet not abused.

NOVEL PARTY

BY LUCILLE DAUDET.

A POPULAR social leader is entertaining her set with a series of parties revived from the days of long ago, and for those who desire to follow her lead a silhouette party is most interesting.

Send invitations decorated with profiles drawn and darkened with India ink or cut out of black paper and pasted to the white card.

One great advantage about silhouette portraits is that they are easily made, and there is no need of artistic talent, training nor an elaborate apparatus. All that is required is a sheet of paper, a candle, a pencil or a piece of charcoal, a bottle of India ink and a small camel's-hair brush.

To make the silhouette, pin a sheet of paper to the wall and seat the person beside it. Light the candle and place it so that a clear shadow of the head is thrown on the paper. Draw carefully round the outline of the shadow with the pencil or charcoal.

When the outline is completed, take down the sheet of paper, and paint with India ink the space within the outline. In this manner you secure a perfect silhouette.

The room must be fairly dark, so that a strong shadow is thrown on the paper, whose surface should be parallel with the side of the sitter's head. Place the candle opposite the ear and you are sure to obtain a clear profile.

A silhouette drawn in this manner is life size, and if you desire smaller copies purchase a reducing instrument at any shop where artists' supplies are sold. By using this instrument, you can secure exact replicas of the silhouettes in a much reduced size.

Secure silhouettes of all the guests you have invited to your party by asking them for "sittings" at your home before the evening of the party. Reproduce these silhouettes in a smaller size and paste them to cards and arrange the collection on the walls of a room.

On the eventful evening provide each guest with a card and pencil and request them to enter the gallery and guess whom the silhouettes represent.

To the one having the most correct guesses present a silhouette poster. If you include dancing in the evening's entertainment, present each man with the silhouette of the girl who is to be his partner and each girl a silhouette of the man with whom she is to dance, and have them find each other with only the silhouettes to aid their search. This will prove most amusing.

FASHIONDOM

BY MRS. KINGSLEY.

TO give a smart touch to your white costume this season you should add a dash of red.

Pale pink chiffon combined with black chiffon and Venise lace forms an admirable contrast in a French gown.

Some attractive pocket books are made of coarse linen and bound with silver. They are made in all colors and are in keeping with the suits with which they are carried.

Plastron jabots are finished at the neck line with a fold of black satin and a tailored bow of the same material adorns the front. This provides a pretty finish for the collarless frock and in addition, makes the neck appear whiter.

Turn down collars, shallow in back and out with points over the shoulders are very pretty in white charmeuse outlined with a narrow plaiting of net or self-material. Cuffs are made to match. The set will clean easily in gasoline.

There are many extreme novelties in shoes. The uppers of high boots are of Japanese embroidery, while the vamps are of black patent leather. Other models have for their upper brown or blue corded silk. Low shoes are held firm by fancy straps passing over the instep.

WHOLE COUNTRY STIRRED BY TRAGIC ENDING OF LIFE OF SANDERS WALKER

Millions of Readers Read Daily of Brave Fight for Life of the Gallant Young Georgian.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The tragedy of B. Sanders Walker has stirred a continent.

And the gallant young Georgian who lies today under a weight of flowers in the quiet little town of Monroe, where he was born, accomplished a great deal in dying—he proved that heroism of the highest type still abides with our race; and he proved the great, pitying democracy of human nature, since the avalanche of letters and telegrams that poured in upon him and his family are mute witnesses to the power of sorrow and death to level all barriers, to bring the highest and the humblest into the common domain of tears.

So that in surrendering to the last grim enemy, Sanders Walker really scored a wonderful victory. O. Henry or Dickens could have wrought wonderfully with this story. For in it are all the elements of pathos, of restraint and of mournful romance in irresistible combination.

World's Verdict the Same —"Death Certain to Follow!"

No sick man ever received better medical attention, for not only did he have the very best that could be offered in the consultation of the profession in Macon, but literally his attending physicians were in telegraphic consultation with the greatest of the medical centers of the continent.

Day after day the ablest physicians and surgeons of this country—in Baltimore, New York, Chicago and elsewhere—were posted concerning every development of the case and asked for suggestions. Day after day the answers uniformly came—"There is no possible hope—death is simply a question of time."

Never was such a paradoxical situation presented at a dying man's bedside. Apparently in the full vigor of health—brighter and more cheerful than any person around him, for all were pallid with the awfulness of the fatal decree—he discussed every phase of his case, still hoping, still believing that there was some dreadful mistake about it and that he would pull through all right.

But gradually the insidious poison caused by the spreading euremia induced by the paralyzed kidneys was doing its fatal work. In the desperate hope that still something might be done to relieve the situation more eminent medical advice was had, the best in the world, were reached by telegraph.

Again the same answer—"There is no possible hope—within a few hours the patient will pass into a state of coma and death may be expected any minute."

Nor was the information kept from the brave patient. He knew that he had taken what was ordinarily a fatal dose, but he had confidence in his strength and he insisted on being posted on every development of the case.

One after another, the solemn death decrees of the greatest medical authorities in the world were handed to him and read with heroic stoicism.

But Science was right! The verdict of the profession from every part of the country was practically the same.

The progress of the disease was traced with practically no variation.

The deadly poison worked just as Science had said it would—almost to the exact hour.

Ten days ago young Walker reached home from a business trip to north Georgia. He retired in the splendid spirits of a strength never touched by sickness.

In the gray hours of the morning he awoke with a headache. He groped his way to the shelf on which stood the family supply of medicine. Side by side on that shelf, a fraction of an inch apart, were two bottles, one a bottle of tablets of aspirin, a harmless headache remedy; the other of tablets of bichloride, a deadly poison.

With confident touch Walker grasped the bottle nearest him, took forth a tablet that had all the semblance of aspirin, and swallowed it.

He had chosen the wrong bottle. In the darkness he had taken the poison instead of the aspirin. Physicians told him his death was simply a question of days, of waiting with what patience and courage he could for the end. That end came eight days later, after a struggle against the slowly engulfing tide of death that had made the whole nation marvel.

That is the story, in brief, of B. Sanders Walker.

But the details, even more than the mere outline, thrill the blood and call to the heart.

How Tragic Mistake Was Made.

On Tuesday afternoon when Walker returned from the trip he had made to north Georgia, he was in the prime of life, of perfect physical development and possessed of an iron will that made him a dominating spirit in his contact with his fellow men.

A few hours later when the tragic mistake of a moment had sentenced him to death, and his doom had been announced to him, the same indomitable will, the same cheerful spirit proved their worth, and he received his sentence of death—possibly a death of horrible nature—without a quiver.

Before his fatal error, young Walker—his thirtieth birthday had only recently been celebrated—was known to his fellow citizens of Macon as the type of man of which great things are to be expected. Now that his fiery trial is over, his loved ones, his friends and his acquaintances know that he has proven himself true to type.

Where a few days ago the noble traits which characterized him were known to only a few hundred citizens in Macon and one or two other Georgia towns where he had lived, his gallant fight of eight days' duration has made his name a respected one on the lips of tens of thousands in every nook and corner of a great nation.

Sincere Sympathy of His Fellow Citizens.

As sincere as widespread was the tribute paid to the man by his fellow citizens of Macon. During the week of his spectacular fight against the fate that was gradually overwhelming him, it was evident that the citizens of his home city were going about their daily duties with the thought of him upmost in their minds.

Members of the Walker family could scarcely make their way through the streets of the city on account of the groups of sympathetic friends who approached them every few feet to make inquiries as to the condition of their young kinsman.

Remarkable as was this general interest evidenced in Walker's brave fight by the people who were used to seeing him in his daily walks of life was the absolute lack of anything like morbid curiosity. The hushed conversing solemn mien which accompanied all queries to his family were proof enough that the hearts of the questioners were touched.

The Fullness of Life Was His.

When Sanders Walker made his tragic mistake, life held for him everything that it could to make the prospect of the future an alluring one.

His was health, happiness and prosperity. He was comfortably wealthy, with the knowledge that he was probably destined to become one of Macon's richest citizens. He was blessed with a beautiful and loving wife and a young son of unusual promise. He had the affectionate regard of every man, woman and child with whom he spoke as he passed to and fro among them at his daily duties.

His, indeed, was the fullness of life and its horizon had for him not the slightest of clouds to shadow even in the slightest degree the brightness of the future.

Yet when, in the twinkling of an eye, all this was replaced by the certainty of death, the man's nobility of character and his iron will stood the acid test and he passed through his hours of trial with a triumphant spirit and a cheerful demeanor that are destined to make his name an honored one in Macon as the years go by.

In Pitch Black Darkness Mistake Was Made.

It was in the pitch-black darkness that comes just before the dawn that Walker, groping his way unerringly for a bottle of headache medicine, missed what they sought by hardly more than a fraction of an inch, the bottle which contained the mercury tablets sitting side by side with the one he thought he was picking up.

Sanders Walker returned to Macon on Tuesday, May 13, after a trip of inspection to some property he owned in the northern part of the state. Having preceded earlier than had been expected, his wife and child had not come back to Macon from the country home of her father, W. C. Stevens, near Milledgeville, where they had gone to stay during his absence.

He spent the afternoon with his brother-in-law, Dr. M. M. Stapler, one of the south's best known eye, ear and throat specialists. Leaving Dr. Stapler's office he caught a train to go to see his wife and child, with whom he spent several hours before returning to Macon late at night.

Going directly to the residence from the station, Walker retired immediately. Waking in the small hours of the night, with his head throbbing, he got up from his bed, groped his way through the darkness into the next room, opened a cabinet, picked up a bottle containing tablets of the same size and color as those he had seen used by his wife for remedial purposes, and in a moment all the bright promise of the future was a thing of the past and the only earthly accomplishment left for him was to prove to the world that the spirit which had made him a marked man, even in his college days, was of sufficient strength to fight the battle to the bitter end.

Having swallowed the tablet, and without having struck a light, young Walker retraced his steps to his bed and dropped off to sleep almost immediately—before the poison, which dissolves very slowly, had started to take effect. This, it is thought, was between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning.

Had sleep been delayed at this point in coming to Walker for only ten minutes it is probable that he would still be in the enjoyment of his full health, as the effects of the tablet would have been noticeable by that time, and he would have known that a mistake had been made.

Discovers Mistake Two Hours Later.

It was not until over two hours later, however, that Walker, awakening in pain and with considerable nausea, realized that he was a very sick man, and, staggering to the telephone, called for the assistance of Dr. Stapler, whose home is only a few hundred feet down the street from the historic cottage of Sidney Lanier, in which the Walkers have lived for several years.

Dr. Stapler reached the house within a few minutes and discovering that Walker had vomited undissolved portions of the tablet, made an investigation which resulted in the discovery that bichloride of mercury had been taken instead of the aspirin intended.

Physicians were immediately called in and soon announced the death sentence against which young Walker waged so spectacular a battle to the very moment, eight days distant, when he passed into the coma from which he never rallied.

Clarity of Mind Never Affected.

During the days that the pall of sorrow reigned over the beautiful cottage where the poet laureate of the south first saw the light of day, not for a moment did the dying man lose control of his mental faculties, and not once did the cheerful demeanor that marked his last days give way to despondency.

Instead of the members of his immediate family, who were around him constantly from the time that his fatal mistake was discovered, having to cheer him, it was the bravely fighting head of the family that comforted his sorrowing relatives. Never giving up hope of recovery, he sustained during the entire week of consciousness practically constant conversation with those around him, his continuing strength keeping alive the desperate ray of hope to which his grief-stricken wife clung until the moment when, after the last coma had set in, the deadened brain of her dying husband for the first time failed to respond.

Hundreds of Messages From All Over World.

Hundreds of telegrams received by the Walker family during the week of the young real estate man's spectacular fight against death were eloquent of the nation-wide admiration aroused by his gallant efforts. Not only were telegrams received every few moments at the Walker home for six or seven days, but numbers of cablegrams from physicians in Europe came to the family, these latter being mainly suggestions as to the best manner in which to treat the case.

Although the family has steadfastly declined to make public any of these telegrams it is known that many of them are from prominent medical experts of this country, and the daily reports of the young Georgian's condition, voluntarily wired to the physicians in charge the result of similar cases under their observation.

Other telegrams are known to have been received from various new thought followers, and some from quacks recommending the discharge of doctors, and declaring that mental cure was the only hope for the suffering man.

The attending physicians, Drs. Harold and Jackson, of Macon, met every request for information as to the treatment being administered to Walker with a positive declination to talk, but it is generally understood that the use of saline injections was practically the only treatment. This was decided upon after telegraphic consultation with some of the greatest physicians of America, immediate communication having been established by the Macon doctors with specialists in New York, Baltimore and other cities, immediately after the first examination.

It was hoped that the life-giving properties of salt might by some miracle of curing, bring back life to the kidneys which had been paralyzed by the deadly poison which they had absorbed. Bichloride of mercury does not kill from its own immediate effects, death resulting from uremic poisoning following the paralysis caused by the mercury.

Walker's system had probably been entirely free from all traces of the poison he took for several days before his death, the unusually long time which elapsed before he finally succumbed being due to his magnificent physical powers, enabling him to resist the poison generated in his own body.

Striking Incidents In Walker's Youth.

He was born in Monroe on April 9, 1883, thirty years ago.

His friends there still remember the beautiful and inspiring talk he made in relating his Christian experience at a daylight prayer meeting there on the day that he was 21 years of age. He was a Christian man of both faith and works, and a quiet and retiring benefactor, who often went out of his way to do an unselfish service for mankind.

He was one of a class of four in the ninth grade of the Monroe high school in the year 1898, the other three being Dr. H. B. Nunnally, formerly of the Grady hospital, Atlanta, now of this city; E. M. Wayne, now of Monroe, formerly of Atlanta, and Colonel Manche Goodwin, formerly of Monroe, but now of Sandersville.

All of Walker's schooling in Monroe was received under Professor John Gibson. From there he went to Griffin to school for a while, and from there to the University of Georgia, where he graduated in 1903.

His friends there knew him as a young man of lovable nature, fine character and business ability, generous to a fault and with a heart that beat in sympathy with all in distress.

After leaving the state university he went to Barnesville, where he held the position of bank cashier for a year.

It was while residing at Barnesville that he was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stevens, of Stevens Pottery.

Returning to Monroe, he purchased an interest in the business of the Walton Trading company, dealers in buggies, wagons and live stock, and remained there for one year. Coming to Macon six years ago, he was for three years cashier of the Citizens' National bank, and for the past three years was engaged in the real estate business in this city.

Walker was the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Walker, Sr., of Monroe, his father now being president of the Bank of Monroe, president of the Monroe Cotton Mills and a prominent and public-spirited citizen.

COLLEGE MATE TELLS OF LIFE OF WALKER AT UNIVERSITY

By Robert Moran.

The pages of a Pandora issued in the year 1903 will give interesting sidelights on the life of Sanders Walker, who recently died in the home of Sidney Lanier, at Macon, through taking a bi-chloride of mercury tablet in mistake for aspirin.

The Pandora is the annual publication issued by the University of Georgia. For many years it was published by the fraternities of that college, but about ten years ago this was changed, and it is now published by representatives of fraternities and non-frats.

Sanders Walker came to the university in 1899 and received his diploma in 1903. During those four years he was one of the best liked boys in Athens, and in many college activities he had his part, either as principal or as supporter.

Perhaps he was better known in athletics than in any other branch. It has been erroneously stated that he was a shortstop on the University of Georgia teams. This varies a little from the real facts in the case. Walker was an outfielder and a good one. His hitting was not so heavy, but he was a clever fielder and Coach Reynolds, who was then in charge of the Georgia teams, esteemed him highly.

AS DEATH APPROACHED HE ASKED ABOUT GAMES

It will be remembered that just a few days before death came to relieve him of suffering and of waiting he asked how the Georgia-Tech baseball game, the final one of the season, had resulted.

"Georgia won," they told him, and his answer, "Then that makes the series tied."

Truth to say, Georgia lost and Tech had won the series by three games to one, but physicians and friends were taking no chances of disturbing him.

His remark recalls his own record on the baseball field. In 1903, when he played on the varsity nine, Tech and Georgia met in two games. Georgia won the first by a one-run lead and Tech the last by an overwhelming score. That year, considering the season as a whole, Georgia made more than good.

POPULAR WITH HIS FELLOW STUDENTS

Walker figured in other lines, however, as well as in sports.

In the Pandora his name is given as "Billington Sanders Walker, Jr.," residence, Monroe, Ga.; A. B., member of Phi Kappa Literary society and of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

At the time he was a member of the senior class, his fraternity was composed of the following boys, many of whom are now prominent in state political and business circles: R. W. Jones, Clayton Jones, F. R. McIntyre, J. Mortimer, J. W. Walters, Jr., R. A. Ransom, J. F. Baxter, A. L. Hull, Jr., C. D. Dorsey, M. H. Smith, Miner Boyd, W. H. Jones and W. H. Jackson, Jr.

He was a member of the Sphinx, one of the most prized societies at the university, whose membership is picked from men who, in the opinion of the members of the society, have most distinguished themselves in all lines of college endeavor.

He was also a member of the Thalians, playing in the play given in 1903 in the form of Pinero's Muckelheim, the daughter of the countess.

These and other college honors were recorded in the annual with those remembered and many stories of his career in college recalled when in June there gathered in Athens the class of 1903 to celebrate the tenth tenth anniversary of graduation.

YOUNG WIFE LEFT BABY LOCKED UP IN ROOM

Charge Is Made Against Mrs. Evelyn Brooks, of Macon, Who Is Suing for Alimony.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. Evelyn Brooks, an 18-year-old bride of one year, has filed suit in the superior court for alimony from her husband, J. C. Brooks, a railroad conductor, who was last week awarded possession of their 15-month-old child.

Mrs. Brooks claims her husband makes $150 a month and that her health has been seriously impaired by his failure to provide proper medical attention for her.

The habeas corpus hearing at which the father was awarded the custody of the child was rather a sensational one. Brooks and other witnesses testified that Mrs. Brooks would go away from home leaving the baby locked in a room for six and eight hours at a time. Once during the hearing Mrs. Brooks seized a rook and, slamming it down on the table, cried: "It's a lie." When the ordinary ordered her to give up the child she refused to do so and two deputy sheriffs had to take it away from her by force.

George Douglas Sentenced.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—George Douglas, brother-in-law of Mrs. Francis Tedder, was also given one year in the penitentiary this morning in connection with the robbery of W. F. Kersey here last fall. Mrs. Tedder had previously been sentenced to one year.

Douglas is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Tedder and it was alleged that they "doped" Kersey and then robbed him of $175.

Beach Company's Contract.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The validity of a contract entered into between the Beach Manufacturing company, of Appling county, and a Michigan capitalist two days before the company was placed in the hands of a receiver, is the point on which the insolvency of that company now hinges.

Under the terms of the contract the Michigan man was to pay the company $165,000 for the delivery of a large tract of land in Florida, and $18,000 was paid two days after the company was placed in the hands of a receiver. On June 9 Judge Speer will decide whether or not the contract is binding.

J. N. Talley, attorney for the Beach company, states that if Judge Speer confirms the contract the company will have enough money to pay its creditors dollar for dollar. Attorney Max Isaacs representing the creditors asked the court not to decide right away as the receiver is on the eve of entertaining an offer of $180,000 for the land.

In this case a demand has been made for a jury trial, the first time such a thing has been done in the southern district of Georgia since the present bankruptcy law went into effect.

Will Resist Receivership.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The question of whether or not a receiver shall be named for the L. Carter company will be determined next Wednesday at St. Simon's Island, where Judge Emory Speer will go for a short vacation.

The Carter company claims that it is perfectly solvent and will resist the effort to have a re ETAOIN NN sales effort to have a receiver named. L. Carter, president of the company, is reported to be a millionaire.

Shot for Slap.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Because Willie Perkins, a 15-year-old negro, slapped his face, Ross Byas, a 12-year-old negro, went to his home in Pleasant Hill, secured a single-barrel shotgun and returning to Third avenue and Culver street, shot Perkins in the stomach. He then fled but was later apprehended and lodged in jail.

Young Byas claims the gun was accidentally discharged while they were scuffling over the weapon, but others say that such was not the case.

Perkins is not expected to live.

DALLAS HIGH SCHOOL HOLDS COMMENCEMENT

Dallas, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Dallas High school commencement exercises were held in the High school auditorium tonight and a large crowd attended. Rev. J. A. Sharp, of Young Harris college, will preach the commencement sermon tomorrow. The literary address will be delivered Monday morning at 10 o'clock by Dr. J. Edge, financial agent of Shorter college. At the graduating exercises Monday night the following will receive diplomas:

Lelle Lee, Annie Clyde Crocker, Burma Meek, Mary Pope Watson, Lizzie D. Watson, Lucile Marchman, Clarence Holland, Frank Watson and Mack Matthews.

Leaders of Factions Confer at Washington and Plan Reorganization—National Convention Likely to Be Called

Washington, May 24.—Leaders of the republican party laid preliminary plans here today for the congressional campaign of 1914 and the national political battle of two years later to regain control of congress and possession of the white house.

As a result the republican national committee will meet sixty days after adjournment of the extra session of congress and an extraordinary republican national convention is expected not later than a year hence.

Changes in the basis of representation in national conventions and reform methods of party procedure, which have been subject to criticism, will be disposed through these agencies. Close co-operation between the national committee and the congressional campaign committee was agreed upon.

Today's conference was the first formal meeting of republican leaders since the 1912 campaign, and it was harmonious from the time Chairman Charles D. Hilles, of the national committee, called for order, until the last motion was adopted. The need for reform within the party was not denied. The suggestion of the progressive element for a national convention in the near future was heard, and it was practically the unanimous opinion that such a convention should be called. It was decided to submit this question to the national committee, and the agreement of opinion among the executive committeemen was taken as an indication of what might be expected from the larger body.

Committees to Co-Operate.

Plan for the campaign agreed upon included co-operation by the national committee with the congressional campaign committee through headquarters to be established here in July. Secretary Elmer B. Reynolds, of the national committee, will be in charge.

A committee was selected to consider questions affecting contests before the national committee and recognition of the primary system of electing delegates to national conventions. This committee is expected to advise the national committee whether it has authority to change the basis of representation. The executive committee was not agreed upon this question and legal advice was thought advisable. It was the general opinion, however, that a national convention would be called in 1916.

Senator Jones, representing progressives who met in Chicago recently to urge an early national convention, a clearer understanding of how primary delegate elections were to be regarded, the methods of settling contests and a change of representation, expressed himself as personally satisfied with today's action.

National committeeman Martin, of Virginia, made a speech against a reduction of southern representation, but other members were responsible for the statement that republican leaders in other southern states would not oppose this plan.

The decision to call the national committee all together sixty days after adjournment of congress was reached because by that time party leaders believe that they will have a sufficient idea of what the country thinks of the democratic tariff, currency reform and possibly other important legislation, to lay definite lines for the campaign.

Need of National Convention.

The session of the executive committee was devoted almost entirely to a discussion of the need for a national convention. Committeeman Warren, of Michigan, made the motion to call a meeting and practically every member climbed on the band wagon and followed. There were no expressions of disapproval, the only questions were those of detail.

Practical unanimous sentiment developed in favor of holding the convention. The executive committee probably will recommend that the national committee do so. While a majority of the executive committee expressed the belief that the national committee could change the basis of southern representation and change the party rules, they agreed that the weight of a party convention should be put behind any reorganization plan.

Former Senator Sanders, national committeeman from Tennessee, declared the republicans should wait until "they heard the echoes from the country" on the achievements of the democratic administration.

A point of co-operation between the republican national committee and the republican congressional committee was agreed upon.

Memorial for Progressives.

When the committee met it had a memorial from the conciliation committee of the republican progressives, headed by Senator Cummins, appointed as a result of the recent Chicago conference. This formulated a request that an early meeting of the national committee be called. It included a statement of the reforms proposed at the Chicago conference, which would provide for party recognition of the primary system of selecting delegates to the national conventions and a change of basis of representation to conform to the voting strength of the party in the various states, a change directed against the heavy representation from the south.

Upon the merits of proposed reforms the executive committee does not pass. As far as consolidated reorganization plans are concerned, the only thing the committee may decide is whether to call the national committee. Many leaders assert that a convention is not necessary to carry out contemplated reorganization plans, that the committee can enact them. The progressive republicans, however, insist a convention is necessary.

Senator Jones, holding a proxy from Sam Perkins, national committeeman from Washington, met with the executive committee and presented the ideas of Senator Cummins and the progressives seeking an early national convention. Many republicans of prominence, including former Speaker Cannon and former Representative McKinley, manager of the Taft pre-convention campaign, gathered about the room where the committee met.

The letter from the conciliation committee sets forth a report of the progressive republican conference in Chicago and asks for "a meeting of the republican national committee in the near future to act upon the suggestion made by a great many republicans that there be held during the present year a republican national convention."

Reasons for Request

Setting forth the reasons for this request, the committee, in part, says:

"We believe that an overwhelming majority of the republican party have reached the conclusion that the basis of representation in our national conventions is not only unjust, but contrary to the fundamental principle of representative government. The present system enables a minority of republican voters in national conventions, dictate party nominations and determine party declarations, and, however praiseworthy may have been the motives of its original adoption, it is no longer defensible.

"We earnestly desire the restoration of the republican party to full strength and power. The principles are sound, wise and patriotic, and the body of the party will apply those principles to the conditions of these times in an enlightened, unselfish way if they have a fair opportunity to do so.

"So long as the voting republicans in certain sections of the country have from 8 to 50 times greater representation in a national convention than the voting republicans in other sections of the country, it cannot be said that the act of the convention is the act of the majority and discontent followed by revolt are the natural results.

"We believe that it is more logical that republican national committeemen should assume office prior, rather than subsequent to future regular republican national conventions. We believe that some method should be devised and put into effect before the next regular republican national convention, whereby the unhappy contests which have marked the seating of delegates in past republican national conventions should be largely avoided and settled without heat and partisanship, which have so often marked them."

Fayetteville 20, Zebulon 1.

LIVELY CHASE FOR NEGRO SNEAK THIEF

A big yellow negro by the name of Robert Gibson was the cause of a near riot on Decatur street Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when he snatched a money handkerchief containing $3.50 from an old negro woman across the street from the police station.

With cries of "stop that negro," the chase began and a dozen policeman, sitting on the steps of the station, joined in the chase, but the negro was so fleet as though the whole of Decatur street was in the chase. Running down a near-by alley, the negro eluded all of the thirty-none taking effect. Turnkey C. H. Brannon caught him a block and a half from the police station, and it was necessary for the police to disperse the crowd that gathered about the station when taken there.

Gibson was later identified as the negro who snatched a pocketbook Friday night from a white woman at Piedmont and Cain streets.

Herndon's Crystal Palace Barber Shop

Remodeled and Refurnished, Is Now the Finest and Most Sanitary Barber Shop in the World

THIS is your barber shop. It was designed and built to please you. No detail, however slight, that could in any way add to your comfort while here has been overlooked. Neither time nor money has been spared in creating a large, bright, airy and strictly sanitary barber shop, where you can rest in absolute comfort and receive the attentions of men skilled by years of service in their profession. And, despite the fact that thousands of dollars have been spent in renovating and refurnishing this shop, there is no advance in prices to you.

Mr. Herndon's desire to give Atlantans a barber shop unequaled anywhere led him to visit the best shops in the United States and the principal cities of Europe. With the information thus acquired and the experience gained through thirty-one years' service in his profession in Atlanta, he made his plans. Surely no one is better fit to judge of what he offers than himself, and it is but the plain truth when he says that he now offers you THE FINEST BARBER SHOP IN THE WORLD.

23 Barber Chairs

They cost $100 each, and were made to order of porcelain, brass and nickel. The upholstering is of fine Spanish leather in a rich green shade. They are large, roomy chairs with innovations designed to add to the comfort of the occupant.

Red Cross Sterilizing Cabinets

Made of glass with nickel trimmings. They contain a disinfectant that destroys germs on razors, brushes, combs, clippers, shears and every appliance used in haircutting, shaving and shampooing.

Four Massive Crystal Chandeliers

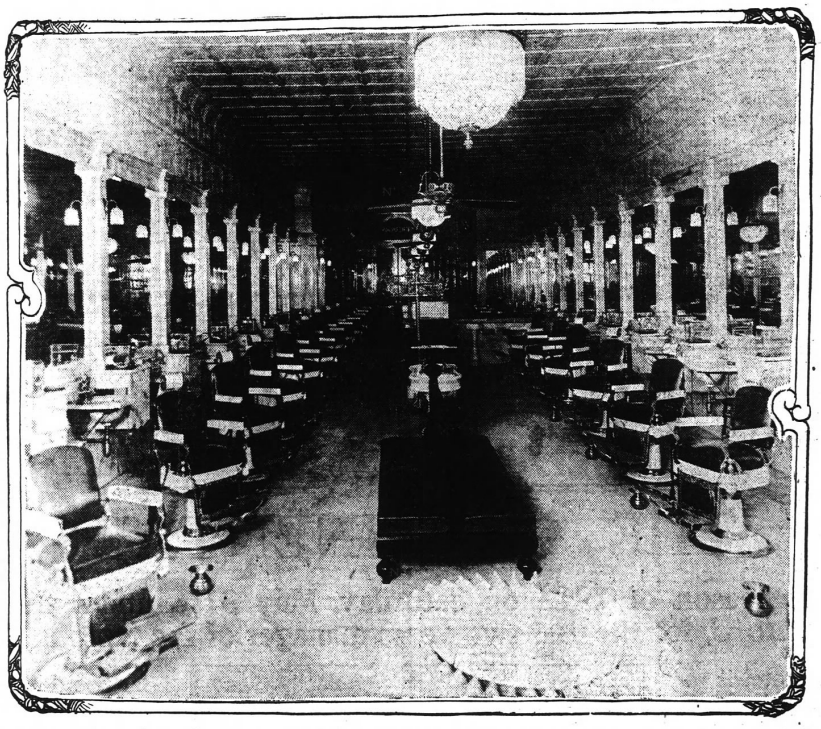
Magnificent fixtures that throw their light into every corner in the shop. Two have six 60-candlepower lamps; two have ten 40-candlepower lamps. The light is clear and soft—no glare.

Crystal Wall Lamps

One on each side of the large French beveled mirrors opposite each chair. They throw their light on the customers in the chairs and enable the barbers to serve to the best advantage.

Electric Fans

Attached to the ceiling insure a continuous current of cool, fresh air through the entire shop. One is comfortable even on the hottest day.



16 White Porcelain Bath Tubs

These are in the hall beneath the barber shop. The tubs are large and trimmed with nickel. There is one to each of the sixteen apartments, which have white tile floors and walls of solid white marble. Here one can bathe in comfort, no matter how high the mercury climbs. Electric fans from the ceiling keep the air cool.

Two Large and Modern Needle Showers

These are of nickel, and are placed in apartments similar to those containing the tubs. Here the floors are of white tiling and the walls of solid white marble. The needle shower is one of the most invigorating forms of bathing.

A Pressing Service

Operated beneath the barber shop. An expert presser is in attendance at all hours, ready to sponge and press your suit while you bathe. Charge 40 cents.

23 Skilled and Courteous Barbers

Cheerful and intelligent men who know their business thoroughly, and whose service has received the approval of Atlanta's most particular citizens. With this force at my command, you are seldom kept waiting.

Eight Attentive Porters

They are alert and courteous. Some shine shoes; some attend to the baths; others keep the floors clean, and are at your service generally.

White Metal Ceiling. White Tile Floor. White Marble Bootblack Stands. Nickel Plated Stools and Hat Racks. Mahogany Doors With Heavy Plate Glass.

From the white metal ceiling to the white tile floor; from mirrored wall to mirrored wall; from front doors of mahogany and heavy plate glass to rear doors of the same materials, everything in my shop is the best procurable. Sanitation is a fact, not a promise. Metal and marble have been used in preference to wood wherever possible. Even the bootblack stands are of marble and nickel. The shelves at each chair are of marble and nickel. The ice chest, specially designed, is made of marble. In this chest, located in the basement, are many coils of pipe covered with ice. Pure drinking water flows through these coils, is cooled and then forced up to the fountain in the shop.

I have enjoyed the patronage of Atlantans for nearly thirty-one years and have always tried to give them satisfactory service. In my new shop, with its handsome, comfortable and clean furnishings, more extensive equipment and increased force of attendance, I offer a continuance of the same high personal service and marked improvement in the mechanical side. Every one, from the youngest to the eldest, from the humblest to the most highly skilled, shall spare no pains to please you.

SOCIETY

Miss Davis Entertains.

Among the delightful affairs given to the seniors of Miss Hanna's school was a heart-dice party at which Miss Dorothy Davis entertained Saturday afternoon in compliment to Miss Pattie Will Askew, of Columbus, Miss.

The house was artistically decorated in daisies and ferns, the school colors, white and yellow, being the color scheme carried out in all details. The score cards were hand-painted in daisies, and the prizes were white and yellow boudier caps. Miss Askew was presented with a gold hatpin.

Miss Davis received her guests wearing a white lace dress. Miss Askew wore white satin.

Assisting in entertaining Miss Davis was her mother, Mrs. Davis, wearing a white lingerie dress over blue.

Miss Mildred Stewart and Miss Beatrice Winslow presided over the punch bowl, both wearing dainty white dresses over yellow.

Among those invited were the juniors and seniors of Miss Hanna's, Miss Pattie Will Askew, guest of honor, Misses Cecil Harwell, Rudene Beehr, Bonnie Kate Martin, Hazel Rainey, Crateen Burger, Katharine Cleaton, Estelle Barrett, Tommie Bryan, Doris Reeves, Maggie Lee Oglesby, Ruby Sawyer, Nell Morris, Ruth Newman, Olive Lincoln, Florence McGee, Mary Padgett, Ruth Rockmore and Helen Gamble. The seniors are Misses Frances Kilpatrick, Winnie Couch, Mary Bradley, Louise Donaldson, Louise Thrash, Mary Harper, Rolena Shaw, Marie Cox, Eva Doyle, Ruby Anchors, Lyra Seymour, Lucile Callahan, Julia Newman, Mattie Lue Morris, Mattie Nesbitt, Frances Wardlaw, Sarah Liddell, Maria Cobb, Helen Atkinson, Miss Gladys Hudson, of Chattanooga and Mrs. Gamble and Miss Hanna.

Mrs. Browne's Recital.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, a large audience gathered in Cable hall last Friday evening to greet the pupils of the Atlanta conservatory.

The program was made up largely of the younger piano pupils from the class of Mrs. Lottie Gray Browne, assisted by some of her more advanced students, and a young pupil from the department of expression and one from the violin department.

Those taking part in the recital were: Miss Elizabeth Sloan, Miss Evelyn McGahee, Miss Marie Lester, Miss Marian Kriegshaber, Miss Christine McEachern, Miss Camille Work, Miss Mary Louise Wray, Robert Turner, Miss Edna Heard, Miss Isolyn Barker, Frank Smith, Miss Virginia Haugh, Miss Elizabeth Richardson, Frank Turner, Miss Louise Bates, Miss Marian Gillespie, Miss Marie Almand, Miss Elizabeth Martin and Miss Phebe Kirk.

ELSIE GORDON,

Lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Gordon, who celebrated her seventh birthday last Saturday.

For Miss Hartzog.

One of a series of parties being given in honor of Miss Irene Hartzog, a bride-elect, was Mrs. J. W. Faulkenberg's bridge party Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Faulkenberg's home in West End was decorated with pink roses and a decorative scheme of pink and white was carried out in all of the details.

The prize for top score, a silver sugar rack, was won by Mrs. S. L. Bagwell, and the consolation, a fancy basket, was won by Mrs. S. L. Rhorer.

The guest of honor was given a dainty fan.

Miss Hartzog wore a gown of white embroidered crepe combined with lace and a white hat.

Mrs. Faulkenberg wore a white lingerie gown.

The guests present were Mrs. Effie Westbrook, Mrs. Jeff Green, Mrs. Mrs. Burke, Mrs. S. L. Rhorer, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. W. M. Lewis, Mrs. C. N. Dennis, Mrs. John Burdine, Mrs. J. H. Watson, Mrs. S. R. Bagwell, Mrs. R. T. Jones, Miss Irene Rearden, Mrs. Edgar A. Woody and Mrs. W. H. Turner.

Mrs. R. T. Jones will entertain at two tables of bridge Monday afternoon for Miss Hartzog. Mrs. J. H. Watson gives a bridge luncheon Wednesday. Miss Westbrook entertains at her home in Fairburn Friday afternoon. Mrs. C. N. Dennis gives a box party at the Atlanta, followed by tea at the Georgian Terrace Saturday.

Mrs. W. H. Turner will also entertain for Miss Hartzog.

Constable-Waldron.

A marriage of interest to a wide circle of friends was that of Miss Roberta Hodges Constable and Mr. Ethelbert Waldron, of this city, which took place yesterday morning at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. F. H. Constable, in Chestertown, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldron left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding trip and they will be at home in Atlanta after June 1.

Atlantans at Asheville.

A great many Atlanta people have been spending the week at this resort, which has always been a popular one with them for nearly a quarter of a century, and this year promises to break all previous records at the Battery Park hotel, and, judging by the advance bookings, the hotel will be filled to overflowing during mid-summer.

Miss Emily Harrison and Miss Hopkins, two very charming young women from Atlanta, spent some time at the Battery Park hotel recently.

Rev. Dr. Robert Campbell has been absent, in Atlanta, where he attended the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, and where he received a warm welcome from many friends in that city.

Miss Emma Kate Armorous, of Atlanta, who was the guest of Miss Ellen Smathers, of Asheville, was the guest of honor at numerous affairs, has returned to her home. She was given Dutch suppers, picnic parties, luncheons and teas; in fact, there were a series of social festivities during her visit for she is an exceedingly popular young woman, and her departure is deeply regretted.

Atlanta people who have registered at the Battery Park hotel recently include: H. S. Smith, R. A. Saimer, David L'Esperance, Barclay Hamlin, J. H. Palmer, S. T. Flynt.

For Miss Andrews.

Miss Lina Andrews, whose marriage to Mr. Christian Rauschenberg will take place on June 10, will be the guest of honor at a number of entertainments preceding her wedding.

Mrs. S. C. Dobbs gives a luncheon Tuesday at her home in Inman Park. Mrs. Florence Harris gives a miscellaneous shower on Thursday.

Friday morning Miss Laurette Lewis and Mrs. W. L. Johnson will entertain at the home of Mrs. Johnson.

Mrs. Warren White will entertain for Miss Andrews and for Mrs. Glasgow, of Tyron, Pa., at a reception Tuesday afternoon, June 3, at her home in Inman Park.

Thursday afternoon, June 5, Mrs. C. A. Rauschenberg gives a reception in honor of Miss Andrews.

A luncheon will be given by Miss Mildred Harris on June 6. Miss Leila Branch entertains the same afternoon and Miss Eula Hancock entertains Saturday, June 7.

For Miss Bowron.

Mrs. Frank Pearson will give a spend-the-day party Thursday for her guest, Miss Edith Bowron, of Birmingham.

For Miss Perkins.

An automobile party went to Lithia Springs to spend last Sunday, the occasion complimenting Miss Annie Tillman Perkins, of Sharon, Ga. Those in the party were: Miss Annie H. Perkins, Miss Clara King, Miss Nellie Carpenter, Miss Katie Cleveland, Messrs. Raymond Duke, Raymond Sewell, Terrell Hammond and J. Corley. The day was most delightfully spent in kodaking and motoring, and a picnic dinner was served.

Miss Perkins will be given a number of small affairs next week.

To Miss Boyd.

Miss Corrie Hoyt Brown will give a matinee party Monday, the 2d, in compliment to Miss Carolyn King's guest, Miss Boyd, of Nashville.

Miss Boyd was one of the visiting belles at the dance at the East Lake club house last night, and afterwards at the Driving club dinner dance.

Miss Le Craw Graduates.

Miss Daisy Le Craw is a talented Atlanta girls who has made a splendid record this year at college. She graduates in piano, at Washington college, Washington, D. C., and her prominent part in college activities throughout her course of study is reflected in her prominent part in the commencement exercise, which began Thursday and will end in the graduation exercises Monday evening.

Miss Grace Le Craw, Miss Gladys Dunson and Miss Louise Parker, Atlanta girls, are undergraduates at Washington college, and will return home Wednesday.

Flower Mission.

One of the many departments of work in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is the flower mission. It is not a charity, but reaches out to bless and cheer and comfort those in trouble, illness or sorrow. It reaches the rich and poor, the old and shut-in. The imprisoned or unfortunate are always uplifted by the flowers which are tied with white ribbon with a text from God's word attached.

The flower mission work extends around the world. The first national superintendent was Miss Jennie Cassiday, who was an invalid from childhood. She conducted this work for years with wonderous skill from her sick bed. Her birthday is on June 9, and at her request all jails, asylums, homes, hospitals and the sick and shut-in are visited on this day, and flowers are taken to the many unfortunates. The Atlanta Frances Willard, the Patterson mission and College Park will unite in celebrating the day. A program will be given on June 8, the time and place to be announced later.

The following committees will be in charge of public institutions on that day:

The Soldiers' Home, College Park Union, Home for Incurables, Patterson Union, Grady Hospital—Mrs. Reeves, chairman; Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Mancove.

Wesley Memorial—Mrs. Jane Adkins, chairman; Mrs. Aldred, Mrs. W. F. Wooden, Mrs. Trenary.

Baptist Infirmary — Mrs. Waddil, chairmen; Mrs. Hubert, Mrs. Fred Ingraham, Miss Beatty.

Jail—Mrs. Dougherty, chairman; Mrs. Saul, Mrs. Cay, Mrs. Little, Mrs. Conley, Mrs. Emma Brown.

Old Woman's Home—Mrs. McLendon, chairman; Mrs. Ellington, Mrs. Logue, Mrs. Fowler.

Home for the Friendless—Mrs. W. A. Coleman, chairman; Mrs. Cundy, Mrs. Preston, Mrs. Worrell.

Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Piedmont Temperance Union, Wesley House—Mrs. A. L. Brooks, chairman; Mrs. C. T. Printup, Mrs. Teat, Mrs. T. J. Brown, Mrs. Chamberlin.

Musical Tea.

A musical tea will be given next Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. George A. Wright, 599 Ponce de Leon avenue, for Circle No. 1 of the Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church.

There will be a rare treat of musical talent in store for all those who are present. A free-will offering will be greatly appreciated.

Ladies of the Maccabees.

Capitol Hive, No. 1, Ladies of the Maccabees, will hold a regular review on Tuesday afternoon, May 27. A good attendance is urged, and all members having secured subscriptions to the Woman's Edition will please bring same with them, as we wish to turn subscriptions and cash in as fast as it is collected.

THE AWAKENING CHURCHES.

Two significant events took place in the religious world last week. The Southern Baptist convention, in session at St. Louis, agreed to enter social service work. What is equally important, the convention voted to co-operate with the northern Baptists in this field. In Atlanta the Presbyterians took steps that may lead to co-operation between all branches of that great denomination in work looking toward the solution of the negro problem.

These two incidents, compressed into one week and transpiring in different denominations, have their own significance, but are really only illustrations of a tendency steadily manifest of late. The chief criticism of the churches during the twentieth century is that they failed to lay practical hold of practical problems. Friendly observers did not question the fervor or spirituality of the churches. They only knew that attendance increasingly slumped, particularly among the men, and that the devotion and consecration manifested in the days of our fathers was not nearly so much in evidence.

The churches are beginning to make answer. And their answer is in the most convincing form, since they are fighting evils that are real with weapons that are real, and what is more, they are forgetting academic differences and getting together in the process. With regard to the negro problem, we strongly hold that the millions of negroes in our midst call at least as compellingly to the churches as the distant heathen, and that the churches' duty lay here no less than abroad. There are indications that the churches are themselves seeing the situation in this light. The symptom is encouraging.

The social service feature of the Baptists, and the compact formed between north and south in handling it, is equally gratifying. The combatting of vice, the bettering of social and industrial conditions, is work that should essentially engage the attention of religion—practical, experienced religion—not the kind filled with theories from seminaries and ignorant of "things as they are." It would not be surprising if the next few years developed a new militancy in the church. If it comes, it will be due to the fact that the churches recognize new and commanding duties in a new and practical age.

WHY NOT GEORGIA?

The following editorial extract from The Boston Transcript ought to wake up the railroads and commercial organizations of Georgia, as well as those of the south generally:

> A great movement of Canadians to Texas is said to be foreshadowed by the purchase of immense tracts of territory in that state by a syndicate of British capitalists. If the report is correct we may see an emigration from Canada that will at least partially offset the trek of American farmers to the Canadian northwest. Texas is big enough to stand a vast volume of immigration without being crowded. Its resources are so varied that within its boundaries can be raised cotton, wheat, corn, grapes, melons, fruits and politicians in unlimited quantities. Texas has now a population more than half as large as that of the Dominion, and ambitions fully as great.

Georgia should be emulating the example of Texas! Surely the resources of this state are as varied as those of the Lone Star State. It is true that we lack the vast area of Texas, but we make up in versatility of climate and fertility of soil. We have, too, a tremendous lot of undeveloped lands and other lots of lands that with small expenditure can be brought to fabulous richness. That is not to reckon the swamp area of the state. When it is drained, and preparations to that end are now making, this now submerged area alone will feed a large population.

Georgia could easily get her share not only of Canadian immigration—and Canadians make excellent citizens—but also of American immigrants.

THE MEN WHO FEED US.

Effective with the first Wednesday of next month, June 4, the employees of the retail grocers and clerks, jobbers, commission merchants and meat packers of Atlanta will begin to enjoy a half holiday each week during the months of June, July and August for the first time in the history of Atlanta. The summer weekly half holiday is already an established institution with a large majority of the establishments in other lines in this city. Some years ago the movement was originated at the instance of Harry L. Schlesinger. Saturday was fixed upon as the logical day for the half-holiday, and the movement has spread phenomenally. But the retail groceries and meat shops and other establishments having to do with feeding of the public could not well afford to close on Saturdays, since the week-end marks of course the high-tide of buying. Had these places closed on Saturdays they would have worked a community hardship. As told elsewhere, the Retail Grocers and Butchers' Association of Atlanta has for a year been debating ways and means of giving their employees a weekly half-holiday without interfering with the city's convenience. They have fixed on Wednesdays of each week as the day best adapted to this purpose. So that beginning with the first Wednesday in June employers and employees in this line of business will enjoy the recreation common to other workers in Atlanta. All establishments will close at noon Wednesdays.

It is planned to inaugurate the event with what promises to be the most impressive parade in the history of the city. Plans as announced by O. T. Camp and Francis Kamper, one president of the association, and the other ex-president and chairman of its holiday committee, and both largely instrumental in the success of the recreation movement, indicate the scope of the parade. Under the direction of Harry Schlesinger and Nym McCullough, grand marshals, the parade will form on June 4 at 1:30 p. m., at the state capitol, and from there traverse the center of the city. Atlantans to the number of 10,000 will be directly interested in the procession, since it is estimated that number of people are dependent upon these fundamental businesses for support. Following the parade the merchants will be entertained extensively by the entertainment committee.

The association is to be heartily commended for extending the weekly half-holiday to its employees. The people of Atlanta will join with them June 4 in celebrating the inauguration of a recreation season for one of the hardest-worked and most conscientious classes in the city's industries.

A POOR BUSINESS POLICY.

The editor of The Southwest Georgian, published at Fort Gaines, has collected one of the most painstaking and detailed analyses of the consumption and production of a county taken in recent years. Read his editorial reproduced elsewhere. He shows what the county is raising and what it may legitimately expect to receive for those products. He shows what the county must spend, and most of it is to be sent abroad, for foodstuffs. He thinks about "one-tenth" enough food will be raised "as usual." He strikes the inevitable balance. And this is where he makes the Sherman prediction. He shows, too, that it is all so unnecessary. The county of which Fort Gaines is the seat and all the surrounding counties could raise every pound of this stuff for which they are now paying the west.

If one Georgia county is piling up debt by reason of the all-cotton folly, what about other counties? Is the prospect any more promising? In this connection we also publish elsewhere a clipping from The Sandersville Georgian. Fifty years ago it was said that the first anxiety of the farmer was for the wheat crop. Now it is for cotton. And as a result, the farmers are compelled to "buy provisions with the proceeds of the cotton crop."

Read as a contrast, and an illustration of what the situation would be if the Georgia farmers were awake, the clipping from The Dawson News. The Brooks county folk are in splendid financial condition because they not only produce their own meat and corn, but raise enough to sell it by the carload to surrounding and less provident counties.

The Constitution is not a prophet of evil. We are not discussing subjects that are not of common knowledge in Georgia. Our criticism, if destructive, is only so that we may encourage the destruction of cotton, as a parasite on prosperity, and the construction of a prosperity not based solely on one crop. The figures from Fort Gaines carry their own story. If the county goes behind this year, it will go behind next year, under the present system.

That is the condition in virtually nine-tenths of the Georgia counties. They are making one crop carry the whole load. Capitalizing the automatic increase in the value of their lands, they are ignoring the production of corn, and meat, and robbing their revenue from its single source to pay for upkeep.

The future of the state demands the abandonment of this folly. The banker and merchant is as keenly interested as the farmer.

THE REIGN OF TOLERANCE.

Remarking on the decrease of religious intolerance in this country, The Chicago Post designates, as follows, the south and Canada as the two sections of the continent where heresy-hunting still flourishes:

> Decade by decade the two zones of theological intensity on this continent grow more narrow. These two zones are, roughly speaking, Canada and the south. The northern half of the United States is becoming a great zone of toleration, and for real outbreaks of heresy hunting one must go north or south. When the same subtle change which has come over the north spreads through the denominations in Canada and the south, the battles of theology in the months of May and June will grow less fervid and less interesting.

So far as the south is concerned, the indictment is slightly exaggerated. Relatively, the section is as free of intolerance as is the north or east. It is hardly a geographical matter. Time was when the great center of religious intolerance was the New England states, from the witch-burning days on. The remainder of the country held not nearly so narrow a spirit. Later the reaction came in New England, as was inevitable. The broadening of horizons extended proportionately to other parts of the country. Today the level is virtually normal throughout the nation, with a shade more stringency, perhaps, in the south.

It is of common memory in the south that not many years ago from many country pulpits the preacher expounded the doctrine of hell and damnation by fire and brimstone. He honestly believed that doctrine, as did his congregation; and both honestly believed that the man who did not take their route was doomed. These views do not, however, compare in vigor with those once sought to be believed by all New England in the republic's early days. And not long ago the whole north was wrought to a fever by the heresy trials of university professors and preachers whose names it is useless to mention. Today the doctrines for which these men were indicted go practically without challenge. The same can be said for the south today.

These extremes of intolerance in religion are passing, as is intolerance in other things. We have discovered that bigotry of any sort is unjust, that it does not pay, and that it is an enemy to progress. We are judging by deeds, not the shadows of words or fanatical phantasms. It is fortunate for the cause of true religion and of the national destiny that this is so. For breadth is the symbol of growth and bigotry of stagnation.

WHERE ECONOMY IS CRIME.

The Constitution prints elsewhere two articles on the conservation of the child that should focus the attention of every resident of Atlanta. The first is from Dr. Theodore Toepel, physical director in the Atlanta public school system. The other is the account of an experiment in fresh air teaching in the schools of Philadelphia.

The race is no stronger than its children. We know that the greatest feature in medical science today is that which looks toward prevention and the building of sound and moral minds in sound bodies. Are we exerting our utmost efforts in that direction in Atlanta, or are we permitting the old, abominable policy of so-called "economy" to thwart the health and the future welfare of the generation that is to rule tomorrow?

Dr. Toepel says that under our existing method two physical instructors divide the responsibility of 23,344 children and 508 teachers. According to the standards of other cities, we should have at least twelve instructors—that is a minimum. He also discusses the value of physical training to the child, how instrumental a part it plays in enabling it to resist disease, to establish strength against the demands of maturity and to absorb the benefits of education. Is parsimony in this respect, as in other, depriving Atlanta's future citizens of a fair start and a square deal?

The description of the fresh-air experiments in Philadelphia is conclusive. For a year students of the same age and origin and strength were taught under different conditions; one in the conventional school-room, with ordinary steam heat and ventilation; the other in a school room with heat only turned on upon extremely cold days, with the windows wide open, but with children well wrapped against cold. At the end of the test, the fresh air children had so far distanced the hot-house children, mentally and physically, as to furnish no basis for comparison. Read the story in full.

Even the unstudious reader should need no lecture about the virtues of fresh air. Everybody knows the robust health, concert-pitch efficiency and energy of the outdoor liver, and his advantage over the shut-in, and that fresh air is the one cure for tuberculosis and other diseases. Fresh air is life. Foul air, or insufficient air, disease and paralyzed faculties.

We commend these two articles heartily to the parents and school board of Atlanta.

But you now there are saints in town—
Prayed for rain, an' the rain come down!
The angels heard us, high up there
An' sent the rain through the startled air.
O I bet you now there are saints in town—
A word to heaven, an' the rain comes down.

II.

The blessed rain, on hill an' plain—
The lillies' cup for the bees to drain;
And I want to feel how sweet it is
The rain from the rose's lips to kiss.
No more we're livin' in Trouble Town—
Prayed for rain, an' rain come down.

News From the Settlement.

"This letter has no news in it at all," writes a correspondent of the Adams Enterprise. "Nothing has happened here worth telling, except that two men had their heads cut off in a saw mill, and the man who tried to wreck the cannon ball train was killed by the same, and a woman was bit by three rattlesnakes all in one day, and the preacher's horse run away with him and broke one of his legs. I hope, in my next, to give you some news."

WHAT ALL-COTTON FETICH MAY COST GEORGIA FARMERS

(Fort Gaines Southwest Georgian.)

From January 1, 1913, to May 15 of same year there were shipped into Fort Gaines from distant states, 1,696,680 pounds of corn, oats, feed and meal.

In this huge pile were nearly half a million pounds each of corn, oats and mixed feed, 97,000 pounds of hay and 199,800 pounds of meal.

Besides all this there were more than 240,000 pounds of western meat unloaded at the railroad depot.

The retail value of these nearly two million pounds of feed is approximately $52,000. Ninety-five per cent of the entire tonnage has already been bought and "fed away;" and farmers in this immediate section did nearly all the buying and feeding.

That isn't all. The same show is going on (perhaps on a slightly smaller scale) at Coleman, Edison, Bluffton and Blakely. Clay county farmers are big users of the shipments of feed received at those places.

This county has already spent at least $70,000 for corn, oats, hay, mixed feed and bacon. A Fort Gaines banker says it will take that much more to finish the crop, i. e., to keep an adequate food supply until about July 15.

Then there's flour, sugar, lard, coffee, clothing, fertilizer, and a dozen other things that cost money.

We're going to spend about three-quarters of a million dollars this year. Half of it will be for something to eat, and four-fifths of this is food we could raise here in the county without perceptibly lessening our cotton crop.

We're going to make this year, if we have good luck, about half a million dollars' worth of cotton, which will not pay our debts.

How much food will be raised, this year, we don't begin to know; but our guess is that there'll be about one-tenth of enough as usual. And that will spell again, next year, what Sherman said.

Who's to blame? Who's going to try to do something to straighten out the kinks? Somebody had better come here quick!

Can we do any good by getting everybody together and having a heart-to-heart talk?

The All-Cotton Folly.

(From The Sandersville Georgian.)

Our Oconee correspondent states that half a century ago the first question one farmer would ask of another at this season of the year was about the condition of his wheat crop, while now cotton is the first. If we could get back to the old plan of raising plenty of provisions, cotton would command a higher price, and besides we would not have to buy provisions with the proceeds of the sale of cotton.

This County Sells.

(From The Dawson News.)

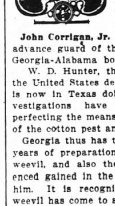
Brooks county is out of debt and has $22,000 in the county treasury. Pisel—Madison Madisonian.

There's a reason. Brooks county farmers sell meat and corn by the carload. It's no uncommon thing for a carload of hams to be shipped by a Brooks county farmer. The banks in that county borrow money from the farmers.

Gossip Caught in Corridors Of the National Capitol

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, May 24.—(Special.)—Lee Worsham, Georgia's able and energetic entomologist, and seventy state agents acting under the department of agriculture will be compelled next year, unless something unforseen happens, to meet the invading hosts of the boll weevil, the most destructive foe to the cotton crop of the south.



John Corrigan, Jr.

They have been preparing for this struggle for several years. They have watched the relentless war waged against this pest in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and now in Alabama. They have observed that in spite of this war, the boll weevil has continued its rapid progress across these states. This year, according to the department of agriculture, will see the advance guard of this vast horde cross the Georgia-Alabama border.

W. D. Hunter, the boll weevil expert of the United States department of agriculture, is now in Texas doing field work. His investigations have contributed largely to perfecting the means of fighting the advance of the cotton pest and reducing its damages.

Georgia thus has the advantage of several years of preparation for the coming of the weevil, and also the benefit of the experienced gained in the continued fight against him. It is recognized now that the boll weevil has come to stay, and must, from the time of his appearance in any locality, become a permanent factor in the raising of cotton.

Under the old system of cotton culture the boll weevil worked havoc. The first year the damage wrought was not so heavy, probably 10 per cent of the total crop; but the second year, under conditions favorable to the weevil, the damage has run in many instances to 75 per cent of the crop.

Bound to Come.

There is no way to keep the boll weevil back. He is bound to come, and eventually he will spread all over the state of Georgia, but his first appearance will be in the southwestern counties close to the Florida line. He travels faster eastward below the 32nd parallel of latitude than he does northward, the cooler climate checking his progress. Consequently he will spread over the southern counties of Georgia before he extends his operations to the middle counties of Alabama, although he is now in the southern portion of the state. Eventually, however, perhaps in three or four years, he will introduce himself into every cotton producing county of the state. When once there he becomes a permanent, though unwelcome guest.

The strongest weapon against him is intensive and scientific farming. Diversified crops and rotation. This was one thing badly needed in the south, and after all the boll weevil may be a blessing in disguise, if the fight against him will lead to the education of our farmers along this line.

As the agricultural department proceeds with its work of preparing the farmer for the coming of the weevil, each new county feels the force of the blow less than the preceding one.

How to Fight the Weevil.

The department has a list of instructions which it sends to all its agents in counties where the weevil is expected to make its appearance. In southwestern Georgia it might be well to begin to take note of these instructions now. They are as follows:

Read These Instructions.

1. Clear up and burn all rubbish on ditch banks, hedge-rows and other places about the field.
2. The field selected for cultivation in cotton should be well drained.
3. Prepare a good seed bed before planting.
4. Delay planting until all danger of frost is past and the soil is warm enough to produce rapid germination and growth. Extra early nor extra late planting is not recommended.
5. Secure seed of an early maturing variety and of high vitality.
6. On most soils the judicious use of commercial fertilizers will be found profitable and will hasten the maturity of the crop.
7. The use of the section harrow before planting and after planting, and again as soon as the plants are to a stand, is advised.
8. Practice intensive and shallow cultivation at least 3 times a week to continue cultivation until the cotton begins to open.
9. When the boll weevil first appears on the buds of the young cotton plants, carefully hand pick and destroy them until the plant begins to set squares.
10. When the cotton plant begins to set squares and the weevils punctures them, go over the fields carefully once each week, ahead of the cultivator, and pick all of the punctured and fallen squares and burn them. Continue to pick up and destroy the squares until the 10th of August.

The Only Sure Method.

On damp, alluvial bottom lands, and on all lands during wet spells, this picking up of squares must be prosecuted with extra vigilance as it is the only sure method of holding the weevil in check. Picking the weevils and squares, coupled with thorough and intensive cultivation, will go far toward insuring a profitable cotton crop. The neglect of these essentials will be sure to result in failure.

The department urges the farmer not to fear the expense of this picking, as experience shows that the fields can be inspected once each week for weevils and squares until the 10th of August for a total cost of not more than $2 or $3 per acre.

One of the most successful methods of fighting the weevil is "beating him to it," by so cultivating the crop as to get early maturity.

All these things have been hammered into the farmers of Georgia for the past three or four years, and they are gradually educating them up to the point where the fight will be much easier for all concerned than it has been with the farmers of the west where no preparation had been made in advance. Alabama, for instance, is in better shape for the boll weevil, so says the department, than any of the states where the pest exists. Georgia ought to be in still better shape, having the advantage of a little more time for preparation.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)

Louisville is, next to New Orleans, the greatest city south of Messrs. Mason & Dixon's celebrated line. It is the pride of Kentucky and the chief ornament of the Ohio river, which flows past and also through it occasionally, and which puts on a near cataract at this point for the benefit of the government pork-barrel brigade.

Louisville contains 225,000 people by census, but as it only counts Colonel Henry Watterson as one man, the pitifulness of censuses becomes at once apparent.

Louisville is a proud old town with several new buildings and reeks with history and romance. It was founded on an island in 1778 without the approvas of the Ohio river, which immediately began to devour it. During the next few years the founders tossed a penny to decide whether to become Colonels or Hoosiers and moved to the Kentucky shore. Had the penny decided otherwise Louisville would now be in Indiana and full of pork, instead of being 101 per cent southern and so full of hospitality that the casual visitor has to remove himself from his new found friends by a writ of habeas corpus.

Louisville flourished in the ante-bellum days, and 10,000 steamboats saluted it while edging over the falls. It was the home of Louis Phillippe before he became king of France, and enormous numbers of his old arm chairs and four poster beds still exist in the city. It was also the home of Zachary Taylor, of the Henry Clay and Jeff Davis lived near by, and often failed to go home until morning when visiting Louisville friends. Louisville furnished the wife of the Confederate president and had also furnished large numbers of countesses and princesses to European noblemen having almost rifled the old families of their daughters. Louisville society talks art and the science of de luxe living more fluently than that of almost any other American city. The city is full of fine paintings and great museums of the arts, and each hotel looks more like an art gallery than a refuge for the jaded commercial travelers.

Louisville's "Greatest-in-the-world's" include its tobacco market, potato, onion and bourbon whisky shipments and its organ box and wagon factories. Its main duty as host is to show its visitors through its park system, to stun them with the sight of the mountain ranges of tobacco on Main street, make them swim across lakes of Kentucky-made whisky, show them the rathskeller of the new Watterson hotel and take them around the country club circuit. Its chief hopes are to back some more presidential candidates like Clay and Taylor, to catch up with Cincinnati in population and to win a baseball pennant before baseball goes out of style.

It's an Impossibility.

M'CARTY KILLED BY PELKEY GULLS TAKE FINAL FROM LOCALS PELS PLAY HERE ON MONDAY COBB LEADS HITTERS

GULLS

Robertson Pitches Fine Ball for Gulls; Deserved Shut Out

"King" Brady Twirls a Nice Game, but Horrible Errors Beat Him—Alpermann and O'Dell Field Well.

By Dick Jemison.

Playing the most putrid, horrible exhibition of baseball that they have uncorked this season, the Crackers dropped the final game to the Gulls Saturday afternoon by the score of 5 to 1.

This gives the Gulls the odd game of the series, and is their sixth win in the seven games played with the Crackers this season.

The Crackers looked worse Saturday than the Gulls did on Thursday, and that's bringing it down to about as bad a point as one can possibly do.

Brady Pitched Fine.

Manager Smith elected King Brady to face the Gulls again for the second time in the series, and the King pitched a mighty useful battle, one that deserved to win. How a pitcher had the nerve to keep pegging away as faithfully as he did in the face of such horrible fielding as the locals did, is beyond us.

That the fans appreciated that Brady was twirling a good, steady game was evidenced by the applause that he got every time he came to the bat.

But no matter how good a game "Old Reliable" had pitched, he would have lost. In addition to fielding wretchedly, the Crackers lost their batting eyes, which has been their wont in every game but one that Brady has pitched this season.

Wilbert Robertson twirled for the Gulls. The hard-hitting Crackers were able to corral but four widely scattered bingles off his delivery. He had them completely at his mercy throughout the contest and never ought to have been scored on.

For that matter, but one run during the entire game was the total that should have gone acress the pan, and the Gulls were entitled to that one.

Even Wallop Blows.

Wallop Smith's blow-up was the surprise of the afternoon and had as much to do with the drubbing the locals received as any other one thing. Well, he got it out of his system Saturday. Watch his smoke now.

Jim Brady ought to get out an injunction against his team mates forbidding the possibility of their making errors when he is pitching. Saturday was the steenth time that they have kicked away games behind him this season.

A great crowd witnessed the contest, one of the best crowds of the season, and, as has been the case during the past three years, whenever a large crowd of fans turns out, the Crackers promptly kick away a ball game.

It was a horrible exhibition of the great national pastime. The Gulls did not play any ball, the Crackers just playing a worse brand than they did.

The fielding of Al O'Dell at third base for the Gulls and of Whitey Alpermann, at second for the Crackers, were the bright spots of an otherwise lurid contest.

Al handled eight fierce chances at the hot corner, making a bad throw on his ninth chance. Whitey handled nine at the keystone without a bobble, dropping the first fly that was hit to him, but handling every grounder in excellent style.

How They Scored.

The Crackers were the first to score, Agler smashed one to center for a cushion to start the third. He advanced to second on Graham's infield out. Brady hit to O'Dell. Al's throw pulled Paulet off the bag and Agler beat Paulet's return to third, both hands being safe. Long's sacrifice fly scored Agler, through it looked like Jacobson's throw had him at the plate.

Jacobsen hit one to Smith to start the Gulls' fourth, which he outran to first and when Wallie uncorked a wild heave he went to second. Clark lined one to right. Bailey ran in on the ball misjudging it, and the batter got three bases on what ought to have been an easy out, Baby Doll scoring. Robertson sent Clark home with a sacrifice fly.

Inning of Errors.

Stock hit one to Smith to start the fifth, and when Wallie made his second wild heave to first, Stock raced all the way to third. Starr slammed a liner, which Alpermann was only able to knock down and then retire the Mobile captain at first, Stock scoring on the play. Two more errors came in this inning, but they did not result in any damage.

Clark beat out a hit to deep short in the sixth, was sacrificed to second by Robertson and scored on Paulet's hit to right, the only run that either team was entitled to.

Stock beat out a hit in front of the

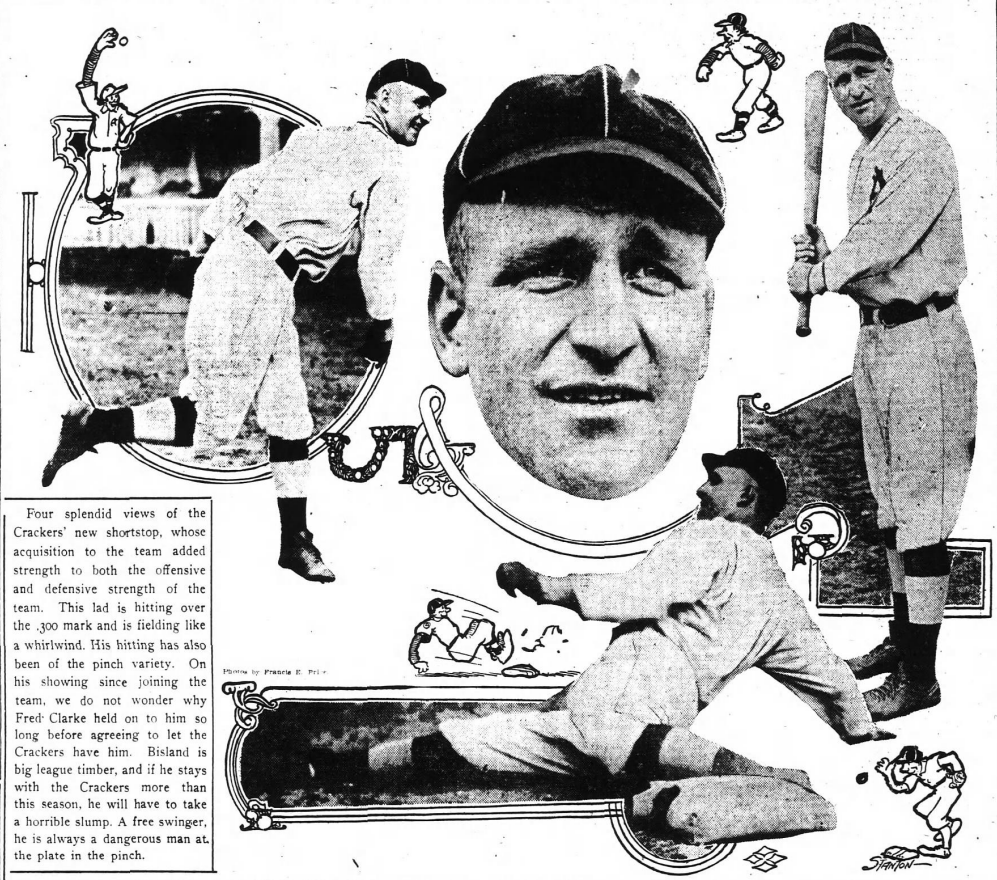
Rivington Bisland, Crackers' New Shortstop



Four splendid views of the Crackers' new shortstop, whose acquisition to the team added strength to both the offensive and defensive strength of the team. This lad is hitting over the .300 mark and is fielding like a whirlwind. His hitting has also been of the pinch variety. On his showing since joining the team, we do not wonder why Fred Clarke held on to him so long before agreeing to let the Crackers have him. Bisland is big league timber, and if he stays with the Crackers more than this season, he will have to take a horrible slump. A free swinger, he is always a dangerous man at the plate in the pinch.

Luther McCarty Is Killed In First Round of Fight With Pelkey at Calgary

Calgary, Alberta, May 24.—Luther McCarty, claimant of the white heavyweight championship of the world, today took the count from Referee Edward Smith, of Chicago, which marked him the loser in the ten-round fight with Arthur Pelkey, and eight minutes later died. Death was caused by a chance blow delivered somewhere in the region of the solar plexus after one minute and 45 seconds of fighting time had elapsed.

Arthur Pelkey tonight was arrested on the charge of manslaughter by the Northwestern Mounted police and released a short time afterward on bail.

There had been one or two mix-ups of an inconsequential nature, then came a clinch. Referee Smith separated the men. Both squared, neither seeming to be the worse for the clinch. McCarty doubled up in a scrouching attitude. To the spectators it looked as though he was taking another fighting position. He dropped lower and lower, however. His eyes rolled. Then he collapsed and fell full length on the floor of the ring.

His Final Count.

The referee, assuming that McCarty had been knocked out, stood over him to count off the seconds. It was the final count for the young fighter.

Arthur Pelkey, winner of today's battle at such heavy cost, stood to one side of his fallen adversary. He scarcely could realize what had happened. By this time the referee had become alarmed. He called for a doctor and several responded.

The mounted police were called in to clear the ring of the crowd, which had swarmed over the ropes. The physicians worked over the stricken man for eight minutes. Then they pronounced him dead, but continued efforts to resuscitate him for more than an hour.

There were probably 10,000 men in the arena when it became known that McCarty was dead. A few minutes before it had been a howling mob, but the news put a quietus on the spirits of the spectators and they filed quietly out of the arena.

Both men apparently were in splendid condition when they entered the ring. McCarty was the first to climb over the ropes. He was laughing and joking with his friends and assistants and apparently was in a confident mood. A few minutes later Pelkey appeared. Both men were cheered, Pelkey, a strong local favorite, receiving the greater volume of plaudits. The men shook hands, were

Old Time Fan Guffaws Loudly Over Ted Sullivan's Comparison Of Ty Cobb and Former Stars

By Charles A. Lamar.

The ubiquitous and irrepressible Ted Sullivan, for forty years a conspicuous figure in baseball and well known to all the "old-time" fans from Baraboo to Lickskillet, was moved to cut in and take a fall out of Tyrus Raymond Cobb.

Ted knows baseball in all its ramifications, but like the "lion," Adrian "Constant" Anson, Hardie Richardson, John M. Ward and others, he is prone to live too much in the past, and that's a sorry steed to straddle.

But Ted's contention as to Cobb, viz, "that he is the one ball player in the history of the game, which he never was," according to the aforesaid Teddy, is interesting, for all that.

Now, boys, and gents all around, tons of flamboyant and cock-sure hog wash has been written about Cobb, but the fact remains that his superb work as an all-around ball player, furnished the inspiration, and not his personality, whether he is the greatest ball player ever developed in the game or not.

As for myself, I think he is. I do not hold any brief for Cobb; it is not necessary.

Cobb the Best.

If there is a ball player in the universe today, or one in any other day, more capable of caring for himself than Cobb, either at home or abroad, he has not as yet been discovered. Cobb possesses, to a superlative degree, the combination of youth, ambition, brain and athletic skill, that go to make the ideal athlete. His nimble brain conceives the plays and his highgeared legs do the rest.

As a manipulator of the reverse double cross, he's a hooded Cobra with bangs on dress parade. There can be no circumstances potent enough to awe or subdue him either on the ball field or elsewhere.

And so far as the "eagle eye" and supple wrist bone are concerned, he's there all the way and with the bells on, at that. As a wielder of the swat maul he's got them all flagged at the post, and that's as plain as the noonday sun.

Ted's Claim Bosh.

Of course Wagner, Lajoie, Jackson, Speaker and others of today are great batsmen. Sullivan says: "As a fielder and thrower, Cobb would not stand comparison with Pogarty, Curt, Welsh, Bill Lange and a few others of the past, and he is not today the superior as a fielder and thrower of Graney, of Cleveland, and Moeller, of Washington."

Well, that is merely Ted's opinion. The writer has often seen Welsh and Lange in action, Lange was a very speedy big man and a strong thrower, but Cobb has him handcuffed and backed in a freight car as a fielder.

Welsh could probably play for a better better than Cobb, and mainly because of his phenomenal ability to judge a fly ball by the "crack" of the bat, but otherwise he was not Cobb's equal by a long shot, or any other kind of a shot.

Ted's Claims Rubbish.

Ted thinks that Keeler was the superior of Cobb, which is too ridiculous to discuss. Albeit Keeler was a wonderful fielder and batsman.

Again, he says: "But to say that Cobb is the equal of the three great ball players of the past, viz, Ewing, Kelly and Williamson—would be ridiculous." Undoubtedly these were great players, but they didn't have anything on Cobb as an all-around ball player.

Cobb can outfield and outhit Ewing and Kelly and he can outhit Williamson. He couldn't play third, of course, but he can beat the trio to a frazzle on the chalk lines, and that's all there is to it.

If I were a gifted and far-seeing wizard at all, I should long to be as gifted and far-seeing as Ted Sullivan; but as I am not, my spirit of lowly self-sacrifice will not be greatly increased by his limping logic and crippled facts.

Unmitigated Bull.

To make a caustic arraignment of Cobb is easy work, because more unmitigated "bull" has been written about his greatness as a player and his personality than any other player who ever lived.

To assault him with biting satire is not very edifying, to say the least. Cobb is a manly man and a great ball player. All he asks is a square deal and to be judged by his real worth, and not lampooned for his faults and his follies.

As John Lowlow was wont to say in the long ago: "Fetch in another horse!"

NAVY AND U. OF P. DIVIDE BOAT RACES

Annapolis, Md., May 24.—Navy and the University of Pennsylvania divided honor in two boast races here today. The midshipmen senior eight won from Pennsylvania varsity by four lengths, while the Pennsylvania freshmen eight finished a little over a length ahead of the navy fourth-class men. The official time was:

Varsity: Navy, 6 minutes, 26 4-5 seconds; Pennsylvania, 6 minutes, 45 4-5 seconds; freshmen, Pennsylvania, 6 minutes, 56 seconds; Navy, 6 minutes, 59 seconds.

Prior to these two races the eight of the Ariel Boat club, of Baltimore, defeated the Navy third crew and the Navy senior four won easily from the Arundel club, of Baltimore. All of the races were rowed over the Inside Ithaca, N. Y., May 24.—The Courtney lation American Henley distance.

PELICANS

Frank's Tailenders Will Be Attraction At Poncey Monday

Dobbs' Billikens Come Thursday, Playing Four Games and Closing Present Home Stay on Saturday.

Chief Charley Frank and his tailend Pelicans and Johnny Dobbs and his Billikens will be the attraction at the local ball yard this week.

The Pelicans play here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Billikens, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a double-header on Friday, which is Federal Memorial day.

There will be several familiar and several new faces on the line-ups of both teams, but the Billikens will have the majority of new faces.

Old Favorites.

Jakey Atz, former Pelican field captain, is filling these roles again this season, playing the keystone sack. Jakey used to be one of our very best. Maybe he still is.

Frank Manush is back at the hot corner for the Birds, and Spencer and Hendrrx, of last years team, are in the outfield.

Williams, who was with the Crackers the first part of the season, is cavorting at short for the Birds. Breen, who has been playing with Montgomery this spring, is playing right, and Snedecor, the former University of Alabama star, is on first base.

Both Yanta, with Birmingham last season, and Angemeier, a hold-over from last year's Pelican catching staff, are hors du combat, and Robertson, a new-comer, will probably do most of the catching here unless Jack Adams, the former Memphis receiver, joins the Birds here. He was purchased Saturday.

In the box Josh Swindell is the only one of last year's staff who will appear here, but Harry McIntyre, who appeared here with the Turtles several years ago, is one of Frank's boxmen.

Evans, Brenton and Wilson are the new twirlers.

With the Billies.

Several new faces will be seen on the line-up of Johnny Dobbs' hard-hitting Billikens. Walker, Sloan and Janteen, the outfielders, are all newmen to local fandom. Kutina, at first, is also a new man.

The rest of the infield is well known locally. Wares and Elwert played in the innerworks last season, and Cotton Knaupp was with the Pelicans.

Gribbens, behind the bat, is a holdover from last season, and Pat Donahue was with the Crackers during the season of 1912.

In the box, Elmer and Curly Brown are new to Atlanta. Manning, Bagby and Case are all familiar figures.

If the Crackers maintain their present clip, a majority of these contests ought to be copped. At the conclusion of this week of play, the Crackers start jumping back and forth with their fellow teams in the northern division.

ALL THE NEWS OF REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

Indications from the reports of a number of real estate agencies on Saturday were for a brightening in the realty market during the coming week. Several sales in the neighborhood of $50,000 were reported to be in the contract stage, and one for something more than $150,000 is promised for announcement before the end of this week.

Eighth Wardens Want Cars.

President Arkwright, of the Georgia Railway and Power company, on June 3 will hear the plea of Superintendent W. M. Slaton, of the public schools, the faculty of the Home Park school, and a number of citizens of Home Park school neighborhood, for the extension of the West Peachtree street car line from Sixth street out to Tenth street, from Tenth to State and from there to Sixteenth street.

This hearing is granted as the result of a petition dated November 8, 1912, in which the petitioners ask this extension.

Aunt Sally's Advice To Beauty Seekers

Lydia says: "I've tried most everything for my freckles, but can't lose them. What do you suggest?" See answer to "Stella." The treatment suggested I've never known to fail in any case of freckles or other cutaneous blemish.

P. J. K. asks: "Is there anything better than massage to remove wrinkles?" Too much massaging may aggravate a wrinkled condition, tending to soften and loosen the tissue. I advise bathing the face in an astringent lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

Stella writes: "My complexion is horribly muddy. What shall I do for it?" Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's. Apply this nightly like you'd use cold cream, washing it off mornings. This will cause the offensive cuticle gradually to make way, by a process of gentle absorption, for the clear, velvety, healthy-hued skin underneath.—Woman's Realm.

CONSERVING SCHOOL CHILDREN BY PHYSICAL TRAINING AND FRESH AIR INSTRUCTION

(Dr. Theodore Toepel is physical director for the Atlanta public schools. He has made a study of the subject, and is a recognized specialist not only in Georgia, but by his profession generally. Under his direction physical training has become an established feature of the school. The article which follows his describes an experiment made in the Philadelphia public schools with the idea of demonstrating the practical value of fresh air instruction. The results tell their own tale.)

ATLANTA PUBLIC SCHOOLS NEED MORE PHYSICAL DIRECTORS

Editor Constitution: Physical training, properly directed, directly or indirectly, reaches and molds every organ in the body, from the digestive system to the highest centers and powers of the brain. "Health"—whether physical, mental or moral—comes in through the muscles and files out through the nerves."

Physical training was introduced in the public schools of Atlanta in September, 1899, the number of pupils in the schools being 13,637.

In 1905, Myra N. Graves was added to the department. The increase in the number of children from 1899 to 1905 was 933, or a total enrollment of 14,570. Since 1905 the number of children has increased 8,774, or a total enrollment of 23,344, with no additional assistance. This means that two physical instructors divide the responsibility of this number of children and of 508 teachers. At present the department of physical education includes physical training, physiology and hygiene.

The standard of other cities the size of Atlanta is 3,000 children to one physical director, some cities having only 2,000 children to one director. Newark, N. J., and Cincinnati, Ohio, are two of them. According to this Atlanta is entitled to twelve physical directors.

As physical training is the science by which the human body is perfectly developed, more expert supervision should be given to the children who are affected by it. At present it is possible to visit each class only once in every six weeks, to see that the work has been carried out according to instruction received at the monthly normal class meeting of the teachers. The standard given by other cities in the United States is at least one visit every four weeks.

Special Directors.

According to a report made to the board of education a year ago from eight-four reports received from girls' high schools it was found that 5% per cent of these have special physical directors, because the advanced work needed at a high school and the special scientific knowledge necessary excludes the idea of any one but an expert in this line to mold and build the physical bodies of girls at this critical period. These high schools have a great advantage over our high schools because, during four years the girls are developed on a scientific basis by an expert, and become thoroughly familiar with all the details of the department of physical training. Thus, besides giving all the girls the benefit of a rational, advanced course in physical training, these students who choose the profession of teaching are better prepared to impart this acquired knowledge to the children under them.

Unfavorable comparison made by people who see the physical activities of other school systems are justified when we consider that two experts are compelled to do what should be done by a corps of twelve.

It is natural that excuses are offered defending the meager support that this department receives. It has been said that climatic conditions are more favorable and that we do not live as congested here as do the people in those cities where more is done for the physical child. The men who use these arguments either wilfully or ignorantly are overlooking the statistics of the medical examiner of the public schools of Atlanta, who has found as many defective children in our system and, in some instances, more than in the so-called congested cities.

Prevention.

In combatting disease, "prevention" is the slogan of today, and one of the best preventatives that scientific bodies have so far found is a rational amount of exercise taken daily in the open air. Though simple in form, nothing is more useful in maintaining normal physiological conditions.

Another argument, namely, "what was good enough for me is good enough for my children," should not receive any consideration. There are, however, a few people of some importance to whom this argument has weight. Unfortunately, these men and women do not realize that, were the children of today to receive the same education, under the same surroundings of the parents, they, in reality, would receive a worse education and would be ill prepared for the battle of life according to present requirements.

That the department of physical education has not received the consideration and financial support that it deserves can be easily deduced by studying the following figures: In 1899 the board of education spent 8 cents per child for physical training. This was increased to 12 cents in 1905, and this past year only 10.6 cents was allowed per child, showing this addition being the result of the large increase of pupils.

As the conditions confront us now, it becomes impossible to do effective work with the present corps of only two instructors. According to the present enrollment, this department is entitled to twelve instructors, but the very least number with which it can do work of any efficiency at all is four instructors. That means the addition of one lady, to be detailed to special work at the Girls' High school, and one man to assist in the grammar schools.

Physical education being concerned with the conservation of health, is an inseparable factor in all modern school systems, and it has become a compelling fact that at present in Atlanta it needs adequate moral and financial support. The consequences of this failure to the rest of the educational system.

THEODORE TOEPEL, M. D.,
Physical Director, Atlanta Public Schools.

FRESH-AIR PUPILS HEALTHIER THAN STEAM-HEAT PUPILS

A medical inspection in the Philadelphia public schools, with the co-operation of teachers and parents, recently made an experiment to determine the value of cold fresh air schoolrooms, which was reported in The American Journal of Public Health. He opened the windows at the rear of the room and kept them open throughout the winter. The room was shut off from the heating plant of the building except on the occasional days when the temperature fell below 45 degrees; but the children, of course, wore extra wraps and had frequent drills and exercise.

Week by week during the fall and winter and spring this physician weighed and examined the pupils, watched their study and their play, and compared their progress in health and scholarship with that of pupils in another room of the same building. In that other room, the pupils were of the same grade, and of about the same number, but the room was heated and ventilated according to the usual methods. The pupils in both rooms were normal, healthy children, from the same kind of homes, and of about the same mentality as far, accurate and searching as possible.

At the end the inspector found that the pupils in the open-window room had gained in weight on an average more than twice as much as those in the warm-air room. The pupils in the open room kept wholly free from colds and were kept more regular in attendance than the others. They were also more alert, free from lay-downishness, quicker to learn, needed less review work and were better behaved. In health and happiness, in development both of mind and body, the children of the room with open windows had a clear advantage over the others.

In these days the good old doctrine and pure air ought to need little preaching. Most of us accept it, but we do not always practice the doctrine that we believe in and preach. The Philadelphia experiment lay not in giving the open-air treatment to sick children—which everyone approves; it proved by giving to well children some of the good things that nature intended that they should enjoy, and in demonstrating the good old-fashioned principle of the advantage of lower schoolroom temperture.

As a result, the school board, recognizing their value, has authorized the establishment of open window classes in several other Philadelphia schools.

TELEPHONE TALKING NOT MONOPOLY SUBJECT

Washington, May 24.—Telephone conversation is not a subject for monopoly within the meaning of the Sherman anti-trust law, according to a brief filed today in the supreme court by the United States Telephone company.

The brief was in support of a request to the court to review the decision of the federal courts in Ohio that the company's contracts with 300 local exchanges throughout Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, are in violation of the Sherman law. The contracts bind the local exchanges to give to rivals of the United States company no long-distance business to points reached by the United States company.

The United States company claims telephone companies cannot violate the law like manufacturers or producers of articles who may control the price by increasing or decreasing the supply. Its position is that the supply of telephone conversation is unlimited and cannot be restrained.

Vacation Cruising in a Power Boat.

(W. P. Stephens, in Leslie's.)

At the present time the cruising power boat outnumbers all other types of yachts. Its further development creates the attention of the majority of designers and builders and of the engine manufacturers, and each year sees an increase in the number of men and women who are seeking the best solution of the problem of the most profitable utilization of a limited amount of time and money in outings afloat.

A typical instances of success in this quest is found in the cruising done in 1911 and 1912 by the gasoline launch Arjentha, owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Francis, of Hartford, Conn. This little cruiser, of the trunk-cabin type, is 33 feet in length and 9 feet in breadth, with a two-cylinder engine of 14-horsepower, the speed being 8½ miles, with a gasoline consumption of 1 gallon for 4 to 6 miles. The boat is run by the two owners, who find ample comfort for a summer afloat in the snug cabin of their own planning.

The cruise of 1912 began at Hartford on June 29, the route being up Long Island sound, into the Hudson, and up that river to Troy, where the Champlain canal was entered. On leaving the canal they ran down Lake Champlain to Rouse's Point, and by way of the Richelieu river to the St. Lawrence, descending that river to the mouth of the Saguenay and running up as far as Chicoutimi, 225 miles from Quebec and over a thousand miles from home. The return trip over the same route brought them to Hartford on September 7, the entire cruise of over 2,000 miles taking just ten weeks. The daily runs were from 25 to 100 miles, the consumption of gasoline was 452 gallons, costing $78.35, and the expenses for food, stove alcohol, oil and incidentals were $81.65, making a total of $140 for the long outing.

ONE-CROP SYSTEM HANDICAPS STATE

Dr. George T. Powell, Expert on Soil's Condition, Tells Atlantans Georgia's Great Need Is Educational.

A representative gathering of business men heard Dr. George T. Powell, of New York, make a most interesting talk at the Capital City club Friday on "The Agricultural Possibilities of Georgia." The occasion was a luncheon tendered Dr. Powell by Louis B. Magid, president of the Appalachian Apple Orchards. Dr. Powell is the president of the Agricultural Experts' association, an organization which gives advice on agricultural problems and his report and opinions regarding Georgia's apple land were listened to with interest. Dr. Powell was the first director of farmers' institutes in New York state, more than twenty years ago.

Dr. Powell stated that he had made several trips into northeast Georgia to investigate its adaptability for the apple industry, and he considers this section one of the most favored in the entire United States on account of the soil, altitude and rainfall.

Guests of Mr. Magid.

Those present as Mr. Magid's guests were:

A. S. Adams, Ivan E. Allen, Judge Bell, H. Atkinson, J. Frank Beck, J. Pope Brown, R. H. Brown, Judge W. Burr, Judge John S. Candler, S. C. Dobbs, Hon. Thomas B. Felder, C. Haden, Jr., Halstead, H. G. Hastings, L. D. Hicks, Dr. Delos Hill, J. F. Holleman, Fred H. Houser, Clark Howell, W. L. Hunnicutt, Jack H. Lewis, Professor K. G. Matheson, Jr., S. G. Merritt, C. W. McClure, Haynes McFadden, Edga A. Neely, John S. Owens, A. J. Orme, William F. Parkhurst, W. L. Peel, Paul P. Pease, J. A. Simmons, Alex W. Smith, W. O. Stamps, Dr. H. E. Stockbridge, W. C. Wardlaw, Edgar Watkins, George Westmoreland, Rev. C. B. Wilmer, Hon. James G. Woodward, Dr. George T. Powell, Professor William J. Hart, Professor H. P. Stuckenberg, Professor A. M. Niven, E. E. Dougherty, George M. Kohn, Dan Hugh Lokey, W. Carroll Latimer, Rev. L. A. Stevens.

Depleted Soil a Drawback

Dr. Powell's remarks were most interesting, and were well received. He said, in part:

"As a nation we are now suffering from the effect of the soil depleted in its fertility, and we shall not again reach the same degree of prosperity until we begin at the foundation and rebuild the fertility of our soil, the important fact being now realized and understood, a universal interest has been aroused in the question of rural life and a more prosperous agriculture.

"Ownership of land has again become desirable, and active efforts are being made to make the cultivation of the land again profitable. The great railroads of our country, realizing the great importance of aiding the farmer, are doing the best educational work among the people. The railroads are running educational trains through farming districts, stopping from station to station, where farmers gather and listen to instruction given by scientific teachers. Our agricultural colleges are doing extention work as never before. Banking associations are taking very important problems of providing credit to farmers upon a more favorable basis, that they may borrow money with which to improve their land, with which to purchase improved stock, improved machinery and more liberally of fertilizers. Every association, educational or civic, is today interested in the advancement of the agriculture and improvement of country life."

What Georgia Needs.

"I have been greatly interested in the agricultural possibilities of your state of Georgia. It has been my pleasure to study most carefully the soils of the northern portion of your state, and during the past week I have again given most careful examination and study of the soil in different sections, but particularly in northern Georgia, and I see great possibilities for a high type of agricultural development in the future.

"The great need of your state is educational. Your soil for many years of a one-crop system of production, has been exceedingly impoverished. There are many thousands of acres that are today practically unprofitable for cultivation because of its extreme sterility. Over a long period of time the cotton crop has been produced with a great depletion of soil fertility, by not following the right rotation and the organic matter of the soil has been greatly exhausted and much of the cotton territory at least is suffering from the very low yield of cotton and other crops that are being produced, because of the loss of vegetable and organic matter, which has been previously worn out.

One-Crop System Evil.

"Another serious loss follows this one-crop system in the sterility of the soil to hold water during heavy rainfalls. The soil is repeatedly washed and serious erosion follows, and hence the soil is impoverished because there has been no humus in the soil to hold the water, and its most valuable portion has been washed into the lower levels, which, having been cropped year after year have also become very much impoverished.

"Another very serious injury which has been done I discover in the frequent burning over of the forest tracts, by which the accumulation of much of the vegetable matter is destroyed.

"Your state is already making great strides forward in demonstration teaching to the boys who are being organized in corn clubs. Some of the boys of your state are already leading in the very large yields of corn that are being obtained per acre; in fact, leading many of the corn producing states of the great western corn sections.

"I have been greatly interested in the development that has been begun by one of your leading, enterprising citizens, Louis B. Magid, who has secured several thousand acres in the northern part of your state, who within a period of only 18 months has cleared 500 acres of forest and has at the present time started apple orchards to the extent of 35,000 trees. Nowhere have I seen better work done than upon this tract so recently cleared.

Great Possibilities.

"I have been in no state in the union where I see greater possibility than in Georgia, and with the interest of your cities, your chambers of commerce, your state banking associations, your state colleges and your general educational forces of the state, you are in a position to call to your state a great number of people who are becoming interested in agriculture as a business and who would find here such congenial climatic conditions and such favorable general conditions for the most profitable outcome for the investment of capital and for the employment of the best talent that may be put in this great upbuilding of agricultural development."

TALLULAH FIGHT OPENS ON MONDAY

Investigation of Musty Records by Leading Lawyers Shows the Falls Were Once Called Turoore and Telulah.

On next Monday morning in the Rabun county superior court, at Clayton, will begin the trial of a lawsuit that not only involves the ownership of a strip of land upon which several million dollars' worth of hydro-electric construction work has been accomplished, but also has the distinction of having led the state's most eminent lawyers into a search extending so far back into the Georgia's legal history that seals of the state have been dug up by the dozen; names of Georgia state officials long forgotten have been brought to light and Tallulah falls has found to have half a dozen or more names including "Turoore," "Terreorer" and "Telulah," according to original Indian treaties discovered in the search of musty archives.

The suit is that of the state of Georgia v. the Georgia Railway and Power company, and the real issue involved is whether the stait ever granted away the right and title to that strip of land lying down in the gorge at Tallulah falls and upon which the power company, believing it had clear titles to the property, has built a huge concrete dam, a power house, a switchhouse, a tunnel over a mile long and a great steel bridge to replace the bridge of the Tallulah Falls railway which will be submerged when the waters of the river rise to the level of the big dam in the gorge. It is alleged in the suit of the state that the original grants made to certain individuals in and about Tallulah falls did not include the strip at the bottom of the gorges.

Claim of Power Company.

The power company claims that the original grants did include this strip, and it was in the search for facts to sustain these conflicting claims that lawyers representing the state and those representing the power company have delved into ancient legal history in the office of the secretary of state.

Attorney General Thomas S. Felder and Watkins and Latimer will represent the state before the Rabun court next week, while the power company will be represented by J.King & Spalding, Rosser & Brandon, C. T. and L. C. Hopkins and H. H. Dean. So many attorneys, witnesses, representatives and others interested will attend the trial that an entire hotel at Clayton has been reserved and it is possible that other accommodations will have to be secured.

It will be a special term of the Rabun court, with Judge J. B. Jones, presiding. The case was set for this special hearing in order that the mass of evidence secured might be presented to the jury without any interference by other cases.

Never Yet Tried in Court.

Although this case has been argued before three governors and several committees of the legislature, it has never been tried in a court room. The lawsuit arose from the ranks of the Georgia Conservation association, when Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet, postmistress at Gainesville, and a leading member of the association requested Governor Hoke Smith two years ago to interfere at Tallulah and stop the progress of the work being done by the Georgia Railway and Power company in utilizing the natural forces there in the development of a water power electric plant to supply current to north Georgia towns and cities, including Atlanta.

The same request was made to Governors Joseph M. Brown and John M. Slaton, and when the association could get no favorable action to their request from these officials, the legislature was finally appealed to for the enactment of a measure empowering the governor and attorney general to bring suit for the recovery of the land alleged to belong to the state. Surveying parties had been sent out by each governor named, from the state university, in order to verify the original survey named in the grant, and the evidence secured by these parties will be used in the present case.

Is Worth Seeking Evidence.

The search for evidence in the case has been prosecuted for over eighteen months and minute tracings of every available record concerning the land in litigation have been made. The treaties with the Creek ad Cherokee Indians, by which the state acquired the land, have been produced, as have been the acts of the legislature of 1818 and 1819, laying out the counties in north Georgia and ordering surveys and grants of the land. Some of these grants bear the name of Governor Towns, others that of Governor Gilmer, both of whom held office prior to 1850.

The names of Comptroller General D. E. Bothwell, Treasurer William B. Tinsley, Secretary of State N. C. Warnett and E. Hamilton appear on the faded wellow papers. One treaty with the Indians, in 1819, calls the river "Turoore," while another made in the previous year calls it "Terreorer" or "Telulah."

It is expected the case will occupy the attention of the court practically all of next week. A large party of the attorney's and witnesses will leave Atlanta Saturday night, spend the night at Cornella and proceed to Clayton Sunday morning in order to be on the ground bright and early Monday. Others will leave Atlanta Sunday, while many will take the train Monday at Tallulah Falls along the road.

Mrs. Longstreet is expected to be present, very likely in the role of witness for the state.

Slit Skirts Help Hosiery Makers

(From The N. Y. Evening Sun.)

Philadelphia—As it's an ill wind that blows nobody good, the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers met here and among other things discussed the new slit skirts.

The manufacturers expect a great boom in the demand for fancy hosiery as a result of the new styles in women's dress, and consequently the attitude of the association toward women's skirts was discussed, as well as the effect of the new tariff schedule on the textile industries.

"No," replied the Young Man. "But I believe every woman should have a voter."

Men Who Feed Atlanta Fix June 4 for Parade to Mark Half-Holiday Emancipation

The men who feed the city of Atlanta are going to enjoy a weekly half holiday on Wednesdays through the months of June, July and August, and on Wednesday, June 4, they are going to parade on a monster parade to celebrate the inauguration of the event.

It isn't necessary to go far to find the men who feed Atlanta. They are the retail grocers and butchers, the packers, the commission men and the army of their employees. Their importance, numerically, is indicated by the fact that about 10,000 people in this city are dependent upon these industries for support. Saturday marketing is, of course, a big event in these in other cities. Housekeepers do their buying then not only for the week-end, but often for several additional days. This established custom has kept the grocers and butchers and allied lines of business from participating in the regular Saturday half-holidays which have become an institution in Atlanta. For if the grocery stores and meat shops and the places that supply them closed, Atlanta would go hungry Sunday and Monday.

Now They'll Frolic.

Harry Schlesinger, who might be called the father of the early closing movement in Atlanta, some time ago saw this injustice and the condition behind it. A year ago he invited several representative retailers to lunch, and the situation was canvassed. From that meeting grew a determination to work toward a half-holiday for these interests throughout the summer.

For several months C. T. Camp, president of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, assisted by Francis E. Kamper, ex-president and chairman of the holiday committee, has been tireless in his efforts on the project. They have had the co-operation of H. L. Simmons, president of the City Salesmen's association. As a result, ten days ago more than 300 local retail groceries and butcher shops have agreed, beginning with Wednesday, June 4, to close each succeeding Wednesday for June, July and August at noon. Other verbal agreements insure that virtually every place of business of this nature in Atlanta will join the movement.

A Hard-Worked Class.

Every man, woman and child in Atlanta who has occasion to patronize a grocery store or a butcher shop (and that means, at some time, all the population), realizes that the people there employed are about the hardest-worked class in the city. Their hours, necessarily, and not because of oppression, are long and uncertain. They are feeding the city. They must be on the job always, from early morning till late at night, often.

If any of the city's workers earn and deserve a half-holiday it is those engaged in feeding the city. Yet the very importance and peculiarity of their calling has heretofore operated to bar them from the half-holiday throngs.

Celebrating Emancipation.

Now that the half-holiday crusade is about to be brought to a successful conclusion, its promoters feel that it is an event of sufficient importance to be marked in unusual fashion. So they have planned what will be probably the longest parade in the history of the city, covering perhaps, 2 miles, if not more.

At 1:30 p. m., Wednesday, June 4, grocers, butchers, commission men, packers and their employees generally will assemble at the capitol. The parade will be in charge of Harry Schlesinger and Nym McCullough, as grand marshals. The line of march will be down Mitchell street to Whitehall, to Peachtree, to North avenue, down North avenue to West Peachtree, and will disperse at Five Points.

After the parade, the merchants will attend a series of entertainments arranged for them by the entertainment committee.

Buy Accordingly.

The association selected Wednesday as the half-holiday, believing the close of the shops on that day would least interfere with the convenience of patrons.

It is therefore, up to the housekeepers of Atlanta to get through all of their Wednesday's shopping, including the Thursday breakfast, by noon on each Wednesday of the summer, after June 4.

There is no doubt that all Atlanta will cheerfully co-operate in this new and praiseworthy movement, and that public interest will eagerly await the spectacular parade with which it is to be inaugurated.

PROPOSED EXEMPTION OF THE LABOR UNIONS

President to Make His Position Clear in Signing Sundry Civil Bill.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, May 24.—(Special.)—President Wilson expects to sign the sundry civil bill which met the veto of President Taft. In doing so he will state emphatically his position in regard to the proposed exemption of labor organizations and farmers' associations from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Although the measure as framed does not say that any class of persons who violate the law shall not be prosecuted; it does say that no part of the specific appropriation of $300,000 shall be used for this purpose.

From one viewpoint, congress might be said to contemplate that the amount was not any too large to prevent violations by the great combines. But it can also be construed as the declaration of a policy on part of congress that laborers and farmers shall be exempt from the operation of this law against combinations in restraint of trade.

Such a declaration of policy is what President Wilson considers dangerous.

Of course, as a practical proposition, it is not at all probable that in the ordinary course of events, any part of this fund would be used against labor unions or farmers' societies, even in the absence of the declaration by congress.

The reason is that it would be easy for a society of a million men to perfect such an organization as can be used to oppress the public. It is very easy for ten men or twenty men controlling a great industry to do so.

It will be recalled that at the famous "Seeley dinners," a few of the leaders in the steel industry and by a "gentlemen's agreement," absolutely fixed the prices for the industry. The price of sugar can be controlled in the same way, and the price of tobacco.

But it is a much more difficult matter for orgasizations of labor of associations of producers or farm crops to perfect such an organization that it can be used to oppress.

While in theory it is possible to perfect such an organization of cotton farmers as to fix an excessively high price, say 25 cents a pound for cotton, and say to the world "You must pay us 25 cents a pound or you will not get a pound for cotton." It can be absolutely demonstrated theoretically that such an organization would compel the high price to be paid for the world's entire have cotton. Yet in practical operation, the scheme breaks down; it always has, and it always will.

Ten men who dominate the steel industry of the country could, under a protective tariff, arbitrarily fix an excessive high price for steel rails, which the railroads were obliged to pay, and for which passengers and shippers were ultimately taxed. But a million cotton farmers cannot build an organization that can be used to oppress the public, or exact unreasonably high prices for their products. Such an organization will not hold together, and the individual members will not abide by the agreement.

These practical considerations were in the minds of the framers of the anti-trust law, who wanted a statute that would protect the many from the unreasonable exactions of the few.

Of course, any combination of two or more men to raise prices of their labor or commodities is in the nature of restraint of trade; but here the supreme court steps in and interprets the law to prohibit only "unreasonable" restraints of trade. The conspiracy must be so flagrant and oppressive as to go beyond the ordinary course of business and be opposed to sound public policy.

Where Will I Go On My VACATION

As the hot summer sun shines down upon the tired business, professional and workingman, the society woman and the housewife, the mind naturally turns to rest and recreation.

Some Suggestions

TRY—The Easy, Breezy trip to New York, Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia via Savannah and ship, where joy reigns and cares and troubles are forgotten in the delightful change.

TRY—Tybee, where ocean breezes blow, where rest and pleasure combine to make one forget dull care and regain youth and strength.

TRY—Atlantic Beach, a place of beauty and a joy forever, nature's crowning gift to humanity in rebuilding the nerves and tissues worn threadbare by toil and care.

Atlanta, Georgia, May 20th, 1913.

To Thomas Y. Young,
The Oriental Herb Co., 55 Houston Street, City.
Dear Doctor Young:

For over ten years I have suffered from stomach and bladder trouble and I have had impure and bad blood. For years and years I suffered intense pain through my entire system. I had spent a fortune trying to cure myself, using various treatments and remedies from all over the country. This all seemed in vain and never did me any good.

I was on the point of giving all hope and was despondent and worried and did not know what to do, when, one day, a friend of mine recommended to me a trial of your Chinese remedies. He told me the Oriental Herb Shop, full of wonderful and tried Chinese remedies, was located in Atlanta at No. 55 Houston street, and that he believed these Chinese herbs and roots, properly taken, would cure me. I thought I would take a chance and give them a trial.

After taking one month's treatment my whole system is built up up to its normal condition and I feel like a new man. I can earnestly say to the bottom of my heart that I am cured of all my troubles, sufferings and diseases. I publish this statement for the benefit of the public that other cases may be cured permanently and others relieved from suffering, because only those who have suffered as I have can know how happy I am over my recovery.

Yours truly,
349 Terry Street, Atlanta, Georgia. J. H. WHIDBY.

If you are suffering! If you can't get well! If you have abandoned all hope of happiness and good health! Why not take this key to "The Door of Hope in the House of Health" that Colonel J. H. Whidby points out to you?

A. A. U. CHAMPIONSHIPS ARE GIVEN TO CHICAGO

Chicago, May 21.—Junior and senior championships of the Amateur Athletic union have been formally awarded to Chicago as part of the athletic carnival to be held in Grant park, June 28 to July 6.

This is expected to bring between 300 and 400 amateur athletes to Chicago to compete in the thirty-six events which comprise the junior and senior championships.

It is also developed that polo will be a feature of the games. Representatives of the Onwentsia club guaranteed the presence of two polo teams from that club. It was also announced that tentative acceptances had been received from teams in Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Denver. Army teams at Fort Riley, Kans., and Fort Sam Houston, Texas, are awaiting formal word from the war department at Washington before sending in acceptances of the invitation to participate.

SEVEN CITIES AFTER FEDERAL FRANCHISES

Chicago, May 24.—Seven cities sought admission to the new Federal league at its meeting today, according to announcement tonight. A committee was named to decide whether it would be advisable to increase the league to eight clubs, and to determine which two should be admitted, if the committee decides favorably.

Buffalo, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Toledo, Kansas City, Mo., Dayton and Detroit made application.

New York, May 24.—Wet and heavy playing surfaces wrecked the game of M. E. McLoughlin, the national team tennis champion, today when he met R. N. Haggett, the English professional, at the West Side club, in practice for the Davis cup matches against the Australians. Haggett defeated McLoughlin in singles. It was the first time McLoughlin has tasted defeat in a long time. In the doubles, McLoughlin paired with Haggett, defeated H. H. Hackett and R. D. Little.

LUTHER M'CARTY KILLED IN FIRST ROUND OF FIGHT

photographed, and the bout started.

Sparred Cautiously.

The men sparred cautiously at the opening, both handling themselves well. There were several mix-ups of no consequence, then Pelkey jabbed McCarty on the jaw. It was a good stiff blow and McCarty winced under it, but smiled.

Then after about a minute of fighting there was a fierce exchange and a clinch. In this clinch, McCarty received the blow which caused his death. The referee separated the fighters.

McCarty stood near his corner with Pelkey near the center of the ring. Both men were feinting. McCarty then assumed the crouching position for probably ten seconds before he fell to the floor. The crowd thought it was a knockout, and the referee, after making the customary count, held up the hand of Pelkey to indicate him the winner.

McCarty's seconds rushed to his side and began to work over him. After a few seconds there were calls for a physician. Even then the crowd did not realize the seriousness of the condition. A few minutes later his death was announced.

James Short, king's counsel, said that an information would be laid against Pelkey and possibly some of those closely associated with the bout. Under the laws of Alberta every spectator is liable to arrest for manslaughter.

Almost the last words McCarty heard were from a preacher. The pastor of a local church entered the ring and, after saying there was nothing brutal in the preliminaries, asked the great assemblage to think that they were daily engaged in a similar fight in life. The preacher concluded by inviting all present to church on Sunday. He was listened to respectfully by the crowd.

Paralysis of Heart.

The physician who took charge of McCarty contends that the collapse of the fighter was due either to organic heart trouble or paralysis of the heart. He said that owing to McCarty's condition a blow over the heart was sufficient to cause death.

When physicians announced the pugilist dead, William McCarney, his manager, burst into tears.

"All that I have to say is that Luther was the cleanest and best boy boy I ever had anything to do with," McCarney said.

Pelkey was too much overcome by the tragedy to make any statement.

McCarty was well known in Calgary. It was here that he entered his career, and here that he ended it.

Referee Smith preferred to say nothing except that it was not a hard blow that contributed to McCarty's death.

His History.

Luther McCarty was born at Lincoln, Neb., on March 17, 1892. His father was an Indian half-breed, and his mother of Irish extraction. Standing a trifle over six feet three inches, he was physically powerful, yet a comparatively weak hitter. His best blow was a right uppercut, which he used continually in clinches.

He first sprang into the ring prominence when he defeated Carl Morris at Springfield on May 3, 1912. McCarty was immediately hailed as a real "white hope," but failed to live up to the reputation. His best battle was with Al Palzer at Los Angeles last New Year's day, when he defeated the conqueror of Bombardier Wells in eighteen rounds. His last fight, previous to the fatal battle of today, was a ten-round victory over Frank Moran, of New York, on April 30.

Arthur Pelkey is one of one new crop of heavyweights. He hails from Chicopee Falls, Mass., and is a powerful six-footer, who fights at about 200 pounds. While not a clever boxer, he has a terrific punch. He has fought a number of bouts throughout the east, usually meeting third-raters with rather indifferent results. His two bouts of importance here were against Jess Willard, at New York, last July, and Tommy Burns, at Calgary, several weeks ago.

Burns, former heavyweight champion, announced a heavyweight elimination tournament to be staged at his club at Calgary, and as the opening attraction billed a bout between Pelkey and himself. The contest was declared a draw at the end of ten rounds, and Burns immediately matched Pelkey against McCarty, the winner to meet "Gumboat" Smith.

Long Fatality List.

Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out Con Reardon in an exhibition bout at Syracuse, N. Y., some years ago, and Reardon never recovered consciousness.

Owen Moran, the English lightweight, killed Thomas McCarthy with a blow in a bout at San Francisco in 1910. Other deaths in San Francisco include Harry Tenney, who died after a clash with Frankie Neil in 1906; Jimmy Franey, who died from the result of the blows of Jimmy O'Connell in 1910; "Ginger" Williams, who was a victim of "Kid" Kennith's punch ten years later.

Another boxer of prominence who died after a ring battle was Billy Vernon. Vernon collapsed in a Philadelphia bout in the early nineties, and died the next day in a hospital.

Walter Croot, an English bantamweight, died as the result of blows delivered by Jimmy Barry, the American champion, in a bout in London on December 6, 1897.

Recent deaths include those of "Joe" Ketchell, who died after a bout with "Billy" Walters at Waukegan, Ill., in 1912, and a French pugilist named Pelli, who collapsed in a Paris ring during a bout with an English boxer fighting under the name of Evernden.

CRAVATH LEADER IN THE NATIONAL

Philadelphia Outfielder Leads Batters in Lynch Organization—Tinker Has Made Most Hits.

Cravath, the outfielder of the Philadelphia Nationals, leads the batters of the National league with an average of .396. Killifer, his team mate, is second, and Vote, of Pittsburg, third. Tinker, the Cincinnati manager, has made the most hits, with 42 safe clouts. Zimmerman, of Chicago; Wheat, of Brooklyn, and Bates, of Cincinnati, are tied for second place with 37 each.

Huggins of St. Louis, is the leading run getter, with 26 tallies. Stengel of Brooklyn, Saier of Chicago, and Carey, of Pittsburg, are tied for second place, with 23 tallies each.

The following figures, compiled by George L. Moreland, of Pittsburg, are the records of players who have competed in 10 or more games, and who have a batting average of .275 or better up to and including the game Wednesday, May 21.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 24.—The Cornell freshmen today won the annual track and field meet from the first-year men of the University of Pennsylvania by the score of 67 to 50.

Giants After Hurlers.

Superior, Wis., May 24.—Dick Kinsella, representing the New York Nationals, today wired W. J. Sommer, of the Superior Northern league club, a cash offer for the services of Rube Shaner, the local pitching star. Sommer has announced that no deal has been made for his star pitcher. The amount of New York's offer was not announced.

Indians 3, Scouts 2.

Jacksonville, May 24.—Savannah won out from the locals this afternoon after a hard fought game. Stewart, who twirled for the Jacksonville club, lost his own game by a rank error in the ninth, when the score was tied. This error was followed by a bingle and then Stewart hit the next batter with the bases full. Manager Wilder went into the box and held the visitors fairly safe, but the winning run was scored on a sacrifice fly.

Albany, Ga., May 24.—Albany and Macon played a 12 to 12, nine-inning tie here today that was just about the weirdest exhibition of baseball that was ever seen in Albany. There were five pitchers used in the game, and Reynolds, Macon's backstop, was chased from the game in the third for disputing a decision. The feature of the game was the batting of Holden and Munn, Holden getting four out of five times up, and Munn three.

Mrs. Vallie Arnold visited Atlanta last week.

GREENSBORO, GA.

Mrs. James B. Park and Misses Nellie and Celeste Park entertained the Bridge club Wednesday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. Henry Lewis, who left Thursday for a month's stay in Winston-Salem. The guests were received in the library, which was decorated in daisies, sweet peas and roses. Mrs. Thurston Crawford won the top score prize, silk hose, and the guest of honor was given a lace handkerchief. A hot luncheon was served after the game at small tables, and the invited guests were Misses Amy Celeste, Minnie Barrett, Mrs. James Davison, Mrs. Henry Lewis, Mrs. Joe Faust, Mrs. Thurston Crawford, Mrs. R. L. Caldwell and Mrs. Orville Ewing.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Kitto Smith to the marriage of their daughter, Fletcher, to Mr. James Benase, of Gray, Ga., on the afternoon of June 4, the wedding to be a beautiful event taking place at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Pierce Brown entertained the Romino club Saturday afternoon at one of the loveliest of the week parties. Punch and sandwiches were served by Mrs. Gaillard Adams and Mrs. Will Childs, and the game of 42 was followed by an ice course. The house was decorated throughout in white hydangeas, and the guests included, besides the club members, Mrs. James Brown, Jr., Mrs. Will Childs, Mrs. Jacob Stirewault, Mrs. James Davison.

One of the most delightful meetings of the Bridge club was held Friday with Mrs. Henry Lewis. Handsome vases of roses and bowls of sweet peas were artistically arranged in the reception rooms. The high score prize, a lace collar, was given to Miss Julia Copelan, and Mrs. Hermann Geisler and Mrs. Orville Ewing were presented lovely bunches of lavender and white sweet peas. At the conclusion of the game a dainty salad course was served, the guests including: Misses Hallis and Celeste Park, Amy Geisler, Julia Copelan, Mrs. James B. Youth and Efficiency

One of the best ways by which to preserve Youth and Efficiency is to keep the mind active and interested in the thought and progress of the world.

WHEN THE MIND falls into a rut, the years begin to tell, and with the passing of the elasticity of the brain goes the grasp on life and the joy of living.

THE BRENAU Summer School, which will open June 30, at Gainesville, Ga., offers courses of study that are definitely related to the life and events of today. History, art, literature, and every day events are presented in a connected light; and in consequence the student gains a different viewpoint and a more solid knowledge.

ALL COURSES during the Summer are elective, and they are arranged to meet the needs of three classes of students:

1. STUDENTS who are preparing for college, and who desire to hasten their preparation or pursue subjects which are not offered by the local schools.
2. STUDENTS who have already entered college, and desire to do extra work for which they may receive credit in college, and thereby hasten the time of their graduation.
3. TEACHERS or other mature persons who may desire to continue their studies, and prefer to spend the Summer vacation in profitable and pleasant study rather than in idleness.

NEWS OF WOMAN'S PATRIOTIC SOCIETIES

DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

State Editor, MRS. JOSEPH S. HARRISON, 112 Fourteenth St., Columbus, Ga.; Assistant Editor, MRS. WALTER SCOTT WILSON, Savannah, Ga.; State Regent, MRS. S. W. FOSTER, 711 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga.; State Recording Secretary, MRS. OSCAR McKENZIE, Monteruma, Ga.; State Corresponding Secretary, MRS. HOWARD H. McCALL, 301 Ponce de Leon Ave., Atlanta, Ga.; State Treasurer, MRS. WM. NELSON BENTON, Augusta.

IN MESSAGE TO CHAPTERS MRS. FOSTER URGES ACTIVITY

My Dear Madame Regent: I heartily thank you for your co-operation during the past, but beginning another year of state regent, I feel the great responsibility of the work before us. I realize fully I can accomplish but little without your support.

Without delay, let's get to work and not wait until fall to map out our plans. The work you have in mind for your chapter start at once to put into action. Remember, "Procrastination is the thief of time" before us. Work with your plans and work diligently to the consummation of same. If you are to mark historic spots and revolutionary soldiers' graves plan to carry out this work as early as possible.

Do not fail to observe Flag day and sioner Fourth of July, and remember July 11 as the day on which to decorate revolutionary soldiers' graves.

Patriotic Educational Work.

No greater work can chapters undertake than patriotic education. Mrs. John M. Graham, Marietta, Ga., is chairman of patriotic education and Martha Berry school. Mrs. J. D. Morgan, Shellwick, Ga., is chairman Mrs. Oglethorpe Memorial school. Mrs. Morgan has plans about this schol and will write you at an early date. The proposed Oglethorpe Memorial is, indeed, a worthy undertaking and should appeal to every D. A. R.

If you know any place where a chapter could be organized, I would greatly appreciate your notifying me at once, giving name of some one whom you think would be interested in this work. Can you not help me along this line? All members appointed on committees last year are requested to serve on same this year.

Mrs. A. O. Harper, chairman compulsory education, will write you soon, and I trust, if possible, you will cooperate with her. Every chapter regent is hereby appointed on this committee. Let me urge you to send notice of your meetings to our state editor, Mrs. Joseph S. Harrison, 112 Fourteenth street, Columbus, Ga. It is only in this way that we can keep in touch with what our chapters are accomplishing.

Storiettes in Book Form.

It is our plan to have storiettes, embodying reminiscences on revolutionary times and Indian names and legends, published in book form by our next conference. We are anxious to have every chapter in our state make a contribution to this reader, and if your chapter has not furnished one please send one to me not later than July 15. I am sure that there is not a chapter in Georgia but what has little effort would be able to produce an interesting little storiette pertaining to revolutionary times. The storiette should not be of any great length and should be of such character as school children would enjoy reading. While we want at least one storiette from each chapter, you can send in more and, if possible, same will be published. Give this matter your prompt attention.

If you have any ideas or suggestions that you think would be beneficial to our cause, would be glad if you would send same to me. It will be my pleasure to assist you in any way possible. Kindly send your chapter or other work. Do not hesitate to call on me. With very best wishes,

SOPHIE LEE FOSTER,
State Regent.

CHAPTER MEETINGS.

John Houston.

A very interesting meeting of the John Houston chapter, Thomaston, was held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. R. E. Chatfield.

After the usual opening of the meeting, reports were read by the different officers and chairmen of committees, giving in detail the work that has been done by the chapter since its organization two years ago. We have increased in membership from nineteen, when we organized, to fifty-seven at the present time. Quite a number of the members have filled appointmental papers. A number of books and magazines have been added to our library, besides quite a nice little collection of curios that we prize very highly.

The educational committee has done very good work along their line. They have recently had 200 copies of the flag code printed and placed in the front of the histories used in the school.

The chapter has given two scholarships in R. E. Lee institute.

The revolutionary soldiers' graves committee has been very enthusiastic in their search for historic spots, soldiers' graves and indian trails. The marking of the grave of Colonel Benjamin Wilkerson, who served in the government so successfully as Indian agent, at the old agency reserve in Crawford county, has been taken up by our chapter, and we hope to mark, in the near future, a fitting monument to mark the last resting place of this noble, self-sacrificing gentleman who gave such a better part of his life to the service of his country. We have marked one grave with government marker, and have located three others, which will be marked as soon as service can be obtained.

After the reports the following officers were re-elected,

Regent, Mrs. J. J. Lewis; vice regent, Mrs. W. C. Heightower; recording secretary, Mrs. R. E. Heightower; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. E. Yates; treasurer, Mrs. E. T. Nottingham; registrar, Mrs. G. A. Weaver, Jr.; historian, Mrs. S. Y. Pruitt; chaplain, Mrs. M. Castlen. The advisory board was also re-elected, as follows: Messrs. R. E. Hightower, S. Y. Pruitt, W. H. Dallas, E. B. Thompson, W. D. Hiett, W. C. Hightower, J. J. Lewis, R. E. Chatfield and J. A. Thurston.

Mrs. R. E. Hightower, delegate to the convention at Washington, gave her report, which was very interesting.

We were then served a delicious six-course dinner by our gracious hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Mary Chatfield, and little Miss Eris Mae Johnston.

Stephen Hopkins.

An enjoyable meeting of Stephen Hopkins chapter was held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Eliza Harrison, Marshallville.

The program included a discussion of the "Bout of the Bridal From Savannah," given by Mrs. Willie Slappey, and Mrs. R. H. Richards, and an original poem by the hostess, Mrs. Timberlake, "Wild Cherry Blossoms."

The year book for the ensuing year was outlined and a prodial selected to be awarded for best essay in the senior class.

Colonel William Few Chapter.

A meeting of Colonel William Few chapter was held Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. A. W. Boaler. The regent, Mrs. A. L. Wilkins, presided in her usual graceful manner.

The program for the afternoon consisted of music, piano solo, one of Beethoven's sonatas, ably rendered by Miss Rose Waltz; also interesting papers on revolutionary heroes, by Mrs. Scott Edwards and Miss Persons.

At the conclusion of the meeting a delicious salad course was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Mary Edwards.

Brunswick Chapter.

A brilliant reception was given by the Brunswick chapter in honor of the visiting Kings Daughters during the recent convention in Brunswick. The large drawing room of the Gaichthorpe, where the Daughters received their guests, was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The officers and members were in receiving line with the regent, Mrs. J. M. Morgan, at the head.

Nathaniel Macon.

Nathaniel Macon chapter met at the residence of Mrs. T. C. Parker on Monday afternoon. After a business half hour's session, there was a joint meeting of Nathaniel Macon and Mary Hammond Washington to discuss the affairs of the last Continental congress.

At 4 o'clock Judge Emery Speer delivered an address on the "First Inauguration." There were also present on this enjoyable occasion the faculty of Mercer, which includes Hon. Emory Speer, dean; Hon. W. H. Felton, Hon. T. A. Park, Hon. A. W. Lane, Hon. Eugene Mallory, Hon. J. L. Smith and the law class of Mercer university. The senior class and the faculty of Wesleyan college were also guests of the chapter.

Stone Castle Chapter.

At her home on Saturday afternoon Mrs. T. C. Geise entertained Stone Castle chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at their regular May meeting.

Roll call was responded to with "Famous Women of Today," after which the business session was entered into. The chairman of the committee on "historic sites" gave a very interesting report—that of the location of several historic sites which the chapter will appropriately mark at some future date.

A comprehensive report of the proceedings of the national congress was read by the chapter's delegate to Washington, Mrs. W. A. Davidson, and her gift to the chapter, a regent's badge and some D. A. R. stationery, was much appreciated.

Mrs. Geise had the only paper on the program, "Mary Ball Washington," and she told in an interesting manner of the life and times of the mother of George Washington.

Mrs. R. R. Marlin read an appropriate selection, "Washington's Marriage," which closed the program.

Cream and cake were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. F. M. McCurdy and Miss Janie Bush, and a social half hour indulged in, those present voting it a most delightful occasion.

Etowah Chapter.

The May meeting of Etowah chapter was held Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Horace Howard, with Mrs. Beverly Head and Miss Temple, of Birmingham, as guests of honor.

Mrs. A. O. Granger, by invitation, gave a most interesting talk.

After the usual business session there was a lovely musical program. Delightful refreshments were served by Mrs. Howard, and the meeting thoroughly enjoyed.

Out There in Kansas.

(From The Breeder's Gazette.)

Someone, not very observant, once asked: "What is the matter with Kansas?" And more remarkably yet, someone undertook to answer the query. Several have attempted to make repl yin fact. It is easy enough if the commonly rendered reply is returned with full force and enthusiasm. At least Kansans are just now mightily inclined to think their state is all right, with something like a record-breaking yield of 300 million bushels of wheat in sight, and fewer complaints of farm conditions than ever before heard in the commonwealth. Confirmatory of a pretty generally held opinion that the clearer headed Kansans go straight to the mark in their mental processes is the action of a judge in Phillips county, who adjourned court and sent his jury of farmers back to their spring work at a time when every hour counted in the planting season. Briefly, the judge sententiously declared that we need more food farming and fewer lawsuits. A wise judge that.

Higher Education.

A college girl was pretty May,
She passed with honors high,
She wed, and to her proud D. A. R.
She's added a "Y."

CHAPTERS OF THE STATE BEHIND IN PER CAPITA TAX

To the Georgia Division: The state treasurer wants to speak to you. She has very good reason to feel she did not forgotten her, and your little obligation this year.

Out of the thirty-two chapters of the Children of the Confederacy only six—Savannah, Macon and Tennille have paid their per capita tax to the division. You see January is the month for paying dues, and when it does not come from that month or the next, nor the next, the treasurer sent you a card. Sometimes mail goes astray, notwithstanding Uncle Sam's effort to "keep things straight," and maybe you missed that reminder. If so, we gave you the benefit of the doubt, and have waited patiently another month ere I speak to you in the far-reaching voice of the press.

Before you disband for the summer gratify your state treasurer by sending in your dues for 1913.

MISS MATTIE B. SHIBELEY,
Treasurer Georgia Division, U. D. C.

MISS RUTHERFORD TELLS OF CHOOSING OF THE GRAY

Our state historian and historian general, Miss Mildred Rutherford, of Athens, has just returned from a convention of the Mississippi division at Tupelo, and the Tennessee division convention at Knoxville.

Both conventions honored the historian general, who, with her wonderful enthusiasm and deep knowledge of history, never fails to impress an audience that Georgia is indeed the Empire state. Her magnetic personality and charming cordiality of manner win countless friends wherever she goes. Mrs. Alexander Allison, of Paris, Tenn., and her daughter, Mildred, also attended both conventions.

The following article by Miss Rutherford will be of interest to the Daughters of the Confederacy:

How Confederate Gray Was Adopted.

The following interesting and valuable contribution to the history of the south as it is accentuated by the recurrence of the Memorial day occasion is of especial note just now and here—written by Miss Mildred Rutherford, and the sentiment is that repeated Saturday afternoon in the chapel exercises by Miss Rutherford:

It is not generally known how the gray Confederate uniform originated. It is thought that when the call for troops was made in the south our soldiers went full uniformed in Confederate gray, but they did not. Our boys who wore uniforms at all went in the blue jackets that the militia or state troops were wearing before the states seceded. This accounts for many old ambrotypes and photographs of Confederate soldiers taken in the early days of the war being in the blue uniform instead of the gray.

One must remember that at this time the south was an agricultural, not a manufacturing section. We had few cotton mills, and made usually only white cotton goods. Our factories had to begin manufacturing this cotton cloth after the adoption of it as our uniform for soldiers.

The blockade was made soon after the war was declared so we were literally thrown upon our own resources.

The First Flag.

Mrs. Napoleon Lockett, a native of Virginia, living in Marion, Ala., with her son who had married the daughter of Governor Moore, had asked Nicola Marschall, a Prussian artists, then living at Marion, painting portraits in many well known southern homes, to use his artistic talents in designing a flag for the states which had just seceded from the union. She wished him to make it as much like the United States flag as possible, and yet so it could be distinguished the one from the other.

Mr. Marschall, interested in his adopted people, quickly acceded to her request and claims to have made the first Confederate flag, which was at once adopted by Miss J. C. Tyler, of Virginia, grand-daughter of President John Tyler, and placed on the staff above the capitol at Montgomery, Ala., March 4, 1861, just one month after the Confederate government was formed. This flag consisted of two stripes of red with a white stripe between, a field of blue to the left with seven white stars representing the then seven seceding states.

Similar to Austrian Uniform.

So gratified was Mrs. Locket with this success that she asked Mr. Marschall if he could not design a uniform to be worn by the Confederate soldiers. At once came into his mind a beautiful gray uniform worn by the Austrian sharp shooters of his own home city. He immediately made sketches of the uniform, indicating the different colors to be used on collars to denote the branch of service.

The clothes were to have buff.

The cavalry were to have yellow.

The infantry were to have blue.

The artillery were to have red.

The Austrians had green upon their uniform.

Now these suggestions were made and adopted and this tells the story how the flag and uniform of our Confederacy originated.

By many it was thought that Francis Bartow first suggested the gray cloth, but when we realize that our hero fell in the first battle of Manassas before the gray uniform was suggested, we can readily understand that this could not have been true.

As to the first Confederate flag, Mr. Orrin Smith, of Warren county, N. C., also claims to have been the originator of this flag that Miss L. C. Tyler raised over the capitol in Montgomery, Ala., March 4, 1861. The special claims of each contestant should be placed side by side in our U. D. C. history that the future historian may decide, if he can, as to who first seized the thought of the design. Mr. Nicola Marschall was living just a short while ago, and may be now living, and from him may be secured his testimony.

Mrs. Williams, of North Carolina, gave Mr. Smith's testimony at the U. D. C. convention in Washington city last November, 1912. There seems to be no discussion in regard to the other flags, when, why and by whom suggested.

CHAPTER REPORTS.

Thomson.

The Daughters of the Confederacy met Tuesday with Mrs. W. W. Hardaway. The program on the confederate navy was much enjoyed. Afterwards an ice course was served and Miss Lula Willingham played several numbers.

Athens.

At a regular meeting of the Lovat chapter, Laura Rutherford, Daughters of the Confederacy, held at the home of its president, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Maggie Welch, president; Miss Mildred Rutherford, first vice president; Miss Mary Hamilton, second vice president; Miss Badline Prince, recording secretary; Miss Mary Wilkins, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George D. Thomas, treasurer; Mrs. Hugh Reed, registrar; Miss Mildred Rutherford, historian; Miss Fannie Mitchell, assistant historian; Mrs. E. A. Crawford, director of the Children of the Confederacy.

Sandersville.

The Mary Ann chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met with Mrs. Julia Smith on the 15th instant. Mrs. S. G. Lang, the president, was in the chair. A large attendance greeted the unfailing interest in this organization. The chapter expressed their desire to co-operate in the effort to preserve Tallulah Falls. After the routine of business the election of officers resulted in the following: President, Mrs. S. G. Lang; first vice president, Mrs. W. W. Smith; second vice president, Mrs. M. A. Janunon; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Battle Sparks, historian, Mrs. C. A. Shellnut; registrar, Miss Mamie Harris.

The delightful music rendered by Miss Mattie Harris, Miss Jennie Adams, Miss Corinne Hood and Mrs. Annie Mary Holmes was a charming feature of the pleasures of the hour, after which delicious ices and cake were served.

The chapter here numbers about one hundred members and each monthly meeting is attended with enthusiastic interest. A barbecue dinner is furnished each year on Memorial day for the veterans and their wives. The appreciation the veterans express of this attention entitles the hearty co-operation of every member of the chapter, all earnestly endeavoring to make it each year "the very best." The attendance of veterans was larger than usual, and the occasion delightful. We missed six of the braves who wore the gray; they have answered the last roll call and "rest under the shade of the trees."

The Ten Demandments.

(From Tid Bits.)

For bobbed-down worldly wisdom it would be difficult to surpass the "Ten Demandments" hanging in the dining room used by the staff of a big West End draper.

1. Don't lie. It wastes my time and yours. I am sure to catch you in the end, and that is the wrong end.

2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long days work makes a long day short, and a short days work makes my face long.

3. Give more than I expect, and I will give you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.

4. You owe so much to yourself you cannot afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt, or keep out of my shop.

5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, never see temptation when they meet it.

6. Mind your own business, and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.

7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. An employee who is willing to steal for me is willing to steal from me.

8. It is none of my business what you do at night. But if dissipation affects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.

9. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet for my vanity, but one for my money.

10. Don't kick if I kick. If you're worth while correcting you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

Hooray!

The landlord says he'll raise our rent.
Oh, worthy deed! We praise it.
For, though we've tried with best intent,
We know that we can't raise it.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

Fortitude. Being a true and faithful account of the education of an adventurer. By Hugh Walpole. New York.

"Tisn't life that matters! 'Tis the courage you bring to it!" Mr. Walpole, the author, has written several very interesting books, but this, his latest, is so full of interesting characters, so full of fighting quality and that knowledge of experience that spells power to greet defeat with a smile, and which compels success in the real world that it would be strange if the world of fiction did not pronounce it a success. (George H. Doran company, New York.)

Mr. Pratt's Patients. By Joseph C. Lincoln. Illustrated. Mr. Pratt, who is a jolly old Cape Cod fisherman, anchors his little rowboat near Seabreeze, where a sanitarium is located for right living, and rest. A few days after reaching this safe retreat he finds himself in knee-deep water, in possession of a burden in the shape of a very much alive baby, while a fierce cow bull dog of the ugliest, hungriest type menaces him from the shore, and a very over-joyful man in a boat threatens to cut the anchor rope. Mr. Pratt will doubtless long remember his adventure, but he will try to return to land with his heavy burden. But Mr. Pratt, this jolly old fisherman, is just the man to come out of such a ridiculous situation with flying colors, and becomes so useful afterwards that he accepts a job at the sanatarium, and it is in that capacity that the fun begins. It would be well to make the acquaintance of Mr. Pratt some day when you feel all down and out. (D. Appleton & Co. New York).

Ever After. By Juliet Wilbor Tompkins. Illustrated. Mrs. Tompkins introduces to her readers two very interesting characters—Peter Malbone, a young Irish composer, and Lucy Cuyler, a sweet, lovable girl, but one who has inherited from her Yankee grandfather a measure of "grit" and quality. "She had no money and he had none, and that's the way the trouble began," and when they got married Dinah realized that he would have to support his wife if he kept his self-respect. Read what makes the trouble and how simple the solution of their love affair is the meaning of "Ever After." (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

The Lost Dispatch. By Natalie Sumner Lincoln, author of "The Trevor Case," etc. Captain Lloyd, of the United States secret service, endeavors to prove that Nancy Newton is a real spy, but when he goes to Sheridan's winter quarters at Winchester, Nancy is arrested at a ball. The developments and denoument are unexpected and exciting. (D. Appleton & Co. New York.)

The King's Blue Riband. By Beth Ellis, author of "Barbara Winslow Rebel." (George H. Doran Co. New York.)

Two Shall Be Born. By Theodore Goodridge Roberts, Author of "A Cavalier of Virginia." (Cassell & Co. New York.)

IN FAR COUNTRIES.

The Southland of North America. Rambles and observations in Central America during the year 1912. By George Palmer Putnam. This handsome volume has nearly one hundred attractive illustrations. A very interesting and entertaining account of the Central American states. The author points out that almost at our very doors lies almost untouched a treasure house, a region of such fascinating possibilities which will soon command more attention as the travel increases southward.

A very interesting paragraph in Mr. Putnam's volume is the following: "While Panama is the gateway to Central America today, and has been for centuries, tomorrow its canal will more than ever be the "open Sesame" of the west coast, both north and south. There is no doubt that after 1915 a great tourist travel will filter through the isthmus as hitherto passers have made their way across it, in one manner or another. From the canal these sightseekers of tomorrow will scatter over the length of the earth. Sixty years ago the 'Panama Route' was an accepted fact in transcontinental travel, but now, upon completion of the 'Panama Route' from the eastern states and from Europe to the north Pacific slope, will come into its own and come to stay. It will open a new acquaintance with the Central American republics. There could be no better prelude to Central America than a visit to the isthmus. Here, indeed, a Panamanian month well spent and 'seeing Panama' is so absurdly easy that the most avaricious writer can easily in that brief time gather enough ammunition for a book. But as Panama is a story in itself we will linger only long enough to get acquainted." (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

South America Today. By George Clarke Reed. A description of conditions (social, political) and commercial in Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil. The author was formerly prime minister of France, and one of the most brilliant of European politicians and writers, and as he came in touch with many of the presidents, cabinet officers and officials of high rank, he had unusual exceptional opportunities to study their institutions and systems of government. It is a book so interesting that it will be widely read. (Putman's Sons, New York.

Trails and Tramps in Alaska and Newfoundland. By William A. Thomas. 150 illustrations. Of course interesting experiences, camp yarns, etc., are not forgotten by the author in his account of riding along the coast and into the interior of Alaska and Newfoundland, where they made many little excursions into rarely visited parts of the Dominion of Canada. (G. P. Putman's Sons, New York and London.)

My Own Story.—By the ex-crown prince of saxony, with 18 illustrations from original photographs, etc., was reviewed in these columns some time ago. It was the story of a woman's life, a description of the private affairs of royal houses, and it was, indeed, a very frank story.

The Philosophy of Henri Bergson. By Edouard LeRoy. Authorized translation by Vincent Benson. (Henry Holt & Co., New York and London.

Sabotage. By Emile Pouget. With introduction by Arturo Giovannitti. Translated from the French. (Charles H. Kerr & Co., New York.)

The Reduction of Domestic Flies. By Edward H. Ross. With illustrations. The object of this book is to bring to public notice the necessity for the reduction of domestic house flies. The introductory says:

"Flies in a town, village, or home, should be regarded as a sign of insanitation, and their numbers as a measure of that insanitation. Fly reduction is a beneficial measure.

1. It means a saving of life and, therefore, money.

2. It reduces sickness, sorrow, misery.

3. It results in a riddance of a pest.

4. It entails a better sanitary inspection.

5. It improves our knowledge of certain diseases.

Its cost is small.

RELIGIOUS BOOKS RECEIVED.

The Message of a Disciples of Christ for the Union of the Church, including their origin and history. By Peter Ainslie Dr Ainslie is an author, a philanthropist, and a preacher He is pastor of the Christian Temple, Baltimore, Md. The book is dedicated to his grandfather, Peter Ainslie, of Edinburgh, Scotland—"first a Presbyterian, then a Baptist, then a disciple of Christ and all the time a Christian." Upon the decision of Dr. Ainslie to publish his lectures in book form a committee was appointed by him of prominent men representing the east, west and south to pass upon his interpretation of the origin and history of the message given through his lectures before they, of one accord, very cordially approved. Dr. Ainslie has been preaching in Baltimore twenty-one years, during which time he has founded in that city three undenominational institutions: Seminary house for Bible Instructions, etc., Home club for working girls and the Temple Orphanage society. These lectures were delivered before the Yale Divinity school. (Fleming H Revell company, New York and Chicago.)

Sermons and Addresses. By John Bascom. Author of "The New Theology," etc. Dr. Bascom, who is an author of wide reputation, and this last volume is full and comprehensive on several important questions. One of the most interesting subjects is "The Lord's Prayer," the Phi Beta Kappa Address and "What Is the World's Purpose?" (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.)

Breaking Down Chinese Walls. By Elliott J. Osgood. A very interesting book on the every-day life of a missionary and his family. Illustrated. Price, $1. Putnam's Sons, New York city.)

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

The Regent Library. The general reader and the busy man or woman who has but little time to devote to books will find in these handy, compact volumes of extracts complete and interesting summaries of authors. More than 500 pages have been devoted to "Dickens" In one volume, by W. H. Helm—in another "Cowper," by Edw. Storer. This series covering the standard authors will prove as useful and as indispensable as the "Great Writers" series. (F. G. Browne & Co. Chicago.)

The Art of Letter-Writing. By Nathaniel C. Fowler. A practical manual covering the whole field of correspondence—both business and social letters fully illustrated by examples and explained by text. (Sully & Kleinteich, publishers, New York.)

Our World. New York Life. By Josiah Strong. Dr. Strong has set forth in a very interesting manner why our country, being the richest in the world, is really the most dishonored, while many world-problems will be worked out. (Doubleday, Page & Co. New York.)

The Official Good Roads Year Book of the United States. Edited by J. G. Pennybacker, Jr. This volume, which is the second annual issue, is one of the undertakings of the American Highway association, organized in November, 1910, and it is their purpose to make the annual issues of the Year Book of service to all interested in the improvement of country roads. The offices of the association is in Colorado building, Washington.

What Can Literature Do for Me? By C. Alphonso Smith. A very important little volume, and a special assistance to those who seek a definite help in every day life. One answer the author gives is that "it can show you the glory of the commonplace."

"'Tis not in the high stars alone,
Nor in the cun of budding flowers,
Nor in the redbreast's mellow tone,
Nor in the bow that smiles in showers,
But in the mud and scum of things
There alway, alway something sings."

A CHILD SAVED FROM A HORRIBLE DEATH

Little Annie Donaldson, Age 8 Years, No. 7 Richards Street, Corner Tumblin Street, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Donaldson, After Three Years' Battle With Death, Is Saved As If By a Miracle.

Words cannot describe or express the supreme feeling of joy and happiness which today filled the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Donaldson, who reside at No. 7 Richards street, New Era division, this city. Little child, Annie, 8 years old, not larger than an ordinary child of 5 years, was saved from death and restored to perfect health in a seemingly miraculous manner. For three long years this dear little child has been suffering from some unexplainable cause. Her stomach would at times bloat to immense proportions, high fever would frequently attack her, followed by dreadful chills or bilious attacks, her mind was clear, but her memory weak, her sleep restless, sometimes screaming out, almost frightened to death. Her pain and all modest attempts were resorted to, but the child's condition grew worse. The mother did what hundreds of other people were doing. She called at Coursey & Munn's drug store and obtained a treatment of the Quaker Extract. With anxious mind she watched for results after the child began taking the wonderful remedy, and what were the results? To the amazement of the whole family, who were with her at the time, the child expelled a monster tapeworm, head and all complete, alive and squirming. It is hard to believe this monster is 41 feet in length. How many children and people are being tortured by these parasites, and how they go on for years dosing and doping for what they think is some form of stomach trouble, when it really is worms of some kind that is causing all your trouble. If it is worms, Quaker Extract will expel them. If it is caused from other causes, such as catarrh, indigestion, constipation, the Quaker Extract will do more for you than any other remedies on the market today.

This case is so remarkable that many people will doubt it, yet all are at liberty to investigate, write, phone or wire or call at the child's residence, the above address. The father is a carpenter by occupation, was born and lived most of his life here in Atlanta, and he has a host of friends and they will vouch for his word. The Health Teacher said the public would soon realize the power of the Quaker Remedies, and such cases as this should certainly convince the sensible person. Once more the Health Teacher recommends the Quaker Extract and Oil of Balm to any person who may suffer with rheumatism, catarrh, kidney, liver, stomach, bladder or blood trouble, and will expel all worms.

So call today at Coursey & Munn's drug store, 91 Marietta street, and obtain these wonderful Quaker Remedies.

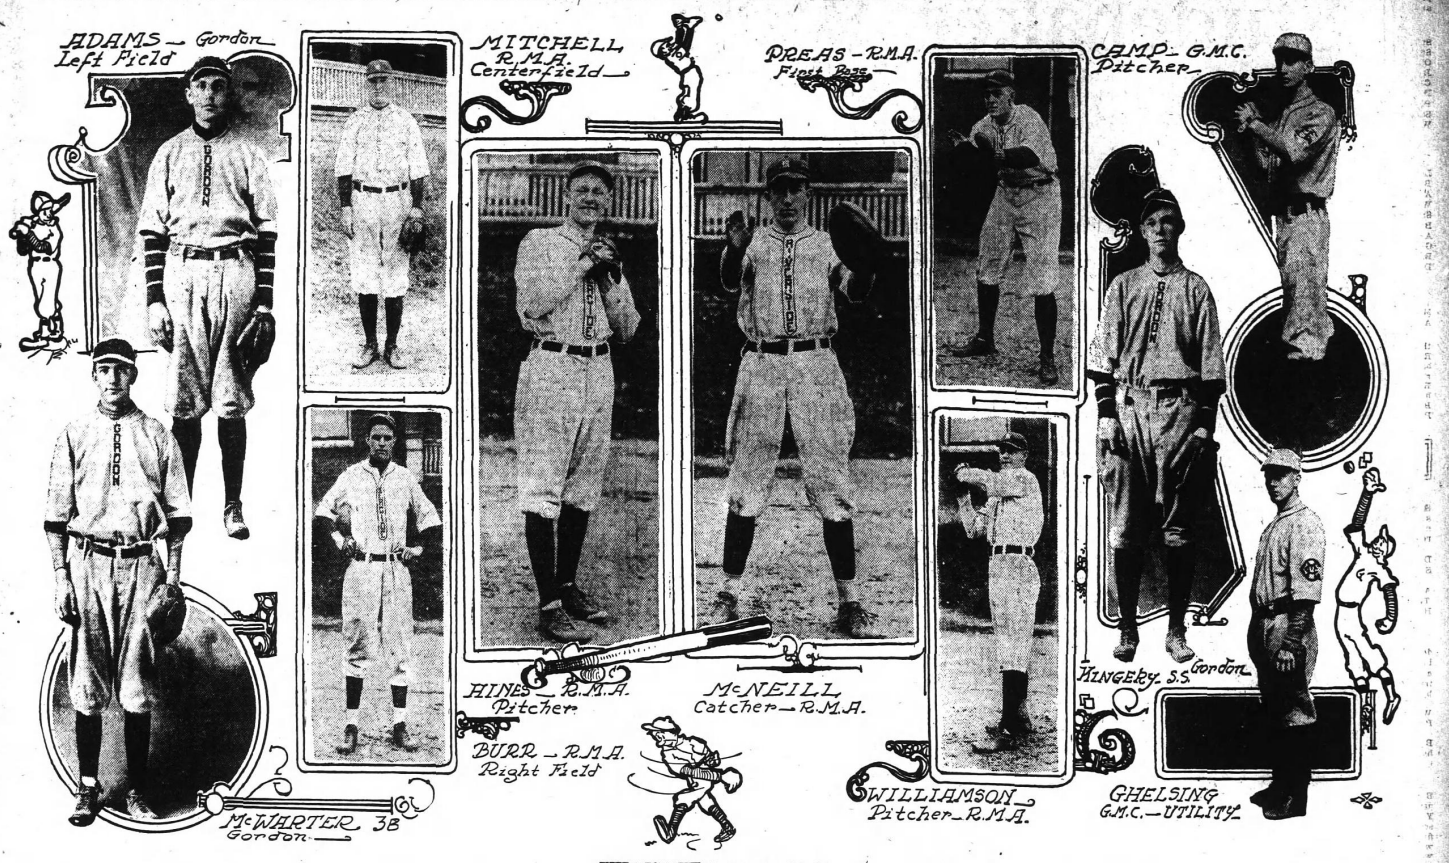
Frank Anderson's All-Prep School Baseball Team



THIS IS THE TEAM CHOSEN.

The coach of the Riverside Military Academy baseball team picked this all-star team for The Constitution last Sunday, choosing it from the ranks of the teams of the Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association, of which Gordon, Riverside, G. M. C. and Stone Mountain are members. Norton, of Stone Mountain, who was chosen for the second base position, is not in the above group.

Familiar Moves of Players May Convey Hidden Signs; Codes Are Generally Simple

BY TY COBB.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the fourteenth of a series of weekly articles written exclusively for The Constitution by the world's greatest ball player.

(Copyright, 1913, by Ty Cobb Service.)

Many persons are under the impression that the signals used by baseball teams are very complicated and hard to fathom. In that belief they are wrong, as usually signals are very simple and things that are commonly done on the ball field often telegraph intended plays, offensively and defensively.

It is true that several sets of signals are used by every major league baseball club. In this way the opponents are kept guessing and just when they think they have the signs of the catcher or batsman, and play accordingly, they may be crossed and made to look foolish.

The catcher has the brunt of the signals to handle. Frequently he will have two or three sets of each sign. Of course that means two or three sets with the pitcher, the same number with the second baseman and shortstop, and several with the first baseman and third baseman.

Bench managers, in directing their players, usually signal to one player. That player passes the order along to the others by means of a signal. The managers who do not don a uniform invariably use a score card to telegraph their orders to the captain. Leaders who go on the coaching line and players who make a specialty of coaching have different positions of the body and feet and frequently sing out words which mean a whole lot, but sound ordinary to the fans.

Signals Are Very Simple.

The catcher and pitcher in the big leagues employ very simple signals. Nearly every backstop uses the same. One or two fingers pointing downward usually means a curve or a fast ball, while three fingers or the fist doubled up means a waste ball. That is about all that is necessary for the catcher and pitcher.

If the catcher wishes to signal the second baseman or shortstop he usually does it by placing the open hand on his knee or mask in such a way as to convey a meaning. Frequently the backstop stoops in such a way as to signal the players or he may move his feet or something like that.

But the wise catcher tries to make his signs simple, so that there can be no misinterpretations. I have known it to happen that when a catcher employed intricate signals he would unintentionally give a signal by getting into a certain position in the course of the game without thinking that he was throwing a sign.

The second baseman and shortstop signal to each other by certain words, removing a glove, picking up dirt or some such way. They try to do it without arousing suspicion, for their signals usually tell which man will cover the base on a steal and they do not want the opponents to get on to it.

Pitcher Has Signs, Too.

The pitcher usually has a set of signals which he uses when he believes the enemy is getting the signs of his catcher. He may approach the rubber with his left foot first, meaning a curve, while if he steps on it with his right foot in front he is going to throw a fast one. Then he may stand evenly on the rubber for one kind of pitch, rest more weight on one foot than the other, bend either knee slightly or bring the ball up to his glove in such a way as to convey a meaning to his backstop and team.

The difficult part of the stealing of signals by the wise men of the game is to tell when the pitcher or catcher is giving the signs. The backstop always stoops and goes through all his usual motions when the pitcher is telegraphing the ball he is going to pitch, while, when the catcher is signaling, the twirler goes through all his motions which might mean something. They switch whenever they think it necessary and the opponents are likely to get fooled.

Hit and run signals vary a lot. Some batters touch their cap on the beak, move it around on their head or remove it and put it back. They may pass their hand over their chin, hold the bat in a peculiar way, run their hands up to the big end of the bat, tap the bat on the plate two or three times, knock the dirt off their shoes or take a hitch in their trousers. All these moves are familiar to the fans and you see them made every day. But they may carry a hidden meaning which will help to decide the ball game for the players who are watching for them.

To miss one of these signs is a breach of team play and causes much of the wrangling among the players. For instance, if the batter gives the hit and run sign, he always tries to protect the runner. He may go after a bad ball and pop it up or may swing at a bad one and miss it, getting a strike. Then if he looks to first base and finds the runner flat-footed while he has either been put out or in a bad hole, he is very naturally peeved.

Coachers usually have word signals. "Hit it out, old boy," or "Come on, old boy," are phrases which may mean something. Many of the every-day sayings which the fans hear and pay no attention to carry an order or some advice to the players.

Rehearse Them Frequently.

In teams where they have perfected team play, the signals are rehearsed nearly every day. When the players understand the signals perfectly it is possible to pull some intricate plays. Here is an instance:

The catcher flashes a signal when a runner is on second. With a concerted motion, the second baseman rushes to the base, the shortstop hurries behind him, the center fielder hastens in close to the base and the pitcher turns and throws the ball. Unless the runner is on his guard he will be caught several feet away from the base. Even if the throw is bad the backing up is so complete that it should be impossible to get an extra base and nothing is lost. That is what I call perfect team work.

Another play—which I have described in a previous article—the breaking up of the double steal, can only be worked perfectly when the signals have been thoroughly rehearsed and each man takes his position at the same time.

All these plays require constant practice and signal work. Young players should not have such an intricate system as I have mentioned at the start. But they should have a simple set of signals and drill themselves thoroughly in them. Then, as they progress in the game, they can add signs and perfect them. No signals should be used which have not been so thoroughly rehearsed and perfected that every man on the team knows just what is coming and what he should do.

Many persons think that Hughey Jennings, manager of the Detroit club, gives his players orders through his famous "E-Yah" yell. That is not the case, however. He uses the same signals as other coachers, and some words and some positions. That recalls to my mind a funny conversation I overheard, the talkers being two of our wise ball players. They were trying to "dope" out what the "E-Yah" meant.

"Notice how he did it that time, following it up with a whistle," said one.

"I'll bet that means hit and run."

"No, the batter is trying to sacrifice," said the other. "He puts emphasis on the 'Yah' when he orders the hit and run."

Jennings Fools Opponents.

That pair went on arguing over the "E-Yah," and trying to figure out what orders were concealed in it for several minutes. Even if I had told them that Jennings was not giving his signals that way—which I did not do, of course—they would not have believed me. I guess some of the wise ball players still think there is something back of Jennings' famous cry, and he is perfectly willing for them to continue to think it, too.

There are many players who make a study of signs and how to steal them. And while some are successful, others occasionally get into trouble by being crossed.

I was told by one of our major league second basemen that he once thought he had the hit-and-run signal of an opposing team. The batter invariably ran his hand down to the long end of the stick when he came up to hit with the runner.

The second sacker played deep and refused to go to the base to cover for a steal. But three times the steal was attempted and the opponents got away with it. Then the infielder became wise. He knew taht the signs had been changed and what once called for hit and run was now only a bluff and the steal was pulled.

Joke on Catcher.

Another funny story in connection with sign-giving is a joke on an exCubs catcher. Probably some of my readers will think baseball is a rough and cruel game when I tell them that nearly every catcher is provided with a sign which calls for the "bean ball." In baseball lore, the "bean" is the head, and when the batsman is crowding the plate or gets too fresh, the pitcher is liable to throw one at the "bean" to make him stand back or frighten and unnerve him.

This particular catcher crooked his little finger when he wanted the pitcher to throw the "bean ball." One day a batsman of an opposing team had been hitting the ball very hard and had been keeping up a line of sarcastic conversation for the benefit of the catcher and pitcher every time he came to the plate. Finally, the backstop lost his temper completely and jumped to his feet from a crouching position, crooked his little finger and waved his right hand aloft so that everybody could see it.

Of course, the fans and opposing players did not understand what was going on and merely thought the catcher was angry and showing his displeasure at his motions. But the pitcher, and infielders and outfielders of the defensive team knew what was meant and have had many a good laugh over it since. Of course after that public show of the "bean ball" sign, the twirler did not thrown one at the "bean" of the batsman.

After reading this, possibly some fans will go to the games and figure out that they are stealing the signs of the teams. But don't allow yourself to be fooled. The managers and players are switching their signals so frequently that one day when you think you see a sign which means hit and run, you will notice that the next day that same motion, act or word will bring a sacrifice or steal. It is an interesting study and the ball player who becomes adept at sign stealing is a valuable asset to any club.

EMPIRE STATE LEAGUE

Valdosta 9, Waycross 5.

Waycross, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Listless playing lost today's game to Valdosta after Waycross had a four-run lead. the score being 9 to 5, three being home runs, two by Waycross players, Anderson and Bitting, and one by Hurley, who won yesterday's game for Valdosta by a home run, featured the game.

Jordan led the batting, getting three hits out of four times up. Valdosta hit opportunely, and took advantage of the errors made, stealing bases also at will. Sellars, who pitched for Valdosta yesterday, relieved Elrod in the sixth and gave up but one hit and fanned seven. Herring was pitching a good game for Waycross, but rotten support got his goat.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Valdosta . . . . .000 034 200—9	14	0
Waycross . . . . .020 200 100—5	7	5

Batteries—Elrod, Sellars and Pierce; Herring, Stiles and Wahoo. Time 2:20. Umpire, McLaughlin.

Brunswick 5, Americus 0.

Brunswick, Ga., May 24.—(Special.) In the fastest game played here since the opening of the league season, Brunswick again shut out Americus this afternoon by a score of 5 to 0. Vickery, for the locals, pitched excellent ball, keeping his five hits scattered through nine innings. Wolfe also pitched good ball, but the errors made by Americus were costly. Schuley put the ball over the right field fence in the eighth for a home run, it being one of the longest drives ever seen here.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Americus . . . .000 000 000—0	5	2
Brunswick . . . .200 020 01x—5	8	2

Batteries—Vickery and Siefert. Wolfe and Manchester. Umpire, Bennett.

Thomasville 10, Cordele 2.

Thomasville, Ga., May 24.—(Special.) Cordele was defeated in a fairly exciting contest this afternoon by a score of 10 to 2. Both for the locals was wild, but let the visitors down with four hits. He gave seven bases on balls and hit two batters. Wagner, a new fielder for Thomasville, hit for two bags and stole third and home in one inning. The base running of the locals was more gingery than any contest on the local grounds and their fielding was fast and snappy. Cordele's outfield let slow ground balls go for two-base hits in two different innings.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Thomasville . . .100 213 30x—10	9	2
Cordele . . . .100 000 100— 2	4	4

Batteries—Roth and Dudley; Fillingem and Rubanks.

Buena Vista Wins.

Buena Vista, Ga., May 24.—(Special.) The locals defeated the Ellaville team this afternoon by the overwhelming score of 14 to 1. Hair, pitching for the locals, gave up 5 scattered hits and struck out 9 men. He was invincible after the first inning, when the visitors registered their only tally on Collins' hit to left and Williams' sacrifice fly to right. Collins, for the visitors, was battde from the rubber in the fourth and was succeeded by Murray, who fared no better. The home team hit like a house afire. Chapman and Hirshburg, for the locals, led with the willow, each getting three safties out of four times up. The home team is fast rounding into shape, and will tackle the Columbus Y.M.C.A. on the local diamond in a three-game series next week.

DARTMOUTH AN EASY WINNER IN MEET

Cambridge, Mass., May 24.—So overwhelmingly was Dartmouth's victory in the New England Intercollegiate track and field championship today that interest lay only in the struggle for second place, which went to Brown, and individual performances. Captain Norman S. Taber, of Brown, did the mile in 4 minutes and 36 3-5 seconds. The old association time was 4 minutes, 24 2-5 seconds.

In the half mile Taber breasted the tape in 1 minute 55 3-5 seconds, two seconds better than the old time. R. W. Watwater, of Tufts, clipped nearly thirteen seconds of the association's two-mile time, covering the distance in 9 minutes 35 3-5 seconds. The former time was 9 minutes 4 2-5 seconds.

Other records broken were in the shot put, hammer throw and discus throw.

BLOOD DISEASED? THEN ACT QUICKLY

From the blood all the solid tissues take their food and oxygen. Unless the poison is checked it will soon affect the entire body. If you have dry, rough skin, pimples on the face, swollen tonsils, sore throat and the voice husky; if the joints become swollen and stiff; if you have catarrh and feel all stuffed up; if you cannot eat right, think right, work right—don't delay. Write at once to Dr. Brown, 925 Arch St., Philadelphia, the Blood Specialist, or send for a bottle of BROWN'S BLOOD TREATMENT, $2 —enough to last a month. SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special Correspondence.)—Mrs. Richard Johnston, a beautiful young matron of Atlanta, whom Macon claimed until the last few years, was guest of honor on Thursday afternoon at a beautiful bridge party given by Mrs. J. Marshall Johnston. There were quantities of flowers, for which the hostess is noted, arranged in the various apartments, Paul Myron roses, vari-colored sweet peas, pansies, golden coreopsis and flame-colored nasturtiums. Sixty ladies enjoyed the game and at each table a prize was given for highest score. Wednesday afternoon Miss Hannah Hines was hostess at a pleasant affair for Mrs. Richard Johnston and Mrs. W. W. Thomas, of Atlanta.

Mrs. Claude M. Badgely, of New York, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Henry M. Wortham, was the inspiration for a most enjoyable picnic supper and dance at the Log Cabin on Tuesday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Wortham. An old-fashioned southern barbecue served under the spreading oaks was enjoyed by about twenty-five of the married contingent, who were joined later in the evening by a number of the unmarried set. The club house was most attractive with oleanders and palms, and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Mrs. Badgely was again guest of honor at a beautiful party Thursday evening when Mrs. A. D. Schofield was hostess.

Mrs. Pate Stetson, on of the spring brides who is a most charming acquisition to Macon's social circles, was honoree at a pretty bridge party Tuesday afternoon given by Mrs. Mayhem Taylor Hemphill. The entire lower floor of the attractive home was decorated with white and yellow flowers; white sweet peas, golden coreopsis, pansies and nasturtiums. Mrs. Stetson was lovely in a pale blue crepe, gracefully draped over white lace, large picture hat, faced with shell pink and trimmed with shell pink roses. Mrs. Warren Roberts won the prize for highest score.

Miss Frances Hardwick, of Dalton, is being pleasantly entertained while the guest of Mrs. Reeves Brown. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Brown was hostess at a bridge party of three tables for Miss Hardwick. Miss Leila Rogers making the highest score. Thursday morning Miss Leila Artope entertained a number of young girls at a bridge luncheon in honor of Miss Hardwick.

The Saturday Morning Music club changed the date of meeting last week to Thursday evening to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Richard Wagner. A large percentage of the members and a number of guests met at the home of the president, Mrs. James T. Wright. Miss Florence Bernd, who had charge of the meeting, read an interesting article on Wagner and recited beautifully by Lanier's poem, "Wagner." Then followed musical numbers from the following operas: "Magic Fire Music" and "Spring Song" from Die Walkyrie; "Spinning Song" from Die Fliegenden; "Prize Song" from Die Meistersinger, "Elizabeth's Prayer" and "Song to the Evening Star" from Tannhouser, and "Elsa's Dream" from Lohengrin.

As usual, the last week in May is given up in great measure to Wesleyan commencement and the accompanying festivities among the college crowd. The Wesleyan girls spending commencement week with friends in the city are Miss Lucy Benton, of Monticello; Gladys Sheppard, of Elberton; Sarah Lee Coney, of Hawkinsville; Mary Fort, of Americus, and Emily Heath, of Talbotton, with Miss Cornelia Adams. With Miss Elizabeth Baker, in Vineville, are Misses Annie Lou Hardy, of Senoia; Lamar Royals, of Cordele; Laurian Johnston, of Atlanta, and Minnie McMichael, of Buena Vista. Miss Jessie and Annie Dickey, of Oxford, and Miss Theodora Atkinson of Newnan, are guests of Miss Nella Damour; Miss Annie Gantt is entertaining Miss Anne Cunningham, of Coranna, Ala., and Misses Rebecca Branham and Emily Melton, of Oxford. Miss Jeannette Bunkley, of Sandersville, is spending the commencement season with Mrs. Alex Sellers. Among the numerous entertainments in honor of the charming visitors were an afternoon tea given by Miss Cornelia Adams for the senior class of 1913, of which she is a member. She has also issued invitations to a large reception Wednesday afternoon complimentary to her guests, Misses Coney, Fort, Heath, Benton and Sheppard. Saturday morning Miss Catherine Carnes entertained at a heart-dice party, her guests being the Wesleyan seniors of 1913. Saturday at noon Miss Elizabeth Baker gave a beautiful luncheon, places laid for thirty-four, to the same crowd of merry girls. Saturday evening there were two delightful affairs for the attractive visitors and their young hostesses; one given by Miss Anne Townsend Bowdre for Miss Mildred McKenzie, of Montezuma, and Misses Sarah Lee Coney and Catherine Pelhill, of Hawkinsville, the other, a lovely evening reception, by Miss Annie Gantt for the girls of the senior class and a number of young men. The young ladies receiving with Miss Gantt were Misses Cornelia Adams, Catherine Carnes, Elizabeth Baker, Annie-lou Hardy, of Senoia; Leo Baker, Rebecca Branham, of Oxford; Kathleen McRae, Anne Cunningham, of Coranna, Ala., and Emily Melton, of Oxford. Miss Elizabeth Baker has issued invitations for a large afternoon party Tuesday, May 27, for the members of the college set. On Wednesday evening a number of young men will entertain at a box party at the Grand for Miss Annie Gantt and her visitors. Quite a number of the resident alumnae of Wesleyan with the president, Mrs. Alexander Proudfit, attended the class day exercises Saturday on the college campus, and the class of 1913 give a breakfast at the Dempsey Monday morning to the class of 1909, who are holding a reunion there. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Lane and Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Flournoy, chaperoned a merry party of young people at a picnic at Lakeside park Saturday afternoon. The hosts were the young men of the Kappa Alpha fraternity; the guests the girls of the college set.

Miss Bancroft, of Wesleyan faculty, whose beautiful voice has delighted so many Macon audiences and instilled music into so many Wesleyan girls, leaves in June to spend the summer months in Munich, Germany, where she will perfect herself in voice and attend opera there and in other musical centers of Europe.

Mrs. J. Marshall Johnston was hostess on Friday evening at a most enjoyable dance at the Log Cabin, the affair being a pretty compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall J. Ellis, whose marriage occurred last month, and Miss Viola Johnston and Mr. William H. Felton, Jr.

Mrs. S. R. Jacques entertained a congenial party of matrons at an afternoon bridge party Friday.

Miss Marie Adams returned home Thursday after a pleasant visit to Mrs. Ralph Neill, in Thomasville.

Mrs. Will Pender, of Valdosta, arrives today to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Edwards, at Holly Bluff.

Miss Lily Marshall, of Montezuma, is visiting Mrs. Berrien Whitehead.

Mrs. Joseph L. Fearing and children, of Chicago, returned home Tuesday after a visit of several weeks to Mrs. William Lee Ellis, on College street.

A pleasant and profitable meeting of the Sidney Lanier Chapter, U. D. C., was held Friday afternoon in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. John A. Selden, who has been chosen matron of honor for the Georgia division of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, left Saturday for Chattanooga. Mrs. T. H. Boone, matron of honor for the Georgia division of Confederate Veterans, leaves Monday to attend the reunion in Chattanooga.

A party of young people who motored to Perry on Friday to spend the day in fishing at the Davis place, included Misses Daisy Wimberly, Lelia Rogers and Mary Davis, Messrs. Virgil Thorpe and William H. Marquess, Jr.

Mrs. Charlton Adams has as guest Mrs. Robert Pate, of Hawkinsville.

Mrs. William Burwell, of Sparta, was a recent guest of Mrs. William Brunson.

Miss May Burke left Thursday to visit Mrs. Griffith Dodson in Norfolk, Va.

Miss Mattie Adams returns home today from a pleasant visit to Miss Lutie Head, in Zebulon.

Mrs. Wirt Wright left Thursday for her home in St. Louis, after a pleasant visit to Miss Bessie Brunson.

Mr. Edgar S. Wilson and Misses Mary and Catherine Wilson left Saturday to spend the month of June on the Pacific coast, returning by way of Yellowstone park.

Misses Ruth Smith and Ruth Brown, of Tennille, are spending commencement week with Miss Bernd, at Hill.

Miss May Burke returned Monday from a short visit to Miss Mattie Lewis Dodson, in Americus.

Miss Mildred McKenzie, of Montezuma, is spending the week-end with Miss Sarah Tinsley.

One of the prettiest affairs of the week was Mrs. Mallory Taylor's reception on Monday afternoon to between fifty and seventy-five of her married friends. She was assisted in receiving the guests by her daughter, Mrs. Maybeth Taylor Hemphill, and Mrs. John W. Bunting presided at the punch bowl.

TALLAPOOSA, GA.

In compliment to Miss Bernice Benson, who leaves soon to make her home in Atlanta, Misses Etta Pittman and Burta Little entertained at the Tallapoosa hotel last Thursday afternoon. The new and popular game, "Vinko," was a feature of the afternoon. Mrs. P. W. Bonner won first prize, a pack of the handsome new Vinko cards. Miss Benson was also presented with a pack. Refreshments carrying the color scheme of pink and white were served. Miss Adaline Pittman and Maggie Camp assisted in entertaining.

Mrs. B. F. Darling has gone to Bay View, Mich., to spend the summer.

Mrs. O. S. Turner is home from a winter stay in Apalachicola, Fla.

Miss Mary Hartnett will go to Waycross to teach in the public schools next season. Miss Harriett Cobb will go to North Carolina and Miss Ada Potter will go to Alabama. They have been employed here the past season.

The music class of Mrs. J. I. Perryman gave their annual recital at the M. E. church, south, last night. A large audience attended. The program was a very elaborate one and well rendered.

WASHINGTON, GA.

One of the pretty events of June will be the home wedding of Miss Mary Agnes Chafin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Chafin, and Mr. H. C. Brooks, which will occur on the evening of June 4 at 9:30 o'clock. Both young people are popular here, and their marriage will be the occasion of much cordial interest. In honor of the bride-elect several delightful events have been arranged during next week.

Mrs. H. S. Bradley, who has been the guest of Mrs. John P. Erwin for several weeks, leaves today for Winder to visit her son, Ambrose Bradley.

Miss Ida Alexander has returned from Flat Rock, N. C., where she has been for a week the guest of Mrs. George Baldwin, of Savannah, who owns a cottage at Flat Rock and spends the most of her summers there. Early in June Miss Alexander and Mrs. Joseph A. Terry leave with a party from New York for a tour of Europe.

The Matrons' club was entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. F. H. Ficklen.

Mrs. S. F. Garlington and Mrs. Claude A. Fleming, of Augusta, are expected next week for a visit of several days in Washington with their mother, Mrs. F. A. Cosart.

Mrs. Otto Thacker and two attractive children, of Atlanta, are guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fluker.

Members of the younger set enjoyed a tallyho ride and moonlight picnic Wednesday evening. After the "joy ride" the party enjoyed a basket dinner at "Ravenwood Park." Mr. and Mrs. E. S. McLean, Jr., chaperoned the happy crowd.

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was the bridge party with which Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Simms entertained on Tuesday evening in honor of the members of the young married set's Bridge club.

HOGANSVILLE, GA.

One of the prettiest parties of the season and a delightful compliment to Miss Pearl Burden, of Atlanta, was that Mrs. A. W. Strozier before she leaves for the summer, was the "42" party given Wednesday afternoon by Mr. Herbert Word and Mrs. C. S. Burden.

Miss Jimmie Bass delightfully entertained the Pleasureseekers' club Friday afternoon.

One of the most successful entertainments given by home talent was the play, "The Woman's Suffrage Reform Club," which was presented here Friday evening by the Woman's club to a large audience.

Mrs. J. F. McLaughlin was hostess to the Woman's club Saturday afternoon. Mesdames Reid and Brightman had charge of the program. Mrs. McLaughlin was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Miss Maldee Matthews. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. R. M. Mobley, May 30.

Mrs. B. A. Hogan charmingly entertained forty of her friends with a "42" party Thursday afternoon. The house throughout was tastefully decorated with daisies and ferns. Punch was served in the dining room by Mrs. W. J. Hogan and Miss Mattie Lee Hogan.

Miss Annie Catchings Crum is at home from Wesleyan college.

Mrs. Ralph Settle is in Rochelle, spending two weeks with the family of R. C. Settle.

Miss Esta Garr is at home from a visit with Mrs. Gordon Barnes, in Cochran.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles L. Redman leave Sunday for a trip through the north and east.

OXFORD, GA.

Quite a party of Oxford people are going down to Macon to be present at the graduating exercises at Wesleyan college. The party is composed of Mrs. Onie F. Starr, Dr. and Mrs. James E. Dickey, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Melton, Keller Melton and Dr. Charles E. Dowman, Sr.

Misses Marie Wright and Dought Merritt, of Greensboro, spent a day this week with Mrs. O. F. Starr, as the guests of Mr. Charlie Merritt.

Mrs. John F. Bonnell, who has been visiting relatives in West Point, Ga., Montgomery and Union Springs, Ala., has returned home.

Mrs. Agnes Chambers, who recently moved to Atlanta from Ireland, is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar H. Johnson.

Misses Pearl Johnson, of Arcadia, Fla., and Norwood Key, of Monroe, Ga., are visiting Misses Clara and Janie Johnson. These young ladies were all together at Cox college last session.

Mrs. W. T. Burt and children, Mildred and Sarah Barnwell, have gone to Buena Vista to visit relatives.

Miss Lelia Dillard, teacher of voice and expression in Sparks collegiate institute, has returned home for the vacation.

Miss Roberta Moore, of Jacksonville, Fla., is here visiting her grandmother, Mrs. John S. Moore, and her sister, Miss Mary Hill Moore.

Mrs. H. M. Lindsey, after a pleasant visit to Mrs. A. G. Williams, and Miss Helen Williams, has returned to her home in Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Wynn, of Atlanta, who, have been visiting their parents on Branham Heights, have returned home.

SOCIAL CIRCLE, GA.

Miss Denie Abercrombie, of Jersey, is spending a few days with Mrs. Hugh Abercrombie.

Mrs. J. R. Irwin, of Conyers, was the guest last week of Mrs. Edward Almond.

Mrs. George Spearman has returned from a week's visit to Macon.

Mrs. J. H. Hurst motored over to Gainesville Thursday and is the guest of Mrs. Edward Gibbs for Brenau commencement.

Mrs. Presley Starton spent Monday in Atlanta.

Mrs. L. L. Lamor and little daughter, Louise, of Manchester, are guests of Mrs. Robert Mitchell.

Mrs. John N. King and son, John, have returned to their home in Rochelle.

Mrs. Dudley Spearman had a few friends on Monday afternoon for a delightful game of bridge.

Mrs. Bob Camp entertained at a "42" party on Tuesday afternoon.

One of the most enjoyable social functions of the week was the junior banquet on Tuesday evening at the home of Misses Mildred Posey. About forty guests were present, including the seniors, juniors and faculty. There were a number of toasts, Mrs. J. T. Lowe acting as toastmaster.

Mrs. Lena Brown entertained at a beautiful 6 o'clock dinner on Saturday in honor of the senior class and faculty of the High school.

The graduating exercises of the Social Circle High school will be held at the school auditorium on Monday evening, May 26.

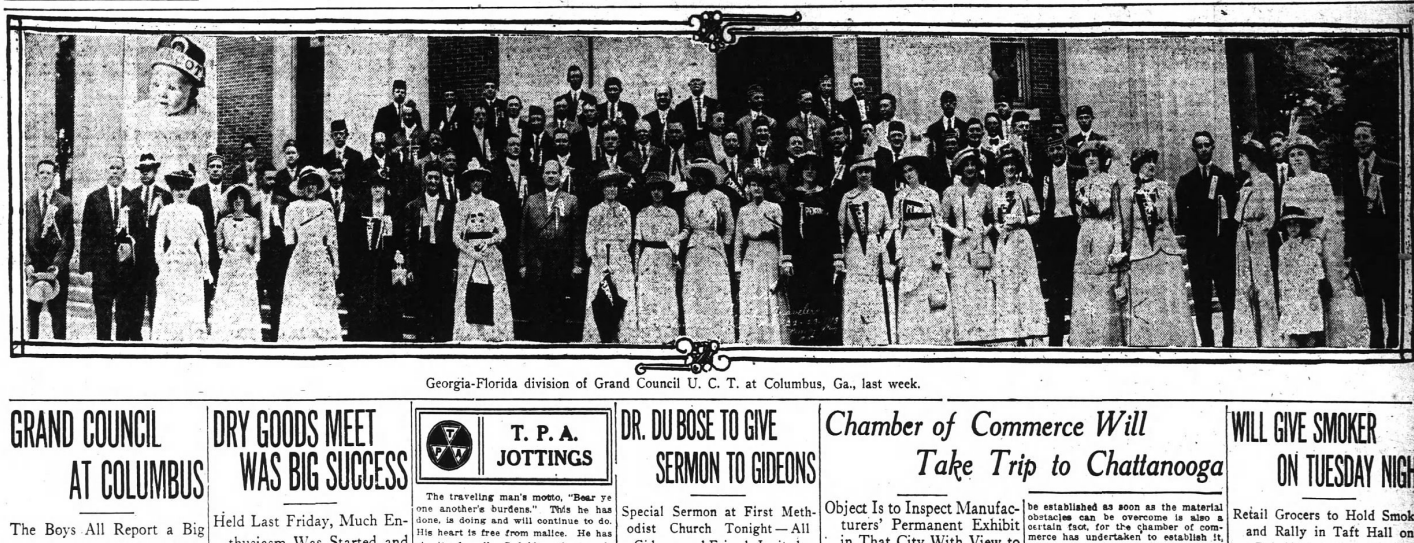
The Keynote of Modern Business Is "Service"



Georgia-Florida division of Grand Council U. C. T. at Columbus, Ga., last week.

GRAND COUNCIL AT COLUMBUS

The Boys All Report a Big Time and That Much Good Work Was Accomplished. Meet Next in Pensacola.

The local U. C. T. members who attended the meeting of the Georgia-Florida division of the Grand Council in Columbus, Ga., last week, are all back home, reporting the time of their lives. The good people in Columbus certainly know how to play the part of hosts, and they have made an impression on their guests that will not easily wear off.

The parade of the "Bagmen of Bagdad" was an interesting feature of Friday's program, and the boys looked fine in their full regalia.

At the business session on Friday the officers for the ensuing year were elected, and Pensacola, Fla., was selected as the next meeting place, over Gainesville, Ga., the only other contestant for the place. Jacksonville, Fla., was expected to ask for the next convention, but did not. The date for the meeting was not fixed.

The officers elected were as follows: R. B. Cole, Jacksonville, past grand counselor; E. D. Weir, Athens, grand counselor; J. M. Reily, Tampa, grand junior counselor; R. L. Wallis, Atlanta, grand secretary; A. L. Brook, Atlanta, grand treasurer; W. L. Stern, Savannah, grand conductor; M. J. Heubner, Pensacola, grand page; J. M. Giddens, Columbus, grand sentinel.

The following executive committeemen were elected for a term of two years: G. P. Byrd, of Atlanta, and J. W. Bates, of Macon. T. B. Lewis, of Atlanta, and D. K. Urleman, of Pensacola, were named as representatives to the supreme council.

The grand council adopted a resolution indorsing the bill now before congress introduced by Congressman Bartlett, of Georgia, to give to the people 1-cent letter postage. The grand council, by vote, became a member of the "National One-Cent Postage association."

A resolution was also adopted indorsing the bill in congress introduced by Senator Burton, providing for changing the date for presidential and congressional elections from the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, to the first Monday in November. The traveling men assert that 500,000 commercial travelers would be more or less affected by such a change that it would make it easier for this number to vote in these elections.

A committee, of which W. A. Webb, of Atlanta, is chairman, was appointed to draft an amendment to the present hotel law in Georgia providing for the creation of a state hotel inspector.

The necessity for a hotel inspector is recognized by all traveling men, and the move on the part of the U. C. T. to help secure this is welcomed by all, whether members of the order or not.

On the whole the meeting was pronounced as one of the most successful ever held in the history of the Grand Council, and the business done was highly satisfactory.

The Atlanta Paper company report that probably the most enthusiastic reader of The Constitution Firing Line in their whole force is H. P. Belsinger, sales manager for Kentucky and Tennessee. Mr. Belsinger is to be congratulated.

DRY GOODS MEET WAS BIG SUCCESS

Held Last Friday, Much Enthusiasm Was Started and the "Get Together" Spirit Was Emphasized.

The meeting of the third division of the Southern Wholesale Dry Goods association, held in the assembly hall of the Piedmont hotel last Friday, was a huge success from any viewpoint. The attendance was practically all that could be desired, great enthusiasm was engendered and the "get together" spirit which was displayed was highly satisfactory.

The meeting was called to order by chairman R. K. Rambo. E. S. Epstein, of I. Epstein & Bro. of Savannah, Ga., was elected secretary, and the chairman made a full explanation of the meeting. W. A. Parker, president of the Southern Hardware Jobbers' association, made a talk on "Co-operation" and urged that the dry goods people follow the example set by the hardware men and get closer to their competitors, which would be to their mutual interest and welfare.

After two hours' discussion of interesting matters the entire third division was given a luncheon at the Capital City club by Murray Brown, of Birmingham, president of the association.

After luncheon another interesting meeting was held and they adjourned about 6 p. m. They expect to have these meetings at least quarterly and the next time will probably meet in Savannah.

The firms represented were as follows:

E. S. Epstein, of I. Epstein & Bro. Co., Savannah, Ga.

L. Mohr, of L. Mohr & Son., Savannah, Ga.

Hugo Frank, of Frank & Co., Savannah, Ga.

Murray Brown, of Goodall-Brown & Co., Birmingham, Ala.

W. C. Barnwell, of Ragan-Malone Co., Atlanta, Ga.

H. R. Calloway, of Ragan-Malone Co., Atlanta, Ga.

James R. Little, of Doughtery-Little-Redwine Co., Atlanta, Ga.

W. H. Wyatt, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Charles J. Williamson, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt Co., Atlanta, Ga.

P. D. Yates, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt Co., Atlanta, Ga.

R. K. Rambo, of John Silvey & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

E. M. Roper, of John Silvey & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

W. A. Ward, of Ward-Truitt Co., Atlanta, Ga.

P. B. Hofmayer, of Hofmayer Dry Goods company, Albany, Ga.

Gershon Rothschild, of Rothschild & Co., Columbus, Ga.

E. E. Hall, of Covington, company, Jacksonville, Fla.

E. L. Bryant, of F. E. Calloway & Co., LaGrange, Ga.

J. Popper, of The Waxlebaum company, Macon, Ga.

J. Saul, of J. Saul & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

J. Lehman, of Floyd Lehman & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

J. D. Robinson, of A. M. Robinson company, Atlanta, Ga.

Doughterty - Little - Redwine company's salesmen all report good rains in their respective territories and state that it has improved business wonderfully.

The traveling man's motto, "Bear ye one another's burdens." This he has done, is doing and will continue to do. His heart is free from malice. He has charity for all. God bless the traveling man.

There are times when the kindness of a human is worth more to your salvation than all the sermons that could be preached by the best preachers.

The mind that is liberal, willing to give, as well as take, accepts man as God made him—a mind that is broad and open—reflects within itself a nature that is sympathetic and cosmopolitan.

We love to meet the man with bright eyes, cheerful countenance, good teeth, fresh breath, the glow of health, patience and kindness. It marks the hopeful attitude of one who is on good terms with himself, the world and his Creator.

Did you ever try to close a deal with a big fellow—a modern wonder—and have him look you over, straighten himself up, toy with his watch chain, cough, sneeze and indulge in a lot of vacuity, meanness and verbosity, and then ask you in the final act what it was you said? How did you feel?

All difficulties known as trials and obstacles make us efficient and prepare us for a better life

We certainly believe in the religion of humanity, righteous humanity. God loving humanity, man loving humanity. Any man or woman who makes this world a better place to live in loves humanity. We are not all saved from ignorance, superstition and incompetence.

Our heart bleeds when we see the struggling mass of human beings, the inequality of opportunity is so great. We would bow the ear and listen to the supplications of the shackled minds and limbs of all kinds of workers and open wide to them the gates of opportunity and say special privilege is no more, favoritism is a thing of the past, all men with merit stand on equal footing, not in name, but in reality. In truth, have what others have and enjoy what others enjoy, not by foul means, trickery or confiscation, but by divine laws for that which is right in the sight of man and in the sight of God.

DR. DU BOSE TO GIVE SERMON TO GIDEONS

Special Sermon at First Methodist Church Tonight—All Gideons and Friends Invited.

Dr. H. M. DuBost will preach a special sermon to the Gideons and their families tonight at the First Methodist church. There will also be short talks by the Gideons and these men will tell what their splendid body of working Christians is doing. This is certain to be an interesting occasion and all Gideons and their friends are earnestly urged to be present.

The regular meeting of the Gideons will be held this afternoon at 3 p. m. in the convention hall at the Piedmont hotel. This is a specially important meeting as the delegates to the Toronto convention will be elected. The convention will be held in July. Let everybody be present this afternoon and see that we send a large and enthusiastic delegation to Toronto this year.

NOTES OF THE C. S. P. CITY SALESMEN

The attendance was better at the meeting yesterday morning. Reports from the various standing committees show that our work along the different lines we are interested in is progressing nicely. The finance committee made a very favorable report in regard to the summer excursion. This is our most important work for the next thirty days, and we are looking to every member of the association to do his utmost in helping us to promote this enterprise.

O. T. Camp, president of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, was present, and made a nice talk, assuring our association of the co-operation of his association in everything we are undertaking. This should be gratifying to every salesman as well as the retail grocers to know that such harmony exists. It is an assurance that all is well.

W. T. Daniel and Paul S. Pause, of the Bull Sluice life saving corps, were present at the meeting and were received with great applause. These brave boys are the pride of the City Salesmen's association.

We were also glad to see C. C. Ray and Harry Fuller present.

Byron Fowler mut bae walking with his new baby at night and sleeping in the daytime. He has missed most of the meetings since the arrival of the boy.

Gentlemen, we ask again your regular attendance at 10 o'clock Saturday mornings. Let's bring the attendance up to 100 every meeting. When we reach this mark our influence will be almost unlimited and the good we can do beyond measure.

Chamber of Commerce Will Take Trip to Chattanooga

Object Is to Inspect Manufacturers' Permanent Exhibit in That City With View to Establishing One Here.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is moving forward in the matter of establishing a permanent manufacturers' exhibit here in a manner which promises early results which will clearly prove the wisdom of the move.

They have organized a committee for the purpose of establishing this exhibit and it is headed by Brooks Morgan, vice president of the association.

For the purpose of showing the manufacturers of Atlanta what another city has done with such an exhibit, the chamber will conduct, through Mr. Morgan's committee, a special excursion to Chattanooga on Thursday, May 29.

The manufacturers' exhibit at Chattanooga has been such a success that the space has been doubled since its inauguration and everyone who sees it and watches its operation is enthusiastic about it.

That such an exhibit would prove of inestimable value to Atlanta is a question which no one can possibly gainsay. With the manufacturing industries which are established here it would undoubtedly be made into the greatest exhibit of its kind in the southern states. That the exhibit will be established as soon as the material obstacles can be overcome is also a certain fact, for the chamber of commerce has undertaken to establish it, and what they undertake they never fall down on.

DEERE PLOW CO. TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Implement Co. Sends Individual Invitations to Hardware Men Who Meet Here This Week.

The John Deere Plow company, of Atlanta, has sent our individual invitations to the hardware men of the state who will be in the city next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday attending the convention of the Georgia Retail Hardware association.

The company invites every hardware man to make his headquarters with them while in the city, and has made arrangements to see to their entertainment, which assure all the visitors that they will find plenty of interest and a royal welcome from this concern. There will be from 600 to 700 dealers at this convention and full arrangements have been made to take good care of them.

The company has called all their Georgia salesmen in for this week to meet these dealers and see to their wants. The salesmen are J. L. Riddick, K. D. Brobston, E. F. Geiselmann, J. M. Jeffries, A. P. Stevens and William Shoemaker. There will be besides L. W. Laudick, special representative of the Syracuse Plow company, and Lee Madden, special representative of the Stover Manufacturing company, of Salem, Ohio. These gentlemen will assist in the work of entertaining and are well suited to make everyone at home.

This is the first time the Retail Hardware association has met here since the company of the John Deere Plow company to Atlanta, and they are anxious to have all the dealers call to see them at their offices and showrooms on South Forsyth street. W. H. Stentz, secretary and manager of the company, and T. K. Johnson, sales manager, are superintending the entertainment features in person.

The company is going to give a souvenir to every visitor which is wonderfully well worth having, and is far superior to the usual run of souvenirs given by firms on occasions of this sort.

E. E. Shyer, with the Consolidated Paper company, came in yesterday after his usual good week's business. S. P. Smith also came in, reporting good trade.

J. R. England, with the E. L. Adams company, missed his regular Thursday trip this week on account of the illness of his wife.

Frank Corry, in southwest Georgia for the Ragan-Malone company, came in this week after a fairly long trip and is now busy getting his full fall line ready.

T. B. Lewis, with the Capital City Tobacco company rested on his laurels in Columbus this week, attending the meeting of the Grand Council of the U. C. T. there. Mr. Lewis is a past grand counselor.

WILL GIVE SMOKER ON TUESDAY NIGHT

Retail Grocers to Hold Smoker and Rally in Taft Hall on Behalf of Holiday Move.

The Retail Grocers and Butchers' association will give a smoker in Taft hall next Tuesday night at 8 p. m., which will be attended by all the grocers and their clerks, as well as many of the jobbers and wholesalers of the city. The business to be discussed is the arrangements for the coming weekly half-day closing, which will go into effect on June 4 for the first time. Practically all the retail grocers of the city have agreed to close their places of business for the summer months on Wednesday afternoons, and this smoker is largely in the way of a celebration and last arrangement before this starts.

Details for the monster parade, which will take place on Wednesday, June 4, will also be made. This will be one of the biggest parades ever seen in the city and will form a celebration which will attract attention from all in the city.

News of the U. C. T. Atlanta Council 18

Brother A. L. Brooks, a well-known member of Atlanta 18, was elected grand treasurer at Columbus last week. Brother Brooks will make a good one and we are glad to hear of the election.

There was a big meeting last night. Several oft he grand officers were present and a number of candidates were initiated.

Atlanta 18 is pleased to note that Brother C. K. Ayer was re-elected grand executive committeeman at Columbus.

Brother C. D. Montgomery will sail early in June for Scotland, where he will spend several months.

Secretary Lunceford reports that he has received several nice letters from the boys who have received their new pins.

W. I. Phillips, representing the Atlanta Casket company in North and South Carolina, was in the city during the week and is now on his regular trip through South Carolina.

Studebaker Wins As Usual

It was an old familiar sight to see old Bullet sweep across the tape a winner.

Some people were surprised--others who were driving her sisters, however, were not.

Last year Old Bullet won on a tour around the world--and could not be here to defend her title as champion of Stewart Avenue Hill--but her younger sister was here--and incidentally set a new record for the class she was in.

The Studebaker "20" Wins

It was no surprise--only to the prejudiced--but the sentiment of the crowd was that old mean saying:

"I Told You So"

The newspaper boys flocked around after the race and asked if we were going to say anything in the paper about winning "as you have quit advertising"--this remark made us write these few lines to our many friends and customers.

We Have Not Quit Advertising

But we are so far oversold, the demand for Studebaker is so far in excess of the supply, that we have simply been trying to catch up--and want to assure our friends

That They Are All Winners and It Will Pay To Wait

CORBETT TALKS OF LIGHTWEIGHTS

Champion Ritchie May Defend His Title July 4—All of Them Are Dodging Jack Britton.

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.
(Former Heavyweight Champion of the World. Written Exclusively for The Constitution.)

New York, May 24.—(Special.)—Willie Ritchie has accepted the offer of a San Francisco promoter to box Joe Rivers on the Fourth of July. That is the date set by the champion for his return to the ring, and it looks as though he intends to make good his promise. It is extremely doubtful, however, if Rivers will be his opponent, as Tom McCarty, the Los Angeles flesh impresario, has an option on the Mexican lightweight's services. McCarey says Joe will box at his club or not at all.

If the champion holds out for Frisco it will be up to the promoters to get another boy. Which should not be very difficult, as there are several lightweights who would jump at the chance to get a crack at the title holder—also the short end of the purse.

Tommy Murphy, who recently defeated Ad Wolgast and Leach Cross, the New York lightweight, are both after the match. Then there is also Jack Britton. Nothing would suit that clever boxer better than another whack at Billy Nolan's prize winner. Britton would give Ritchie a harder battle than Cross or Murphy, or Rivers for that matter.

Pass Up Britton.

I hardly think, though, that Billy Nolan will consent to a match with Britton under any conditions. Only a short time ago he said that Jack would not be considered at the present time, for the reason that Willie had beaten the Chicagoan in a short bout over a year ago. Also that the match would not prove attractive from a box office standpoint. In taking this stand Nolan creates the impression that Ritchie fears the result of a test of skill with the speedy Britton.

It is a matter of record that Ritchie once earned a decision over Britton. But there are quite a few people who believe he would have a hard job repeating. The verdict was given at the end of a four-round bout—hardly long enough for either to show superiority. And another point to be considered is that Britton was far from his best form at the time. During the past year Jack has compiled a long string of victories, in many instances giving a great deal of weight, his only reverse coming at the hands of the daddy of them all, Packy McFarland.

Ritchie, by the way, is not the only lightweight who does not hanker for Britton's game. Joe Rivers was parading around town complaining that none of the legitimate lightweights had the temerity to box him, but when a match with Britton was suggested, and the latter agreed to make 133 ringside, he beat it out of town with alacrity.

It is equally true that Freddy Welsh side-stepped the opportunity to box Britton. Also Tommy Murphy, who frankly admitted he didn't want any of Jack's game over the ten-round distances. As a result of the extreme coyness on the part of his rivals in the light-weight division Britton is frequently forced to go out of his class to secure matches. As a matter of fact, he boxes more welters than boys of his own weight, and it must be said to his credit that he generally manages to more than hold his own against his heavier opponents.

Robideau a Comer.

Sammy Robideau, the Philadelphia light-weight, treated New York sports to a genuine surprise by the masterly manner in which he recently outboxed and demonstrated superiority over Johnny Lore, a local boy whose rapid rise in the division had been of the sensational order. Robideau came here a stranger, although he has been boxing around Quaker City clubs for the past year, and was regarded as a soft thing for the sturdy Lore. His exhibition of skill was a revelation, and Sammy jumped into immediate favor with the "regulars," who are quick to recognize the real thing in the boxing line.

Robideau created a sensation on a par with that sprung by Mike Gibbons on the occasion of his first visit to this city. He not only made it plain that he is too good for Johnny, but that he would have a splendid chance with any of the top-notchers who hang their hats in this vicinity. During the bout with Lore he pulled a lot of stuff that old-timers had forgotten, so seldom is it used in bouts nowadays.

Robideau probably lacks the experience to compete with such finished products of the Queensbury art as Britton or Freddy Welsh, but he looks good enough right now to hold up his end against any of the other members of the local light-weight brigade. I would like to see him tried out with Young Shugrue, the Jersey boxer, who is about the best trial horse around here at the present time. A bout with Shugrue should determine his standing in light-weight society.

Anderson Strong.

Another light-weight who will have to be reckoned with in the future is "Bud" Anderson, the hard-hitting youngster from Vancouver, Wash., U. S. A. "Bud" looks like the real goods. Only a month or so ago he stopped the tough "K. O." Brown, and this past week followed it up with a victory over the clever Joe Mandot in twelve rounds.

When Anderson disposed of Brown we figured him a sturdy youngster, about the same caliber as his victim, but accounts of the Mandot battle make him look one of the most promising of the aspirants for the championship. He not only outslugged Mandot, which was to be expected, but beat Joe at his own game—cleverness. And the southern boy was regarded one of the shiftiest in the division.

It has been arranged, so I am told, that Joe Rovers and the winner of the Anderson-Mandot contest are to box at Tom McCarey's club on the Fourth of July in the event of the proposed Ritchie-Rivers match slipping up. It remains to been now that Anderson has proved his class whether Rivers will be as keen for a match with the Vancouver prodigy. "Bud's" improvement may make the Mexican change his mind, and accept the offer from San Francisco to box the champion.

Gibbons' Case.

Last week Mike Gibbons made his first bow to a New York crowd since boxing McGoorty last fall. His opponent was Jack McCarron, better known as Philadelphia Jack O'Brien's $50,000 beauty. When Gibbons had finished the performance Mr. McCarron resembled nothing so much as the well-known 20 cents of song and story.

While a majority of local critics are of the opinion that Gibbons redeemed himself by his clever exhibition against McCarron there are a few skeptics who laugh at his championship pretentions and predict dire disaster for the St. Paul boxer in a bout over the regulation distance with either Klaus or McGoorty. They point to Mike's failure to stop McCarron as evidence of his lack of the punching power that is a championship essential. But if I remember correctly, no one has yet succeeded in knocking McCarron out, and he has met a number of the hardest hitters in the ranks of the middles.

My opinion is that Gibbons' wonderful speed and cleverness would enable him to grant seven or eight pounds to the average middleweight and romp home a winner. Whether he could concede the weight to Klaus or McGoorty is another story. Gibbons' first fighting weight is in the neighborhood of 151 ringside, but I doubt very much if McGoorty could make 158 and be in condition to give a good account of himself. If that is the case it eliminates him from the race for the title. On the other hand I understand Klaus can make 158 without trouble. In a limited round exhibition the chances would favor Gibbons' success, but in a longer bout Klaus' superior weight and hitting ability might bring him victory.

Hydro-Aeroplane Flight.

St. Louis, May 24.—Tony Jannus made a hydro-aeroplane flight from Paducah, Kentucky, to St. Louis today, reaching this city at 4:56 p. m. He had only half a pint of gasoline left, and was compelled to land at the foot of Cherokee street, nearly three miles south of his intended landing place, the foot of Market street.

Kelly-Springfield Automobile Tires

A perfect machine is better than an imperfect workman. A perfect workman is better than any machine. The men who make Kelly-Springfield Tires have seventeen years of tire making experience behind them, and that is why it is important for you to know that every Kelly-Springfield Tire is made by hand.

"The name did not make the tire good—the tire made the name good."

DELIGHTFUL LAWN FETE GIVEN AT FORT M'PHERSON

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Burnett, of the Seventeenth infantry, Fort McPherson, entertained delightfully last evening in compliment to their friends at Fort McPherson and a number who went out from Atlanta.

The Officers' club was the scene of the assembly. Mr. and Mrs. Burnett receiving in alfresco fashion on the lawn while refreshments were served on the porch and later dancing enjoyed within.

There were red, white and blue lanterns in the trees and hung between the columns on the porches, while flags were used inside as a decoration and many beautiful flowers. Between the selections of the post band, an orchestra from Darktown presented an interesting program of songs and dances, which preceded a delicious supper served at 11 o'clock.

The occasion of the lawn fete marked the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Burnett, and during supper she was presented with a beautiful silver loving cup by the Bachelor's Club of Fort McPherson.

A feature of the table decoration was a birthday cake in design a pyramid, on the summit of which was a tiny May pole. The little ribbons hanging from it fell shower-like on the plateau of spring flowers at the base of the cake.

The charming hostess wore a white chiffon gown, embroidered in roses and trimmed in lace, her white chiffon hat being trimmed in a paradise plume. The toilets of the ladies were attractive in their misadventure fashion, and the gathering was one of the most delightful of the summer season.

Pretty Graduates From Wesleyan College

Emory College, Oxford, Ga.—May 24 (Special.)—Monday there will be graduated from Wesleyan college, Macon, four young ladies from Oxford, who have been in school together for six years. Three years they were in Palmer institute, Oxford, and in 1910 entered the sophomore class at Wesleyan. An interesting feature is that the class graduated from Palmer in 1910 consisted of these four young ladies and one young man, Ben Hicks Woodruff, of Porterdale. Mr. Woodruff is now a member of the junior class in Georgia Tech. In these days, when so small a per cent of high school graduates enter colleges, it is worth while to note that Palmer institute shows up 100 per cent. Miss Virginia Peed is the fifth young lady of Oxford, and of Palmer, to be graduated this year. She went from Palmer a year earlier than her classmates, entering the freshman class, and is now in the graduating class of Randolph-Macon Woman's college, Lynchburg, Va.

S. P. Richards Co. Salesmen at Work on Samples

Reading from left to right: James R. Thornton, S. L. Sloan, John H. Huff, O. C. Long, J. L. Sloan, J. M. Bennett, H. M. Kopplin and Geo. S. Lunceford. The salesmen of the S. P. Richards Co. are at present hard at work getting up their fall samples prior to starting out on the fall campaign. The picking, sorting and arranging of samples in a business such as this is no small job, and the hundreds of items which have to be listed render it a work which calls all hands for several weeks. The scene shown above is in a sample room of the company's, in their building on Central avenue, and it is a scene that can be seen any time of the day by the visitor. The salesmen, however, are enthusiastic about their line, and state they will surely bring in orders this fall which will amply repay them for the time and trouble of this work now. Also, the fact should be remembered that a traveling salesman is used to hard work, anyway.

SOME DOINGS OF THE BOYS IN ATHENS

By Sam Woods.

Athens, Ga., May 24.—J. W. Hudson, salesman for the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. of Atlanta, was in Athens yesterday.

D. L. Barnwell, salesman for the Remington Typewriter company, and Pat Pattillo, professional mechanic, were here yesterday demonstrating a typewriter run by electricity in the electric shop window.

D. W. Billingsley, supply department salesman for the General Electric company, was here Thursday and part of Friday.

C. H. Grant, Georgia Road salesman for the Webb & Crawford company, came in Thursday.

W. E. Love, salesman for the Studebaker company, has been here for the past week.

H. C. Anderson, local manager for the Bludwine Bottling company, is just back from a trip west.

Will Henry, who covers Georgia for the Beck & Gregg Hardware company, was in Athens Thursday.

S. R. Etles, salesman for the International Harvester company, has traveled out of Athens the past week.

H. D. Barber has been in Athens several days boosting Arbuckles' coffee.

G. R. Fellows, salesman for the Kemper Thomas company, is here meeting the trade with the company's assistant sales manager, L. C. Glover.

There were quite a number of Classic City council, 315 members, who attended the Georgia-Florida grand council meet held in Columbus, Ga., this week. The Athens council was represented by able delegates in the persons of B. C. Jones, John Perdue, Pen Thornton and H. B. Sparks. Others who attended were Ed Weir, grand junior counselor; R. H. Bickerstaff and C. Y. Weir.

Randolph Epps, who covers South Carolina, was back home for a few days the past week.

G. W. Steffner, salesman for R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, was here Thursday.

Bill Cook reported good business the past week for the E. S. Sporting Goods house.

J. E. and J. A. Cook, salesmen for the Jenkins-Davison Hardware company, of Atlanta, are here spending their vacations.

C. D. Flanigan, second vice president of the Athens Railway company, leaves the latter part of May for Chicago to attend the National Electric Light convention, and will be accompanied by A. H. Sikes, sales manager.

Several salesmen representing drug houses were here Thursday. They were: W. R. Bell, of Atlanta, representing the Eli Lilly company; Charles Terrell, with John B. Daniels, of Atlanta, and J. P. Sullivan, of the Mulford Drug company, of Philadelphia.

Will Arnett, a student of the University of Georgia, and last year member of the Varsity football team, died Sunday night last at St. Mary's hospital from typhoid fever. Mr. Arnett was well liked by the traveling men, to whom he was well known through his position of night clerk at the Sanges hotel, which he held in connection with his college work.

Guy W. Jacobs, salesman for the York Manufacturing company, of York, Pa., sold the ice-making machinery to the Athens Ice company, a new concern here.

Frank Lamkin, an old Athens boy, is now covering North Casolina for the Atlanta Paper company, and makes Charlotte his headquarters.

The local Gideons held a highly enthused meeting last Sunday at the Hotel Georgian and were addressed by Charlie Butler, B. C. Jones, salesman for the McCord-Stewart company, who makes his headquarters in Athens, deserves much praise for his work in helping to organize the Gideons in the Classic City.

K. D. Brobston, salesman for the John Deere Plow company, reports that this month has been his best for the year.

Practically all the local hardware salesmen will attend the Georgia Retail Hardware association convention to be held in Atlanta May 27-28-29.

Joe Jackson has just accepted a position with the Athens Ice company as city salesman.

Will Peek, salesman for the King Hardware company, came in Thursday.

D. J. Revell, salesman for the Jacob Ivold Packing company, came in Friday.

Nat Glogowski, local city salesman for the Pinkusshorn Cigar company, reports business good for the past week.

R. H. Bullock, salesman for Head & McMahon, of Athens, reports good business on overalls and boy scout suits.

J. D. Burton, salesman for the Deep Rock Ginger Ale company, came in Thursday.

CHILE CON CARNE

W. B. Carlton, of the Capital City Tobacco company, returned from south Georgia last Wednesday, after a successful trip. He stayed in Atlanta for one day and then took another brief trip on the Central road, getting back into the city again on Saturday.

The Dixie Pickle and Preserving company shipped another carload of their goods to Athens last week. Things are booming around their place.

Both members of the Eichberg Heating company firm are out of town this week, closing contracts.

The S. P. Richards company report all their men out with fall lines, and the orders are coming in in a highly satisfactory manner.

He Frieslehen, with the Atlanta Paper company, was in this week and reports successful business. But that is a regular thing with Mr. Frieslehen.

Robert M. Green & Sons report a number of fountain sales closed this week. There is one in Jacksonville, one in Macon and two in Augusta.

The ins this week with Brown Perryman & Greene company are Al N. Greene, J. O. Chambers, J. F. Tate and C. D. Dickinson.

A. M. Robinson company are still busy on the work of fixing over their dry goods and notions departments, and are working hard to get in shape this week.

The Food Value of Bread.

Health and Longevity.)

No other foodstuff used by man is more satisfying than abread when taken with other articles of diet, and many of the latter gain thereby in nutritive value and power of assimilation, as, for instance, milk. By simply drying the slices of bread, thus making "toast," bread can be more readily digested. It is also more easily masticated, and for this reason somewhat stale bread is to be preferred to that freshly baked.

E. L. ADAMS AS SEEN BY THE CARTOONIST

Facts in Career of Prominent Wholesale Grocer Prove Interesting.

E. L. Adams is one of th leading figures in the wholesale grocery business in Atlanta. His name is known throughout the state of Georgia and surrounding territory as that of a splendid business man. But his reputation does not end here. For he is known wherever groceries go in this country as a leader in the business. He is a director of the National Wholesale Grocers' association and other bodies of national scope. He is prominent in many movements in Atlanta, amongst others being the newly elected president of the Atlanta Credit Men's association. But it was not always thus, and for the benefit of those who may be interested in learning how a man climbs in the business world, the following facts were gathered in a recent interview with Mr. Adams.

E. L. Adams as seen by Cartoonist Stanton.

He early showed his predilection for the grocery business. While yet a schoolboy he earned his first salary behind a grocer's counter with W. M. Taylor, a fancy grocer in Barnesville, Ga. The aforementioned salary reached the magnificent total of $10 a month and board. There was an interval of school after a few months of this job and then he went with another grocer, J. L. Kennedy, and for four years held down the positions of salesman and bookkeeper. The next move was to Jackson, Ga., where he spent eight years as secretary and treasurer of the Jackson mercantile company. Then came the move which has proven to have been such a wise one, and he moved to Atlanta.

Upon arriving in this city Mr. Adams went with the E. M. Yow company, and held the position of bookkeeper for the first year and then that of buyer for his second year.

The hero of this brief sketch knew something about the grocery business by this time, as the reader may surmise, and he put it to use by organizing the firm of Adams-Wright & Co. In 1907 Mr. Wright died, and on January 1, 1908, it became the Adams-Whitney company. Mr. Whitney retired two years later and the firm then assumed its present name of the E. L. Adams company.

Mr. Adams has built up a business which reflects his own business sagacity and enterprise, and he has placed his name in the history of Atlanta's growth in a way which can never be forgotten.

POPE HARTFORD CAPTURES HONORS

Second Annual Hill Climb Held on Stewart Avenue Hill Saturday Afternoon Proves a Great Success.

In the second annual hill climb of the Atlanta Automobile and Accessories association, held on the approximate 1-mile course of the Stewart avenue hill Saturday afternoon, the Pope-Hartford entries walked away with the honors, the "Betsy," owned by L. S. Crane, manager of the Atlanta Branch of the Pope Hartford company, making the distance in the fourth event in 50 4-5 seconds, which was 3-5 of a second better than her winning record of last year.

The Pope-Hartford entries won three out of the five events in which they were entered, and broke last year's record.

The Studebaker entries also made a good showing, winning in two out of three events.

Two-Mile Motorcycle Event.

Only two motorcycle events were pulled off, there being no entries in the third and fourth events, which were scheduled. A Pope won the first even for amateurs, and an Indian won the second event for professionals.

By 2 o'clock, the hour set for the meet, there were a thousand automobiles on the hill and the sides of the course were lined with spectators. The hill climb, however, was conspicuous by its lack of thrills. The only thing that approached excitement was when the "Betsy" leaped the tape in the fourth event, compelling L. S. Crane, her driver, to make the run again, this time making it in the 50 4-5 seconds which set the local record. Harry J. Glenn created a sensation when he made an exhibition run on a freak board-track motorcycle before the opening of the motorcycle events, breaking the tape at 48 seconds flat.

List of Events.

The following are the automobile events:

First Event—F. Lungdren, Studebaker, time 1:01 2-5. C. E. Stewart, Buick; Brown, Studebaker.

Second Event—Joe Lungdren, Studebaker, time 1:02 2-5. J. L. Alexander, on, Studebaker (failed to finish).

Third Event—W. J. Stodard, Lion, time 1:04 4-5. L. S. Crane, Pope-Hartford.

Fourth Event—L. S. Crane, Pope-Hartford, time 50 4-5 seconds. Jack Wall, Case.

No entries in fifth event.

Sixth Event (Free for All)—L. S. Crane, Pope-Hartford, time 51 4-5 seconds. Osburn, American; F. Lungdren, Studebaker; W. J. Stoddard, Lion; Hixon, Studebaker; Jack Wall, Case.

Seventh Event—Dr. Samuel Green, Marion, time 1:11 1-5. E. A. Holbrook, Pope-Hartford; Nichols, Buick; Joe Johnson, Stoddard-Dayton.

Eighth Event—E. A. Holbrook, Pope-Hartford, time 1:08. Dr. C. A. Constantine, Apperson.

Motorcycle Events.

First Event (Amateurs)—G. L. Singleton, Pope, time 57 4-5 seconds. E. A. Owen, Indian; L. S. Peek, Indian; F. A. Barr, Thor; Wylie, Excelsior.

Second Event (Professionals)—Ed L. Wilcox, Indian, time 54 4-5 seconds. Harry J. Glenn, Indian; O. R. Lancaster, Thor; F. A. Barr, Thor.

The following were the hill climb officials:

Technical Committee, Automobiles—Fred Steel, F. C. Skinner, A. R. Almond.

Technical Committee, Motorcycles—H. M. Gilbert, Dave Wylie, W. E. Chulenberger.

Starters—Mr. Pilson, L. S. Collier.

Referees, Automobiles—Joe Cothran; motorcycles, A. H. Coolidge.

Judges—Wylie West, C. L. Elyea, T. H. Smart, R. S. Abbott.

Clerk of Course—E. H. Elleby.

Timers and Umpires—D. T. Bussey, R. N. Reid, R. J. Sleer.

Gasoline Tester—Ed L. Wight, Jr.

The Hendersons of Indianapolis guarantee this year ahead car!

No two men are better known in the automobile field than the Hendersons of Indianapolis. For years, they have been recognized as leading authorities on automobile values.

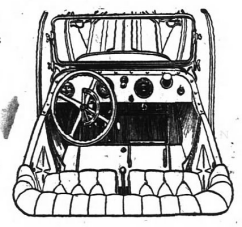
The Henderson De Luxe scores their latest and greatest triumph. And they give the Henderson the highest guarantee by linking it with their own name.

This new Henderson De Luxe is a 1914 car. Note the big important features. Wire wheels will soon be coming into general use—many 1914 cars will show them. You can get them on the Henderson now and at no extra cost.

The Henderson Cowl Dash—Cowl Gasoline Tank—Left Drive—Single Lever Center Control—Kerosene Carburetor—Electric Lights and Starter are practical features that will soon be adopted on the highest priced cars. Remember, you can get them all on the Henderson now.

Seat Control — HENDERSON — Cowl Dash

Turkish Upholstery—Ebony Finish Woodwork
Electric Horn
Clean Running Board
Imbedded Clock and Speedometer on Cowl Dash
Special Tailored Top
One Piece Ventilated Windshield



High Tension Magneto—Independent of Electric Starter
German Silver—Honeycomb Oversize Radiator combined with Thermo-Syphon Type of Cooling.
Famous Stutz Rear System, Including Transmission.

Depreciation! The thing that makes cars expensive. No one wants a car that's out of date and out of style. You wouldn't have brass trimmings on your car today. Nowadays nothing will do except electric starter and electric lights. Yet many purchasers are urged into buying right-hand drive cars when the same factory will eventually show new models with left drive and center control, cowl dash and tank and wire wheels, features you get on the Henderson now and at no extra cost.

Exactly one year ago today we first offered—left drive and center control with cowl dash. Isn't this convincing evidence that the Henderson really is the year ahead car?

Announcement Issue of the Henderson Accelerator Now Ready—Write for It.

Important Note to Dealers!

Just one year ago we made a similar announcement and we took the automobile trade by storm. The response was instantaneous, all without showing a car. The confidence in the Hendersons was manifest. Everyone knew a car they produced would take foremost rank. Now we are ready with the Henderson De Luxe—the "year ahead" car.

Our distributing houses are real institutions. They have Henderson cars. They have Henderson parts. They have completely equipped shops—not merely a service department.

Furthermore, they NOW have new De Luxe Henderson Cars. Our territory departments at our distributors are direct factory representatives. The dealer who secures territory now open can drive the Henderson De Luxe demonstrator home if near distributing house, otherwise prompt shipment from Indianapolis.

Write us for complete information regarding the Henderson "square deal" agency arrangement. When you come to Indianapolis for the 500-Mile Race, see the complete Henderson line of the 1914 series.

AND THE RENT will almost pay the balance. It was completed in April this year, now renting for $100 per month until September, 1914. We are authorized to accept as low as $125 per month. Located about 100 feet from West Peachtree, overlooking everything from its location to the Georgian hotel and from there to the Candler building. Each apartment has a separate furnace and all modern conveniences. Details can be had from Mr. Stafford.

NORTH SIDE BUNGALOW Between the Peachtrees

ARTISTIC and complete in every detail, we offer the cosiest little bungalow to be found anywhere at a price considerably less than it is worth. House contains three bedrooms, living room, dining-room, kitchen and bath. Furnace heated and hardwood floors. Price only $6,000. For further particulars see Mr. Chapman.

A BUNGALOW ON PONCE DE LEON AVENUE, a mansion on Washington street, vacant lots on Piedmont avenue, semi-central tract on West Peachtree near the junction, summer home near R[illegible]ee. In truth, an elaborate assortment of desirables in Atlanta real [illegible] that will appeal to conservative minds and cautious purses. See Colonel Cohen.

APARTMENT SITE

CLOSE IN on the north side we have a large corner lot that will make a splendid site for an apartment house. This is just off West Peachtree and close to Baker street. For price and terms see Mr. Maclagan.

IN BEAUTIFUL ANSLEY PARK

A MOST ELABORATE California bungalow at a conservative price and on easy—very easy—terms. Every modern convenience, including hot water heating plant, large, attractive rooms, hardwood floors, gas and electricity, servant's house and a large lot. Best of all, it's new, never occupied, and surrounded by charming homes of charming people. See Colonel Cohen.

ATTENTION, HOMESEEKERS!

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A HOME within a few hundred feet of a car line and twenty minutes' ride from the center of the city; IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A HOME on one of the prettiest elevations around Atlanta on a lot 80x400; IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A HOME with all conveniences, hardwood floors, sleeping porch and built of the best material; IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A HOME to cost less than $8,000 on reasonable terms—something that is a HOME in every sense of the word—confer with Mr. Maclagan.

WHITEHALL STREET CORNER

WE HAVE the cheapest corner on the street, and we believe it to be the best corner. Now that the regrading is assured, now is the time to buy. It has 72½ feet front, and business is already there, and it is paying something now. The best of terms can be had. This property will double in value in the near future. See Mr. Hamilton.

EAST ALEXANDER

BETWEEN THE PEACHTREES we can deliver the neatest little investment property to be found on the north side, at $300 a foot. See Mr. Chapman.

PRESIDENT OF STATE COLLEGE WRITES ON THE TRAVELING MEN

The following is part of a letter which Dr. Andrew N. Soule, president of the State college recently wrote to the traveling men of Athens. The letter was published in The Athens Banner, and attracted wide attention:

"It takes a man of fine physique to stand the strain of the road for any considerable length of time and if he does not possess affability, integrity and character he cannot last long on the job. He has to meet all classes and conditions of people under the greatest possible variety of environmental conditions.

"He is the pioneer in introducing new and useful inventions and carrying the truth about a thousand important facts out to the dealers from whence it percolates after awhile to the consumer. Without the traveling men society would lack one of its charms, progress would be set back fifty years and inventive genius would languish for need of a consuming market for the product of its brain.

"I am interested in the traveling man for all these reasons and because of his liberal attitude towards men in other walks and professions of life. Because of his sincere effort to promote the welfare of his fellow men and because of the keen enthusiasm with which he takes up a new proposition.

"As a matter of fact, many of the best missionaries which the College of Agriculture possesses today are traveling men who have come sufficiently in contact with its work to appreciate its constructive ability for the farm, and thus aiding in giving permanency to our industries and progressiveness to our business institutions."

Invitations are out for the wedding of a very popular Atlanta salesman. This is Oliver Harris Johnson (better known as "Red" Johnson), who travels for the Parlan Paint company. The event is to take place on June 12th in Newberry, S. C., the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Keirl Glider, and the young lady's name is Elizabeth Glider.

E. A. Hutto, who makes his headquarters in Spartanburg, S. C., and sells Premium Brand shoes for the Gramling-Spalding company, is out on the job once more after two or three weeks' enforced idleness through sickness.

The Warren Manufacturing company report their men all in with the exception of C. P. Webb, in Alabama, who is so busy that he can't make his visit for a few days yet. The rest of the boys are busy getting out their fall samples and expect to get out with them about June 1st.

Ike Hirshberg, of the Hirshberg company, is back, after a very pleasant time for the past few weeks in New York and Atlantic City. Mr. Hirshberg looks as if the trip had done him much good.

A HALF-HOLIDAY FOR RETAILERS

Retail Grocers and Butchers Meeting With Much Encouragement in Their Campaign.

The move on foot by the Retail Grocers and Butchers' Association to secure a half holiday for all engaged in these businesses during the summer months is meeting with much encouragement as it deserves. That these men should be practically the only class who have to forego their weekly half-day off from work is a hardship which the trying character of their employment renders particularly hard.

The idea is to get all proprietors of retail stores of this description to close their places of business on Wednesday afternoons during the three summer months and judging by the number of signatures they have secured it will be practically unanimous when the first Sunday (next Sunday) is June arrives.

The first Wednesday will be celebrated by a big parade and the following announcement has been sent out by the committee who have this in charge.

Details' of Parade

On Wednesday, June 4, the largest parade that has ever gone through the streets of Atlanta will be pulled off by the jobbers, the commission merchants, the meat packers, all of the retail grocers and market men. This parade will be over 2 miles in length.

The grand marshals of the day will be the Hon. Harry L. Schlesinger and the Hon. Nym McCulloch, with their assistants. This parade will form at 1:30 at the state capitol, Mitchell street side, will march down Mitchell street to Whitehall, out Whitehall and Peachtree streets to North avenue, down North avenue to West Peachtree, back up West Peachtree to Auchtree and will disperse at Five Points.

A little over a year ago Mr. Harry L. Schlesinger entertained eight prominent retail merchants at the Piedmont hotel at luncheon. At that time this mammoth scheme was launched, and since that time, the merchants have been working quietly and steadily. They have now secured the signatures of over 300 of the retail merchants for closing, and have secured through the city salesmen of the jobbers, the verbal consent of many more. This practically means that every retail grocery store, market and provision store will be closed at noon on Wednesdays during the months of June, July and August. Through the indefatigable efforts of Mr. O. T. Camp, the president of the Retail Grocers' association, this movement is now an absolute certainty.

In the size of the movement, it is probably the largest single undertaking ever inaugurated in this city. There will be over 10,000 merchants and their salespeople and their families directly interested in this parade. The whole city of Atlanta will be interested in this parade as they will have to readjust their buying on Wednesdays to provide for this movement.

From an economic standpoint, this parade will be the biggest thing inaugurated on account of the number of people to whom it gives a half holiday, which they have never enjoyed in the past.

After the parade the merchants will be entertained at various other amusements gotten up for their special benefit by the entertainment committee.

Many Signed Agreement.

The following is the agreement which has been circulated among the retailers of the city. Practically everyone called upon has willingly signed it and if any names have been overlooked it is entirely inadvertent:

"Whereas, it is now the recognized custom for employers to give their employees a half holiday each week during the hot weather when business is quietest, and

"Whereas, it is impossible for the retail merchant to close on Saturdays, and

"Whereas, Wednesday is our most convenient day;

"Therefore we, the undersigned merchants of Atlanta and vicinity, agree to close our stores Wednesday at noon until Thursday morning during the months of June, July and August, 1913: L. W. In the Manager's Office

"And After the Last Letter Was Signed They Talked Together of Many Things."

The manager had just closed his desk for the day when the oldest traveler camein from the stock rooms and, rubbing his hands together, said with a grin:

"Well, that was one of the best weeks I've had for ages."

"How much did you sell, Jim?"

"Oh, I didn't sell quite as much as last week, but I mean that I enjoyed the week better than usual."

"What happened?" asked the Credit Man.

"Well, in the first place, I have been registering 'Atlanta, 1914,' all week, and I really believe I have done something to help bring the Shriners here next year. Just lots of people have noticed it and questioned me about the significance of the figures. Anyway, if the Shriners should happen not to come, the people in my territory will have seen that we salesmen work for the whole of Atlanta as well as our own firms and bank accounts. Secondly, I saw in The Constitution Firing Line last Sunday that we are to have the merchants' week here in August. That was such good news that I have been telling it to my customers all week and so many of them have promised to be here then that I am looking forward to a regular reunion of my best friends."

"Are your customers your best friends?" It was the Young Salesman who asked the question.

"Sure they are. I am with them most and they are a dandy bunch of fellows."

"Are they a dandy bunch of fellows because you are with them or just because they actually are?"

"Wel, for both reasons. Let me tell you something. It doesn't matter much what set of people you are thrown with, you can always find out things about them that will make you like them if you look for them. Practically everybody has quite a few likeable features in their make-up and the man who wants to have good friends must look for the making of them in himself and not in the people he meets. I know some people who would be interested and make friends with anybody at all. And bring out the best in everybody, too."

"But wouldn't you like to have the privilege of picking your friends?" asked the Bookkeeper.

"I don't Know. Of course I do pick my friends to a certain extent, but I am rather inclined to think it is better for me to have to find the likeable points in the people I am thrown with than to go out and try and pick friends from the world at large."

"Did you always force yourself to find your friends amongst your business associates?" asked the Young Salesman.

"No, I didn't. When I was a young fellow I used to mix with the men I met in business all day and then at night I would go out and meet the fellows that I thought were 'my kind.' But I found that I could do better business with a man if he felt that I was 'his kind.' I'll confess that I started this business friendship idea for business reasons, but nowsdays I know that the friendship reasons are the strongest. You see the people I meet in my work are the people I know best in the daytime and consequently I have a great big start along the road to their friendship which I haven't got with the people I only meet socially.

"I guess what you mean, Jim," said the President, who had been a silent listener to the foregoing, "is that friendship is largely a matter of knowing people and that it is generally the rule that the more you know the average man the better you like him."

"That's it. And I might as well spend my friendly efforts on the man of whom I already know something in a business way than on the man of whom I know nothing at all."

"So you expect a good time in August when all these merchants come into the city?" said the Manager.

"You bet I do. I'm going to be right here that week and I'm going to meet every one of my customers who come into the city and I'm going to introduce them all to my friends in the house here, and I tell you I'll be proud to introduce them, too. My customers are a dandy lot of boys and you are sure to like them. I want you to know them all and see if I'm not telling you the truth."

The President smiled across at the Manager.

"I guess I do know most of them, and like them, too. But you must remember that I haven't had the opportunities to know them like you have. But I know you are right in your general contention. The better we know people the better we will like them. What this old world needs is not so much Hague peace conferences, but that the people who live in it shall 'get better acquainted.'"

"Good bye. I'm going home to get better acquainted with my family." And the Manager broke up the meeting.

Amongst the visitors with the Lamar & Rankin Drug company this week were J. M. Wood, of the Wood Drug company, Elberton, Ga.; W. C. Pope, of the W. O. Pope company, Vills Rica, Ga.; M. T. Marchman, of the Marchman Drug company, Dallas, Ga., and Dr. Williams, of the Williams Drug company, Woodbury, Ga.

A LEADING MERCHANT OF BULLOCHVILLE, GA.

Some Facts About a Progressive Georgia Merchant Who Visits the Atlanta Market.

It is always interesting to hear of a man who has won considerable success who started life with no more than the ordinary equipment of the average young man in Georgia. Such stories encourage the fellows who are struggling today and teach them that they cannot be handicapped in the fight, but that their success lies within themselves.

P. S. Talbot, of Bullochville, Ga., is a leading merchant of that town, and he is a man who owes his success solely to his native ability and strongly developed "stick-at-it" qualities. Mr. Talbot was reared on a farm in Talbot county, and on reaching his majority he accepted a position with the firm of Bulloch county, and on reaching his majority he accepted a position with the firm of Bulloch, Busey & Co. This was in the fall of 1883, and the position which Mr. Talbot filled here was that of clerk.

He remained with this firm for five years, during which time they removed from Stinson to the then new town of Bullochville. This was in 1886. In 1889 Mr. Talbot embarked in business in Bullochville for himself. His first bill of goods was bought in Atlanta from the firm of Inman, Smith & Co. He has continued to buy goods from the wholesale houses of Atlanta ever since, and says he will continue to do so as long as he remains in business. He is a large buyer of dry goods and notions, and among other firms who are glad to have his name on their books is that of the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company.

It is understood on good authority that Mr. Talbot will be a candidate for the legislature this fall from his county. He is well experienced in the affairs of his county, and will undoubtedly represent their interests on sound business principles.

MANY NEW FOUNTAINS.

Soda Fountain Manufacturer Reports Many New Ones in City.

R. L. Shipp, southern sales manager for Robert M. Green & Sons, the firm which so many of the splendid marble soda fountains which supply the necessary liquid refreshment to the thirsty business man and the tired shopper, was talking the other day on the way in which their business was growing.

"It is astonishing to the layman when he hears the number of new fountains which we place in one territory in a month," said Mr. Shipp.

"A soda fountain is a thing which wears for a long time, nevertheless there is a constant demand for new ones. New models are brought out and take the place of the older styles and then there are always plenty of new drink stands being opened. In the past few days we have placed a number of stands right around the vicinity of Atlanta. There was that dandy $5,000 stand we put in the new 'Palace of Sweets' on the corner of Broad and Alabama streets. There have been several others in the city. Then there is a $2,500 fountain we have just placed in Marietta. Dr. J. P. Bowdoin, of the Bowdoin Drug Co., of Adairsville, was in the city on Wednsday and we sold him another good count. Then I have just returned from Valdosta, where I spent a few days and closed a deal with Proctor Bros., for another fount. This firm, by the way, is running an ice cream parlor that is a wonder for a place the size of Valdosta. I'll pretty nearly guarantee that there isn't another parlor of this kind which is as attractive and well fitted out in a town of the size, anywhere in this southern territory. They deserve a lot of credit for their progressiveness.

"Yes, there is always plenty of work to keep us busy, and the growth of this business is wonderful. There seems to be no end to it and every month sees us a little ahead of the corresponding one for the previous year."

Amongst the ins this week with the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company are J. S. Cheek of D. L. Lassiter. They both feel good as a result of the good business they have been having.

Two Things

There are two things of vital importance to the retailer of shoes that the present condition of the leather market and the tendency toward radical changes in style make it necessary that he should be thoroughly conversant with.

All America

Recognizing the distinct disadvantage under which the average shoe retailer is forced to do business, Rice & Hutchins have made an exhaustive study of the conditions and have worked out in the All America Shoe a proposition that will interest every retailer from every point of view.

Do not fail to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

A post card advising us of your desire to learn what this opportunity embraces for you will be promptly responded to by a visit from a salesman competent to enlighten you.

Educator Shoes

We cannot too strongly impress upon you the unique merchandising proposition offered to one who sells Educator Shoes.

Remember that Educator Shoes are the one staple in the retail shoe business. No change in lasts --no change in style--no change in price.

Our salesman can tell you more than this space will permit us to.

Southern Golf Championship At Montgomery Next Week Will Show Classy Entry List

All preparation has been made for the twelfth annual tournament of the Southern Golf association, which will be conducted over the links of the Montgomery Country club, June 3 to 7.

The official program of the tournament, as announced by the board of directors of the Southern Golf association, has been received, and the calendar of events will doubtless prove the most interesting that have ever been held in the south.

The tournament will open on Tuesday, June 3, on which day the qualifying round will be played. In the qualifying round the sixty-four players returning the lowest scores will qualify in the championship division. The thirty-two players returning the next lowest scores will qualify in the second division.

From the championship division will be formed the championship, the second, the third and fourth flights, of sixteen players each. From the second division will be formed the fifth and sixth flights, with sixteen players each.

In the team match which will be played on Tuesday, each team must be composed of four players from the same club, who must be named to the tournament committee before starting. The scores returned by the players in the qualifying round will be counted in this event.

Program of Events.

Play for the various trophies will begin on Wednesday. In the morning the championship divion, composed of sixty-four players, will play an 18-hole match. In the afternoon the championship flight, with thirty-two players, will play the first round.

The defeated sixteen in the championship flight will constitute the second flight Thursday, the defeated sixteen in the third flight will constitute the fourth flight Thursday, and the defeated sixteen in second division fifth flight will constitute the sixth flight Thursday.

The calendar of events for the remaining days is as follows:

Thursday Forenoon.

Championship flight (16 players), third round.
Second flight (16 players), first round.
Third flight (16 players), second round.
Fourth flight (16 players), first round.
Fifth flight (16 players), first round.
Sixth flight (16 players), first round.

Afternoon.

Championship flight (8 players), fourth round.
Second flight (8 players), second round.
Third flight (8 players), third round.
Fourth flight (8 players), second round.
Fifth flight (8 players), third round.
Sixth flight (8 players), second round.

Friday, June 6, Forenoon and Afternoon.

Championship flight, semi-finals, 36 holes.
Second flight, semi-finals, 36 holes.
Third flight, semi-finals, 36 holes.
Fourth flight, semi-finals, 36 holes.

Survivors of Consolation Events, First to Fourth Flights, Thursday's Play, Semi-Finals, 36 Holes.

Fifth flight, semi-finals, 18 holes.
Sixth flight, semi-finals, 18 holes.

Survivors of Consolation Events, These Two Flights, Thursday's Play, Semi-Finals, 18 Holes.

Saturday, June 7, Forenoon and Afternoon.

Finals in all flights, and all consolation events, 36 holes, match play.

Trophies.

In the neighborhood of twenty-five cups, trophies and medals will be awarded the successful players as prizes. The handsomest trophy to be awarded is the championship cup.

The following is the list of trophies to be awarded: Championship, championship cup; runner-up, a trophy; second flight, Alabama cup; runner-up, a trophy; third flight, Montgomery cup; runner-up, a trophy; fourth flight, Dexter cup; runner-up, a trophy; fifth flight, Lafayette cup; runner-up, a trophy; sixth flight, Yancey cup; runner-up, a trophy.

Trophies will also be given in the consolation championship flight, and in the second, third, fourth, fifth consolation flights, and in the consolidation sixth flight.

For the lowest qualifying score a gold metal will be awarded, and for the second lowest qualifying score a silver medal will be given. In the team match, a cup will be given the club and an individual trophy for each of the four men composing the winning team.

The tournament will be governed by the rules of the United States Golf association, and the tournament committee will interpret rules, decide disputes and adjust all other matters of variance, the decision of this committee to be final.

The Southern Golf association requires an entrance fee of $3 to be paid before entering for the tournament.

The officers for the following year will be elected on the night of June 3, at the Montgomery Country Club house. The present head of the Southern Golf association is H. F. Smith, of Nashville, and John C. Ryan, of the same city, is the secretary.

Large Attendance Expected.

Indications point to an exceptionally large attendance at the annual meeting of the Southern Golf association this year in Montgomery. It is expected that there will be at least 300 or 400 visiting golfers, including some of the best players in the country. It is reported that as many as 60 or 75 players will come from Birmingham.

The Montgomery golf links are in splendid condition, and prospects point to the most successful tournament ever held in the south. Through the efforts of John H. Inglis, Montgomery golf expert, and the Montgomery management, the course has undergone a number of improvements in the past few months, these improvements have been of such a nature as to make the course one of the best, and yet one of the most difficult, in the entire south.

Members of the golfing contingent of the Montgomery club are making strenuous preparation for the tournament, and it is expected that they will play creditably in the southern tournament.

Previous Winners.

The winners of the tournament in past years, are as follows:

Used Hornets to Catch Flies.

(From The New York Tribune.)

Though dead these hundred years and more, old Hector St. John Crevecoeur is the man of the hour, as his "Letters of an American Farmer" teach mankind how to cope with the fly. Employ hornets. "In my new parlor," wrote Crevecoeur, "I have a curious republic of industrious hornets. They are fierce and vindictive, but kindness and hospitality have made them harmless and useful. They live on flies. They are constantly busy catching them, even on the eyelids of my children. By their assistance I am little troubled with flies."

Lovely! Lots better than sticky fly paper. Though insidious, the habit of sitting on hornets can be cured.

Scotland's Promised Parliament.

(From The Boston Transcript.)

It is 206 years since Scotland had a parliament of its own. The union of England and Scotland, which went into effect May 1, 1707, closed the doors of the old parliament house at Edinburgh to legislation. Scotland's delegations in the British house of peers and house of commons were intrusted with the protection of Scotland's interests. In the beginning the union was a cause of friction. It was approved by the commercial classes, but it divided the masses. One Jacobite insisted that Scotland ended April 30, 1707, and thereafter became a dependency of the English crown. However, as time went on the union found favor, and until within a few years past a home rule movement in Scotland was no more to be expected than a similar agitation in Wales. Today "devolution," as the liberals call the operation of federalizing the united kingdom, is one of the most conspicuous planks in their platform. Scotland is to be given a parliament once more.

Singing Their Way.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

About a year ago four students of Boston university started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have reached London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing there under the title of the "University Quartet," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class, or blend his voice with the others in the four-part, seven-foot a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program, and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, southern coon songs and piano solos.

COLE

"The Standardized Car"

A COLE is as easy to drive as an electric. Women that have driven both feel safer in a Cole. They say "it's more obedient." To start a Cole, turn the ignition switch and touch a button. To light the lamps turn another switch. The Cole is a touch-a-button-and-go-car—everything is right at hand on the dash.

You look out for the mechanical soundness of the car and the standing of the company that builds it. Leave the conveniences and comforts to the wife. If you do this, we know one car on which you'll both agree. It's the Cole—a big, powerful, roomy and comfortable automobile that any woman can drive, day or night, with ease.

REAL ESTATE—FOR SALE AND RENT REAL ESTATE—FOR SALE AND RENT

TURMAN, BLACK & CALHOUN

SECOND FLOOR EMPIRE BUILDING.

280 EDGEWOOD AVENUE

ON THIS business thoroughfare we have an exclusive sale of 47x129 feet at $262 per front foot. This is considerably cheaper than prices in that neighborhood. It has two street fronts, which makes it an excellent business site. Easy terms.

WHITEHALL STREET

NEAR the intersection of Whitehall Street and the railroad, we have for sale 72 feet front on Whitehall Street by 113 feet deep to the railroad. About $275 per front foot on easy terms will buy this exceptional manufacturing site.

WHITEHALL STREET

RIGHT at the contemplated development, we offer for sale 46x196 feet, with an alley on the side. This is a fine piece of property for an enhancement in value and a little less than $300 per front foot will get it. House on it now renting for $35 per month. This will pay taxes and interest. Reasonable terms can be arranged.

$87,000

IN THE heart of the down-town district, between the terminals, we have for sale a 5-story concrete, fireproof building with every modern improvement, including two electric elevators. The lot is 60x95 feet. The building is now under a ten-year lease for $5,250 per year.

The property adjoining this has been offered for $1,000 per front foot vacant. A close inspection of this building will prove to you that it cannot be built for $60,000.

The cost of the building and the value of the property make the price of the property very cheap.

For a substantial investment this can't be beat.

LUCKIE STREET CORNER

CLOSE TO MARIETTA STREET, corner lot 63x90 feet. Just the right size for stores or an apartment house. Now has a 5-room cottage renting for $25 per month.

On account of needing money in his business, the owner has authorized us to sell this property for $5,000. Terms, $1,000 cash, balance to suit. This will soon bring $100 per foot. This is your chance to make money. House on small lot across the street has just been sold for $6,500.

JACKSON STREET

WE HAVE just had given us an unusually attractive home close in on the prettiest part of Jackson street.

This house is well built, being a 2-story, 9-room house, with all conveniences. It has two baths.

The parlor, reception hall, library and dining room all connect, and are very spacious. The lot is 50x175 feet to an alley; east front.

Car line in front of the door and close to another car line. This is one of the most desirable locations in the city.

On account of change of plans, the owner has authorized us to sell this property at the low price of $6,000, on easy terms.

There is no loan on the property, but the owner would agree to have one placed if desired.

If you are looking for a bargain, let us show you this at once.

A NICE SEVEN-ROOM BUNGALOW

$7,250—PIEDMONT AVENUE—If you want a real nice, well built cottage with every convenience, see this. Close to Tenth Street school.

$6,000—CAPITOL AVENUE, near Rawson Street—Good 2-story, 8-room house, lot 50x210 feet. This is good, close-in property. $1,000 cash will handle it. Rents for $40 per month.

$10,000—PONCE DE LEON AVENUE—Built for a home; 2-story house, hardwood floors, every convenience; beam ceiling; furnace heat. On a large lot.

PEACHTREE ROAD FRONTAGE—$40 to $45 per foot. Large lots; east front. Terms easy.

$200 CASH AND $25 PER MONTH

GETS 5-ROOM COTTAGE; every convenience; close to two car lines. Price, $2,850.

LOTS

A WISE PURCHASER buys where all improvements have been, or are certain to be, made. Our "WOODLAND PARK" LOTS (don't get this property confounded with that of a similar name which does not have conveniences) have sewer, water, electric lights; also a sidewalk from the property to the street car line.

THIS SUBDIVISION is in East Point, 3½ blocks from the car line, in a beautiful wooded grove. The prices of these lots range from $350 to $900. As there isn't a good vacant house in East Point, investors and builders should sit up and take notice. These lots are bargains. There are no lots to be had between this subdivision and the street car line for less than $1,500. This will give you an idea of the bargain you are getting. While Atlanta increased in population 70 per cent in ten years, East Point increased over 300 per cent.

"BROWNWOOD PARK"—If you haven't been out on South Moreland Avenue, you should go and look at our beautiful Brownwood lots, which range in price from $7 to $16 per front foot, and in size from 50 to 70 feet frontage, and all are of good depth. These lots all have a front and side building line, so that every owner of a home in Brownwood Park will know that neighbors cannot build so as to cut out light or extend out in front of one another. If you want a pretty home we can arrange to have one built in this subdivision, which is directly on the car line, with sewer, water and electric lights, and within the city limits. The house will be built to suit you, and on easy terms. This is one of the most beautiful tracts about Atlanta. We will be glad to have you come in and talk with us about this property. The terms are very easy, being 10 per cent cash, balance monthly. This property belongs to the Jos. E. Brown Company, and you can rest assured of getting value received.

THOSE INTERESTED in property on the north side should look at our "GRAND VIEW" lots—along Bonaventure and North Avenue. These lots are high above Ponce de Leon avenue, and have a very commanding view. The price on these lots is extremely low, considering the location and conveniences. Look them over and talk with us about them.

If you are an investor you should buy at least one lot in each of these splendid subdivisions, for they are sure to make you money. If you are seeking a home-building site and cannot find something in one of these locations, you might as well give it up, for you can't be suited.

ACREAGE

106 ACRES between Decatur and Stone Mountain, on new street car line. This tract fronts the highway for a distance of 1,050 feet, and the land lies very nicely. Price $150 per acre. Here is a good subdivision for you.

226½ ACRES south of Decatur, at $75 per acre. City property will be taken in exchange. This is a beautiful tract with large lake.

175 ACRES on Powers' Ferry Road, at bargain price of $90 per acre.

HOMES

WE HAVE just as desirable homes for sale as can be found in or about Atlanta. In fact, we think we have the choicest. We do not annoy or run after prospective buyers. If you will tell us what you are looking for we will submit what we have and leave it to your good judgment to make your own selection. It doesn't make any difference how humble or how grand a home you want—a cottage or a palace—we will be pleased to confer with you.

If you have property to sell we will be glad to handle it, if it is good, salable property, and your price is right.

SOCIETY

EATONTON, GA.

Friday Miss Frances Pressley and the pupils of the Cosby Wright academy entertained their friends most delightfully with a barbecue on the school grounds. A most bountiful dinner was served and the day was in all respects one long to be remembered by the guests. Quite a large number went out from Eatonton and there were also guests from other points.

Mrs. Pet Hargrove Adams is at home after a visit to friends in Atlanta.

Mrs. Genie Hodges is the guest of relatives in Athens.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Montgomery, of Fernandina, Fla., announce the birth of a son. Mrs. Montgomery was formerly Miss Georgia Jenkins, of this city.

Mrs. Sarah Forth Jones has returned from Concord, where she has been the guest of Mrs. Strickland, and is with Mrs. Barnwell Beck for the summer months.

Rev. Wallace Palmer, of Lynchburg, Va., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Evan B. Ezell for the week-end and filled the Presbyterian pulpit on Sunday. Mr. Palmer was formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church of Eatonton and received a most cordial welcome from his friends.

Mrs. Walter B. Wingfield is at home after a visit to Mrs. Lizzie Burns Webster in Atlanta.

Invitations have been issued by the junior class of the Eatonton High school for a reception given in honor of the seniors at the residence of Mrs. William Frank Jenkins in the avenue.

Miss Emmie Williams is visiting friends in Americus.

Mrs. Jack Pitts, of Newborn, was the guest of Eatonton friends Wednesday.

Mrs. James Hicks Pierce and James Hicks, Jr., returned to their home in Warsaw, N. C., after a visit to Mrs. Charles D. Leonard. Their many friends will be delighted to know that little James is very much improved.

Rev. J. H. Barber, of Tuscaloosa, has returned to his home after a visit to his family, who are spending several weeks here.

Mrs. H. C. Walker is at home after a short visit to Atlanta. She was accompanied by Miss Margaret Walker.

Mrs. Fred Hatcher, of Harlem, is visiting Mrs. J. T. Ingram.

Miss Iola Hodges, of Savannah, is the guest of her mother during her vacation. Miss Hodges is taking a course of training in nursing in Savannah and is making a great success.

Mr. James C. Ingram, of Milledgeville, was the guest of the home folks this week.

Misses Fannie and Lillie Wise spent the week-end with relatives in Madison.

Dr. Frank E. Hearn is at home after a short visit to Waycross.

The Young Ladies' Missionary society met with Miss Bessie Lawrence on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Vesre Childs announce the birth of a daughter at their home at Wayside. Mrs. Childs was formerly Miss Florence Greene.

Friday evening the commencement exercises of Phoenix Grammar were held under the direction of Mrs. Alice Collins. The exercises were largely attended and highly enjoyed.

CEDARTOWN, GA.

Mrs. W. W. Turner entertained the members of the Thursday Morning club and a few other friends most delightfully Thursday morning at her home on College street. The rooms where "42" was played were most attractive with decorations of nasturtiums, sweet peas, roses and field daisies. Mrs. Turner was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Paul Turner and Miss Lucy Liddell.

Mrs. William Leary has returned to her home in Birmingham after a visit of several weeks to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith.

The Auction club was delightfully entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. P. Holloway. The prize, a fern dish, was won by Mrs. P. C. Harris. After the game delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. W. H. Trawick left Friday for Philadelphia for a visit of two months with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. S. Evans have as their guest Mr. E. T. Miller and Miss Elizabeth Haldeman, of Media, Pa.

Miss Ruby Lacy left Friday to spend a few days attending commencement of Cox college, at College Park.

Mrs. Ivy Thompson, of Atlanta, who has been the guest of Mrs. W. W. Mundy, left Monday for a visit in Birmingham.

Mrs. E. H. Richardson is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Glives B. Van-Cleve, in Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. E. A. King left Monday for a visit to relatives in Clarkesville, Ark.

Mrs. F. A. Irwin has returned from a visit to her son, Mr. Frank Irwin, in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. S. H. Smith left Monday for Birmingham, where she will be the guest of Mrs. William Leary.

Mrs. Eunice Winegeon will leave the first of the week for West Point, Ga., where she will spend the summer with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Horsley.

Miss Katharine Bunn will on Saturday go to Birmingham, Ala., to visit her uncle, Mr. Marcus H. Bunn.

Miss Florine Hardwick, a charming Cedartown young lady, who is attending school at Bellcourt seminary, in Washington, D. C., is expected home Sunday.

Miss Lucy Pittard, of Cartersville, came last week on a visit to her sister, Mrs. S. N. Clary, Jr.

Miss Charlie Rose Simms, who was the much admired visitor of Miss Inez Peek, has returned to her home in Newnan, Ga.

ROME, GA.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Reynolds entertained Mr. and Mrs. Barrow Wright delightfully at dinner Thursday evening. Covers were laid for twelve, and a delicious menu was served faultlessly.

Mrs. W. M. Hoyt was the charming hostess of an informal bridge party Monday afternoon, given in courtesy to Mr. Guy Eastman, of Atlanta. Eight devotees enjoyed the game, and a half dozen guests called for the later hour.

Mrs. David Anderson, of Athens, who spent the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Dean, was the recipient of a number of pretty courtesies. Mrs. Mortimer Griffin tendered her a spend-the-day party Monday afternoon, while Mesdames Bernard Hale and Sallie Turner bade a coterie of her old friends to meet Mrs. Anderson at their delightful suburban home Tuesday morning.

Romans and Shorter pupils all over Georgia are cordially interested in the marriage of Miss Alice Hicks, of Berkeley, Cal., and Dr. John Wright, of Augusta, at the bride's parents' ho me in Berkeley on the evening of May 21. A tender sentiment born of seven years' tutelage at Shorter college made the choice of Miss Hicks' nuptial motif white and gold, her alma mater colors. With a wealth of fragrant the tones were blended exquisitely. After spending a week in Yosemite valley Dr. and Mrs. Wright, stopping several times en route, will return to Georgia to make their home in Augusta.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Fred Averett entertained two tables of bridge complimentary to Mrs. Barry Wright.

ELLA SUE.

Six-month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Adkins, of Gadsden, Ala., granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Adkins, Atlanta, Ga.

Of unusual interest was the meeting of the Club of the Nibelung held with Mrs. Charles Pitner, the recently elected president.

Shorter college commencement this week brings many prominent people to Rome. Dr. L. G. Hardman and Mr. Tidcock, newly elected trustees of the college, accompanied by their wives, will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Cooper.

Mrs. A. W. Van Hoose entertained at luncheon Friday for her house guests, Mrs. C. C. Sanders, Mrs. W. A. Charters, Mrs. G. H. Pryor and Mrs. Merritt, all of Gainesville. After a delicious luncheon the guests repaired to the woods, where Miss Annsnaugh's class in expression rendered most effectively, Shakespeare's "As You Like It."

Mrs. Kate Hopkins Chapman, a gifted alumna of Shorter, who will deliver the alumnae address Monday morning, arrived from Selma Saturday, and is the guest of Mrs. Van Hoose, at Maplehurst.

The Alumnae association tendered a former president, Mrs. Charles Woodruff, a beautiful reception Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Will King, on Second avenue. The fete was in the nature of a farewell courtesy, as Mrs. Woodruff leaves soon to join Mr. Woodruff in Hopkinsville, Ky., where they will reside for the future.

Mrs. Milan and Miss Sarah Stevens, of Cartersville, and Miss Myrtis Pace, of Pensacola, Fla., are guests of the Misses Laramore, on Third avenue.

Mrs. Guy Eastman returned to her home in Atlanta Wednesday morning after a happy visit with Mrs. Charles Pitner.

Miss Jessie Hine, sponsor for Georgia Sons of the Confederacy, and her maid, Miss Mildred Moultrie, went up to Chattanooga Saturday evening for the brilliant reunion season. The matron of honor for the Sons, Mrs. J. A. Selden, of Macon, joined the young ladies in Rome.

GRIFFIN, GA.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Latta entertained Saturday evening, from 8 to 10, at a large reception in honor of their guest, the Rev. LeRoy Henderson, of Knoxville, Tenn.

Receiving with the host, hostess and honor guest were Mr. and Mrs. James Brawner and the Rev. William A. Murray.

Miss Gertrude Mclowell served punch. Mrs. Charles Murray and Mrs. Frank Ingram served the delightful refreshments.

Mrs. Thomas R. Mills was the charming hostess Tuesday afternoon for the Mystic circle and a number of outside guests, entertaining in honor of Miss Theodore Burr, of Savannah, the guest of Mrs. Seneca Sawtell.

Several members of the Mystic circle read articles they had contributed to the woman's edition of The Morning Call, which was published a number of years ago. Mrs. Mills reading "The Clubs of Griffin"; Mrs. W. J. Kincaid "The Mystic Circle"; Mrs. Margaret Wilson "Farming and Farm Life"; Mrs. Charles Mills "The Thirteenth Club." The other members reading miscellaneous poems with the exception of Mrs. Roswell Drake, who read the introduction of "Georgia's Landmarks, Memorials and Legends," by Lucian Knight. After the literary program a salad course and sweet course were served.

Mrs. David Bailey entertained the Tuesday Afternoon Bridge club and several outside guests very delightfully with her sister, Miss Natalie Hammond, of Atlanta, as the honor guests.

A lovely event of Friday afternoon was the domino party at which Mrs. Hilary Wynn entertained her club and a number of other guests.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Edwards were the delightful host and hostess at a lovely dinner party, given early in the week, with Miss Mildred Doe and Mr. Oscar Davis, of Tennille, the guest of Mr. Lysle Edwards, as the guests of honor.

Miss Maude Cumming entertained the members of her graduating class Tuesday evening at her home on Poplar street.

The Young Ladies' Auction Bridge club was entertained Wednesday afternoon at a beautiful al fresco party, given by Miss Marguerite Blakely.

Miss Blakely was assisted in the entertainment of her guests by her mother, Mrs. Benjamin Blakely, and her sister, Mrs. Charles Mills, Jr.

The closing exercises of the High school were held at the opera house Friday evening. An excellent program was rendered and nine graduates, Misses Louise Sibley, Georgiana White, Grace Pullen, Florence Gresham, Sara Oxford, Ruby Futral, Messrs. Roy Wood, Halsey Garland and Walter Williams, received their diplomas. The commencement address was delivered by Hon. Charles D. McKinney, of Atlanta.

The initial exercises were held Thursday evening at the opera house, when the students of the school and local talent presented in a most creditable manner the bright comedy, "A Kentucky Belle."

Mrs. R. J. Redding left last week for Atlanta, where she is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Redding.

Mrs. L. T. Thrash, of Atlanta, spent Wednesday as the guest of Mrs. M. A. Camp and the Misses Camp.

Sale of Makers' Surplus Stocks

New Arrivals in Summer's Approved Fashions at Notably LOW Prices.

Last week the buyer returned from his New York trip. His return signalized an inflow of new suits and dresses by almost every express. All week we've been busily unpacking them; now we're ready to sell:

$10 to $12.50 Lingerie Dresses at $5.85

White embroidered voile and lingerie flouncings have been developed into very stylish dresses. Other white dresses are trimmed in laces, adorned with crystal buttons, crushed silk girdles, etc. In the same lot are "composed" one-piece dresses—the skirt of white linen; the coat of colored linene.

$5.95 to $8.50 Summer Dresses, $3.85

The little price wouldn't pay for the materials. Made of soft white lingeries and voiles, prettily developed in laces and embroideries.

$18.75 to $27.50 Ratine Dresses, $11.95

It's a pleasant surprise to get the popular ratine dresses so much under price. Some are trimmed in Bulgarian colors; some are in the "coatee" one-piece styles; some are lace or embroidery trimmed. White and colors.

$15 Ratine Suits, $7.85

Smartly tailored Ratine Suits that will give service the entire summer at seashore, mountain or in city streets. White, pink or gray.

$6.50 Norfolk Coats, $4.95

These short Norfolk Coats are just the garment for cool nights or mornings. Made of soft English flannel in bright red or Copenhagen blue. All sizes to 36.

$25 to $35 Wool Suits Only $12.85

It's a little price to pay for such suits of such superior quality. One particular striking style is of Bedford cord, tailored in cutaway fashion, lined throughout with messaline silk. Tans, blues or greys.

Other suits include white Bedford cords with black or colored stripes, solid blue or black serges, neat whipcords, ratines, etc. An unrivalled assortment. Of our old suits none formerly sold for less than $23.50; the new arrivals are worth from $27.50 to $35. Choice, $12.85.

HARRISON SENDS A SPICY LETTER

Popular Salesman Tells of Crying Needs and Adds Some Encomiums — Tells About Clayton.

Calhoun, Ga., May 24, 1913—Editor Firing Line, Atlanta Constitution: We have, after so long a time, gotten the Southern railway to give us a through passenger car from Atlanta to Franklin, N. C., but they have as yet not given us what we need most, a through express and baggage car. We are going to try again and then if we can't get it, we will ask the railroad commission to see what they can do for us. Will some one please tell me why the Southern railway lawyers waits so long before doing anything? It would save a great delay at Cornelia if they would have a through express and baggage car leave Atlanta on No. 12. It would not only save time, but would save lots of loss by careless handling. You know there are hundreds of families who go to Clayton for the summer, and if you ask any of them they will tell you that the treatment they get from the road is fierce.

It takes four hours to get to Clayton and you get tired before you get there, but it is worth all the trouble that it takes, for it is the finest place that I know of anywhere in the south to spend the summer or even a week or two. Yes, I am going to spend my vacation there this summer, and I won't be lonely either, for there are lots of Atlanta people go to there every year. Last year there were several families there from Florida, and they all said that they would surely be back. It is always cool and pleasant. While you were in Atlanta last summer wondering how on earth you could get cool I was having the time of my life. I was there in August and did not spend one unpleasant day or night. You had better come up this summer and I will show you some high mountains.

Your friend,
ED. S. HARRISON.
With the S. P. Richards company.

FATHER AND SON.

HENRY BAUER,
City salesman Atlanta Paper company, and his son, Henry Bauer, Jr.

Henry Bauer, city salesman with the Atlanta Paper company, is one of the most modest men it is possible to meet. It is a practical impossibility to get him to talking about anything connected with his business or his affairs. But there is one exceptional subject on which Mr. Bauer will talk, and he simply enthuses and bubbles over when he gets on it. This subject is Henry Bauer, Jr. The young gentleman has not yet reached a very advanced stage in his journey through life, nevertheless he has already made a lasting impression on all with whom he has come in contact, and the general opinion seems to be that he will be a worthy successor to his father, and will probably prove just as good a business man. And amongst those who know the Senior Bauer, this is recognized as high praise.

Here's to Henry Bauer, Sr., and Henry Bauer, Jr. May they both live long and prosper.

CHILE CON CARNE

Brown, Perryman & Greene report that one of the most indispensable of men is C. D. Dickinson. He is adaptable to any role and is equally efficacious as shipping clerk, receiving clerk, hat, glove or umbrella salesman. Yet "Seedy" says if he dide the world would doubtless get along without him.

There have been a number of merchants from out of town visiting the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company this week. Among them were: J. F. Welch, of Dallas, Ga.; J. W. Vaughan, of Cartersville, Ga.; J. Walker, of Canton, Ga.; Tom Davis, of Jasper, Ga.; W. A. Florence, of Marietta, Ga.; N. W. McBride, of Rockmart, Ga., and Tom Campbell, of Stone Mountain, Ga.

The ins this week with the Ward-Truitt company are D. P. McDaniel, W. W. Scott and Lewis Parker. The firm reports good business all along the line and states that the best they can gather is that the rains have made things look much better and prospects are for good crops on the whole.

President I. Liebmann, of the Atlanta Paper company, is enjoying a trip to Atlantic City just at present.

R. M. Sloan, with the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., came in Friday afternoon and reported the cotton crop in his territory as up and in good shape.

J. W. Murphy, with the Atlanta Casket company, will be in Montgomery, Ala., for Sunday. B. C. Brumfield will spend Sunday in Hot Springs, Ark.

W. I. Abner, the "three hundred pound baby" of the Atlanta Paper company with headquarters in Athens was in the city last Saturday.

BUSINESS BUILDERS

THE SALESMAN'S MOTTO: I will accomplish everything within the power of energy, tact and resourcefulness; nay, more, I will attempt and overcome the impossible.

SALESMANSHIP.

There is a certain amount of work required of both parties to a sale. The salesman has to do his work in the persuading of his prospect, and the suggesting and writing of the order. The prospect has his work to do in the mental decision to give an order, and then in deciding the amount and style of the order. The good salesman will do as much of the prospect's work for him as possible.

Of course, it is impossible to make up the prospect's mind for him, and the only effort the salesman will use in this question is in the bringing of as much pressure to bear as possible. But in the filling out of the order and the selecting of the goods the salesman can do much to render the prospect's work easier, and at the same time render his getting the order more of a certainty. The good salesman will keep himself as well posted as possible on the condition of business in his customer's territory, and will thus be in as good position to offer advice as possible. He will also know the condition of the customer's stock and be able to suggest replenishing where it is needed. He will be able to suggest new ideas which are adapted to that particular trade, and to otherwise help the tradesman in his business. But there is one way in which the salesman is frequently able to help his customer, which is nevertheless frequently overlooked. This is in the matter of service. In selling many things the salesman can often secure orders by showing the exact goods which are going to be delivered and can thus save the customer the trouble of making up his own designs and figuring out what he wants. In the selling of advertising this is well illustrated, although there are thousands of other things sold to which the argument equally applies. But in selling advertising the salesman who is able to draw up copy for the ads has a huge advantage over the man who is compelled to depend on the copy the customer himself draws up. Many advertising salesmen, however, who are quite capable of writing ads and who do so when requested to, never seem to think of going to the trouble of writing an ad for a man before he has agreed to run it. Yet many an advertising contract has been signed because the salesman had the ad already drawn up, and it appealed to the judgment of the advertiser.

Salesmen will find the painstaking giving of service in every way a large asset in the securing of that business total, which they desire to show each month.

THE CREDIT MAN.

At the annual meeting of the Atlanta Credit Men's association, held last week, the association went on record as approving the bills now before the legislature, which tend to provide protection for the retail merchants. Such measures as the Garnishment bill, the Fraudlent Check bill, etc. This is an important feature of the credit man's work and it should receive closer attention than it frequently does. In establishing a line of credit with a customer the credit man should always take into consideration the laws which govern that part of the country in which the customer is going to do business. Some states have better laws than others, and the state which protects its business men from the ravages of the dead-beat and the swindler, is liable to have fewer business failures than the one which does not.

There are many funny laws on the state books of the various states, but fortunately the trend of modern state legislature is toward more complete protection for the retailers and other business men who do business within its borders. The better these laws are the better protection will there be, not only for the retailer, but for the wholesaler who sells him his stocks. Therefore, the credit men can easily see where it is a part of the general policy of their work to help to secure the passage of laws, such as these, and the retail merchants of Georgia may safely feel that they are safe in backing every effort and action of these men in their fight for justice in laws relating to their everyday business affairs.

The Retail Merchant.

A great deal of the success or failure of the retailer depends on the judgment he displays in his treatment of the customers who came into his store. A good clerk behind a counter will study the characteristics of the people who enter the store in order to know at a glance the proper way to approach every one who comes in. The same treatment will not do in all cases.

One of the biggest points of difference is that which lies between gentlemen and lady customers. In nine cases out of ten when a man goes into a store he knows what he wants and is expecting the clerk to come to him and ask what it is he desires to buy. But this is not generally the case with women. Many women would object to a store where the clerks came up to them at once and asked what it was they wished to see. A woman likes to look around a store herself and to view the stock which is on display without interruption for awhile before she makes up her mind what she wants to buy. This difference between the two classes of trade should always be remembered by the retail store keeper and he should train his clerks to recognize it also. But the clerks should be taught that there is no hard and fast rule, and it is a part of their job to learn to distinguish between the different classes of customers who came to the store and to accord to each the proper treatment.

Carelessness on the part of clerks has robbed many a store of great business and what is worse, has caused that store to be refered to by the disappointed patrons in a way which is not complimentary. There is a certain drug store which is quite well known for the popularity of its soft drink fountain. A man went into this store one evening and the clerk asked him what he would have to drink four separate times before he paid sufficient attention to fill the order. This was a matter of poor articulation on the part of the customer or of poor hearing on the part of the clerk, because between each asking the clerk went to fill the order, but allowed his mind to wander before he did so. Then came back and asked the customer again what he would have. That young man got his drink, but went up the street a block or so to make some other purchase he wanted and has never been in that store since, besides mentioning the fact to members of his friends. This is a bad advertisement for the store and it is simply due to carelessness and poor attention on the part of the clerk. It is a hard matter to get good help, but the retailer who would make a success must understand that he has to train his help in care, attention, courtesy and judgment before he can hope to win out in the game.

THE HABIT OF EFFICIENCY

From an Address Delivered Before the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce by Wm. C. Redfield.

First of all, efficiency is not strenuousness. The man who hustles may or may not be efficient; probably he is not. Hustling is not a normal element in efficiency, nor is strenuous work apt to be efficient just because it is strenuous. You work at a lathe with the castings you are finishing piled ten feet away. This means strenuous but not efficient labor. To work at that same lathe with the castings piled so near you can get them without moving from your place, is less strenuous but far more efficient labor.

We are familiar with the fact that an overloaded machine leads a strenuous life. None of us will, if we understand mechanics, say's that it is an efficient life. This is true of men as well as of machines; true of us as well as of our employees. We must get rid of the idea that strenuousness and efficiency are either similar or the same. Driving is one thing; efficiency is something else.

Efficiency is not something we can go out and buy. It does not come in packages with directions for use. It is more like a plant; that is, it is something that grows; and it is like a plant in this, too, that the longer it takes to grow, the stronger and more enduring it is. Try to make a good sized shop really efficient, and if you do it in three years you have done well and will then find more to do.

Furthermore, not only is efficiency a matter of evolution but it is not always pleasant at first. It is an acquired taste. It runs counter to many things that we did before, and we have to learn that it is like some cheese—the taste is much better than the smell, and that it is finer food than our senses would lead us to believe.

For efficiency destroys factory habits. It has no mercy on such as are bad and it tells us to substitute better ones for those that are good. We all run more or less in what we call for politeness "grooves," but which the inconsiderate call "ruts," and this new idea does not tolerate such things. Then, too, it is a destroyer of complacency. How often we feel that we are doing something just in the right way only to have a competitor underbid us. When the shock has passed we discover that there was a better way than ours, after all.

Eternal vigilance is the price of efficiency. Every man must be his own watchdog, and his first duty will be to bark at himself. A lot of us would like efciency if it did not interfere with our own ways. How angry was that officer to whom a friend reported that the improvement in his factory methods which he sought must begin by radical changes in his own behavior.

It takes a strong man to be highly efficient, because he must win a victory over himself before he can pass the threshold of the temple of efficiency. He must learn his own ignorance and then put it away. He must abandon prejudices in mind and habits in action, must throw away unbeliefs, learn to think that little which once seemed large, and that vital which was deemed unimportant. It will be clear that this ideal of efficiency is something different from merely improving a method here and there, getting a new machine, or hiring an abler superintendent. These may be done without grasping the first principles of efficiency.—System.

OLD TRAVELER RUNS HOME LIKE HOTEL

There is an ex-traveling man who is now running a hotel in Atlanta, and who states that he is running it as he had often thought he would run a hotel if ever he got the chance. This is R. M. Kingston, who has recently taken over the Gate City hotel, on Forsyth street. Mr. Kingston is making a specialty of his meals, and he states that he is endeavoring to give the travelers the kind of meals that he knows they will appreciate. These are not ornate and made up of mysterious dishes, but good home-like meals, cooked just as well as it is possible for food to be cooked. The travelers who have already tried Mr. Kingston's fare are now regular patrons, and many more are coming all the time. Incidentally it might be mentioned that it is whispered that a large part of the secret of these meals is the fact that Mrs. Kingston personally supervises the kitchen.

H. E. Jessup, with the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., will spend Sunday in Columbus, visiting relatives and friends there.

J. M. Giddens, with the Atlanta Paper company, was in Columbus this week attending the meetings of the grand council of the United Commercial Travelers.

N. P. Cannon, secretary and treasurer of the Atlanta Casket company, left Saturday evening for Charlotte, N. C., on account of the illness of his sister, Mrs. J. W. Young.

In The Trenches

W. B. Beecham, the Athens representative of the J. K. Orr Shoe company was in the house Friday and gave an enthusiastic report on prospects.

R. K. Rambo, sales manager with John Silvey & Co., stated that the best thing he knew for the week was the general rain the country had had.

J. A. Cook and F. M. Catlett, with the Atlanta Casket company, will be in the city for Sunday.

W. E. Parks, city salesman with the Capital City Tobacco company, was out of the house for the first time last Thursday after a week of lumbago. Mr. Parks will be back on the job Monday.

The Dixie Pickle and Preserving company report that the rush of business they have experienced of late has retarded the completion of their improvements a little, but that the work is progressing nicely, anyway.

Peeples Houston, in the shipping department of the Lamar & Rankin Drug company, took his maiden trip on the road last Thursday. He went to Lawrenceville and turned in some nice business.

Ed Montag, of Montag Brothers, has been laid up for a few days the past week suffering from some bad carbuncles.

Cliff Edwards, with Fain & Stamps, came in Saturday for the first time in two months. He has had some particularly good business of late, and it looks as if May is going to be a record month with him.

J. C. Mason, with the Consolidated Paper company, is spending Sunday in Cuthbert, Ga. C. S. Hartley, one of the recent additions to the sales force, has been enjoying some good business in the northern part of South Carolina.

The following out-of-town merchants were amongst the visitors at the E. L. Adams company the past week: J. B. Settle, of the Jackson Mercantile company, Jackson, Ga., and T. J. Reeves, of Thomaston, Ga.

The majority of the salesmen with the Ragan-Malone company have about completed their preliminary special trips and are now getting out with their full fall lines of combined dry goods and notions.

The A. M. Robinson company received a nice $5,000 order from E. S. Harris, their Alabama man, this week. They also report big shirt sales in the Mobile territory.

The Ragan-Malone company had a special sale in the house for the past week preparatory to taking an inventory of their stock. This they started on Thursday last and expect to have it complete by June 1st.

A Satisfactory Bread Account is a big asset, it brings a large number of people to your store. It is in daily demand and requires practically no investment. Best Motorcycle Riders In World Are in Atlanta

The colony of professional motorcycle racing men now here for the opening events which will be started on Jack Prince's motordome which will be finished next week include the best men in the game in this country.

The champion of France, George Renal, and the champion of Scotland, McNeal, Monty Graves, who is considered one of the top-notchers in this country, are three of the best.

Two others that are very prominent are Shields and Lockner, the winners of the twenty-four hour motorcycle race on the Brighton Beach track last fall. In this event these two men rode ten hundred and seventy-five miles and won the title of "Around the Clock Riders."

It is hardly likely that there will ever be another twenty-four hour motorcycle race in this country again, as this one proved that long distance racing on motorcycles was too much of a strain on the men and entirely too dangerous.

All of the men who will ride on the motordrome here are men who have been at the game for the last four years, when the first board track was built for motorcycle racing.

McNeal, the Scotchman, has with him two eight-valve English-make motorcycles called Japs Motors, said to be the fastest machines in the world. McNeal thinks that with the proper track to hold the speed he can travel 100 miles in the hour. The best time yet made for one hour's riding was that made by Humiston in California last fall of 88 miles.

These riders that are here all have ridden the track and say without a doubt the Atlanta track will be as fast as any in the country.

The Atlanta public will see racing with speed that will be thrilling and wonderful. As one spectator remarked when seeing the men riding yesterday, "About the time you see them coming they are gone and coming again."

Motorcycle racing is a sport that grips tighter than baseball. It makes "fans" of everybody. The words swift and swiftly are slow when trying to describe motorcycle races.

The interest in the motordrome is growing daily, and when the announcement is made for the opening meet it is a certainty that record-breaking crowds will attend.

USEFUL HINTS TO MOTOR CAR OWNERS

Among the many causes of loss of power it is doubtful if there is any that is more obscure or more difficult to locate than that which results from loose piston rings—rings that have become so worn that they do not fit their respective grooves properly. The reason for the loss of power such a cause is twofold: Due to the leak, the partial vacuum caused during the down stroke of the piston is reduced, which results in an insufficient quantity of mixture being drawn into the combustion space, and part of the explosive force is lost when the gases pass the rings. Generally the condition may be detected by running the engine for a short time and inspecting the crank case for smoke. Of course, if the crank case is not provided with hand holes or inspection plated such proceedure is not possible and it will be necessary to rely on the hearing alone, the engine being cranked slowly by hand. The remedy is obvious and is embraced in a renewal of the piston rings. Sometimes a similar trouble may be traced to scored cylinders.

Without the proper tools and equipment lead burning is an impossibility, and even with all the requisites, unless the operator is proficient, not a little trouble is experienced. When the storage battery lugs become disconnected, if the operator is either inexperienced or without the proper facilities to burn them together, it is well to resort to autogenous welding, which is really not so complex as the name seems to indicate, and can readily be carried out by any one who can hold a soldering bit. It suffices to clean the lead lugs thoroughly by scraping and apply a layer of lead amalgam, which is a mixture of lead and mercury. Pass the heated iron across the amalgam and the union is complete. Care should be taken to see that none of the melted lead drops into the battery or on the sealing material.

Although there may be no particular cargoer of blowing up compressed air reservoirs such as are used for tire inflation or engine starting purposes, due to the fact that almost invariably they are equipped with some sort of a safety valve to prevent such contingencies, it is unwise for obvious reasons to permit an air compressor to run for a greater length of time than is necessary to obtain the desired pressure. In the first place, it causes the pump to heat up excessively, and in the second place it causes an amount of wear that decreases the life of the pump proportionately.

Occasionally the suggestion is made that a valve stem which is bent should be straightened before being used again. A bent valve stem, even if the deflection is so slight as to be imperceptible, is sure to cause abnormal wear of both itself and its guide, and it is almost impossible to grind such a valve to a seating that will remain tight.

Driving over rough roads at the slowest possible rate of speed is not always the best plan. It often happens that a very slow rate will result in the setting up of much more severe vibration than a slightly higher speed, which would tend to interrupt the swing of the body on the springs.

JEROME TRAVERS RETAINS TITLE

Metropolitan Golf Champion Defeats August F. Kammer in Finals, 8 Up and 7 to Play.

New York, May 24.—For the fifth time in his golfing career, Jerome D. Travers, of Upper Montclair, N. J., won the metropolitan amateur championship title by defeating August F. Kammer, the Staten Island champion, at the Fox Hill Golf club today.

As a member of the Upper Montclair Golf club he has won three times and the championship trophy, a bronze panel presented by Daniel Chauncey, becomes the permanent property of the Upper Montclair club. From the outset of this year's tourney Travers, who also holds the national title, displayed such wonderful accuracy that the result was a foregone conclusion.

During the week he established a new amateur record of seventy strokes for the remodeled course and outclassed all the other contestants.

Kammer, the runner-up, was scarcely able to make the champion extend himself. He was 3 down at the conclusion of the first half of the 36-hole match today, and the match ended on the eleventh hole in the second half, Travers winning by 8 up and 7 to play.

The president's cup competed for by the beaten sixteen in the first match play round was won by Max R. Marston, of Baltusrol, who won the interscholastic championship last week. Gilman Tiffany, of Powelton, the Hudson river champion, was the prize winner in the third sixteen, and N. E. Syracuse, of Inwood, took the prize in the fourth division.

FEDERAL TIRES

The Federal Rugged Tread has always been a "higher quality" tire. Heavier, stronger and more durable than non-skid tires are usually built, it has cost more to produce, therefore sold at a higher price than most other good tires.

Now, the recent reduction in prices makes these "extra service" tires cost no more than ordinary non-skid tires.

Quality remains unchanged—features of safety, durability and economy unquestioned. Made in all types for standard rims by the Federal Rubber Manufacturing Co., Milwaukee.

That's why we say the Paige "36" is a next year's car.

For instance, does any other car in the Paige price field offer the famous Gray & Davis Electric Starting and Lighting System? Look it up. See if they do. The Paige "36" chassis was designed for the Gray & Davis System. It is a part of the car.

Look at the Paige "36" clutch, the cork insert multiple disc clutch. See what other cars offer it. Look at the Paige "36" motor size and design—4 inch bore, 5 inch stroke, and every detail splendidly refined. Look at its wheel base, 116 inches—body size, big and roomy—wheel size, 34x4 inches—ignition, Bosch magneto.

Compare the car, through and through, with any car at a competing price. Compare not only design and equipment. We want you to compare materials and workmanship, too. We will be satisfied with your judgment when you've made the comparison.

Five types of body: Model Glenwood, 5-passenger touring car; model Westbrook, 3-passenger roadster; Model Brighton, raceabout; Model Montrose, 4-passenger coupe; Model Maplehurst, 5-passenger sedan.

For those who prefer a slightly less expensive car we offer the Paige "25" in two popular body types, a 5-passenger touring car and a snappy, stylish roadster, both at $950, completely equipped.

PAIGE-DETROIT MOTOR CAR CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN

United States Tires are good tires

How did you pick your car?

When you bought your car you didn't choose it because you happened to like the carburetor or because of its thick upholstery or even because of its famous motor.

You got right down to the bottom of the question. You compared various cars point by point until you finally found the car that came the closest to combining all the good points you wanted to find in your car.

Why not buy your tires in the same way?

Why not size up the various brands point by point and pick the tire that combines all those strong features that a good tire ought to have.

You want high mileage

You will get from 25 to 50 per cent. more mileage from United States Tires than any tire ever yielded up to the time the United States Tire Company was organized.

You want to avoid rim cutting

United States Dunlop Tires are the only tires ever guaranteed against it.

Air capacity and diameter are important

No tire ever made has a larger average air capacity or larger diameter measurements than the United States Dunlop. Get a few cross sections and prove it with your own eyes.

You want an easily manipulated tire

The round toe makes the United States Dunlop the most easily manipulated tire on the market.

But the prime essential is fabric strength

Strong fabric means not only high mileage but protection against blow-outs. By a process which we have perfected and control exclusively we have practically doubled the strength of United States Tires and reduced blow-outs proportionately.

These are the good points you want to find in your tires. They govern the size of your tire bills. Four-factory cooperative methods (used exclusively in the making of United States Tires) have enabled us to combine all of them in this one tire.

Cost no more than you are asked to pay for other kinds

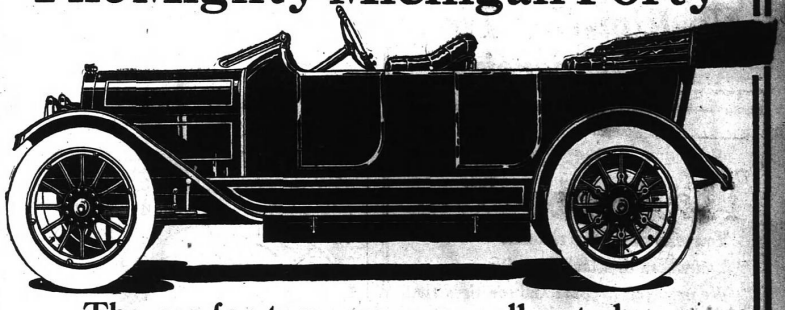
The Mighty Michigan Forty



The car for tomorrow as well as today.

It is a car ahead of its time. It offers not only the distinctive appearance that all good cars will have later on, but also many conveniences that every car of the future must have to be a successful seller. What thousands have found good should please you, too.

The Mighty Michigan Forty completely equipped represents the efforts of some of the master builders of motor cars. It is the equal in every respect of cars selling for $2,000. Keen judges of motor car value, here and abroad—men and women that buy judiciously—confirm our statements by their heavy purchases of 1913 Michigans.

Will Read at St. Augustine, but Contents Not Made Public.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 24.—A telephone message from St. Augustine this afternoon says that the Flagler will was read there this morning, the widow, her attorneys and the attorneys of the Florida East Coast being present.

Harry Flagler, the son, and his wife were not present, having left on a morning train for New York.

Amasa Flagler, a cousin of San Francisco, also was absent. The contents of the will was not revealed. The estate is said to total $68,000,000.

DECISIONS EXPECTED BY THE SUPREME COURT

Washington, May 24.—More decisions are expected Monday from the supreme court than it has handed down for months. The court has been in recess two weeks, devoting itself exclusively to preparing opinions in 165 cases.

Decisions most anxiously awaited are the state rate cases from Minnesota, Missouri, Kentucky, Oregon, Arkansas and West Virginia. These include the validity of maximum freight rates and two-cent passenger rates in many instances. They have been pending more than a year. Several other questions of railroad law may be decided.

The court may hand down its decision as to whether Porter Charlton is to be returned to Italy for trial on the charge of murdering his wife at Lake Como.

The validity of the newspaper publicity law, and the question of whether manufacturers of patented articles may prevent cut rates by restricting the resale prices, may be determined.

HIGH CASTE HINDU TO BE NATURALIZED

San Francisco, May 24.—First naturalization papers have been granted by the United States district court here to a Hindu, Datta Kumar, who is a native of India and a missionary. The applicant was informed yesterday that the government reserved the right to withhold final papers.

The recommendation of Chief Naturalization Examiner George A. Crutchfield that the papers be granted was based on a recent ruling of a federal court in Washington that a high caste Hindu was of Aryan descent and eligible to citizenship.

BRIERLEY IS ARRESTED FOR CUSTOMS FRAUDS

Philadelphia, May 24.—Roberts Brierley, formerly an examiner of merchandise in the customs service of the port of Philadelphia, was arrested today on a charge of "unlawfully and fraudulently passing dutiable merchandise imported from abroad and consigned to John Wanamaker, of this city, as goods of no value." Brierley was held in $5,000 bail for a further hearing next Friday.

Brierley's arrest is the result of an extended investigation into charges that goods had been passed at this port either free of duty or at greatly reduced rates. When the investigation was called to the attention of Mr. Wanamaker some months ago he threw open his books for government inspection and as a result Mr. Wanamaker paid the government approximately $100,000 as duty on undervalued goods. Mr. Wanamaker at the time stated he had no personal knowledge of irregularities, as all imports were in the hands of employes whom he took to be honest.

120 PASSENGERS LOST WHEN SHIP HITS MINE

Steamer Nevada Strikes Mine in Gulf of Smyrna—Only 80 Persons Saved.

Smyrna, May 24.—The steamer Nevada, with 200 passengers on board, struck three mines in succession today in the Gulf of Smyrna and sank. Only eighty passengers are reported saved. The mines were strewn on the coast waters by the Turks to prevent an attack by the rGeek fleet during the Balkan war.

The Nevada was owned by the Hadji Daout company and ran in the eastern Mediterranean.

The Nevada was leaving the Gulf of Smyrna when a Russian steamer was coming in and to avoid a collision the first named vessel left the channel and entered a mine field.

The Nevada struck three mines and each exploded in quick succession. The last was followed by an explosion on the ship which immediately sank.

Of the 200 passengers on the steamer eighty were rescued by boats which put off from the French cruiser Bruix, which was anchored in the harbor.

The Nevada, though owned by a Turkish company, was flying the American flag. She belonged to a fleet of eight steamers of which seven were renamed in 1910 and were transferred to the American flag.

She is the second passenger steamer to be sunk by mines in the Gulf of Smyrna within a week, and the fourth destroyed in this manner since the gulf was mined on the outbreak of the Turco-Italian war.

R. O. COCHRAN SPEAKS AT PALMETTO HIGH

Palmetto, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The graduating exercises of Palmetto High school took place at the school auditorium. The class was Miss Helen Hudson, Miss Mildren Edje, Ralph Sims and Howard Daniel.

Hon. Ralph O. Cochran, of Atlanta, who was raised here, delivered the literary address in an eloquent and entertaining manner, having been flatteringly presented to the large and appreciative audience by Hon. D. B. Bullard.

For Carnegie Library.

Valdosta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The excavation for the new Carnegie library in this city is completed, and work on the structure will begin in a few days. Little & Phillips, of Cordele, have the contract. The plans were drawn by Bishop & Greer, of Valdosta, and provides for a very handsome building, excellently arranged and large enough for a town much bigger than Valdosta. The library is to be turned over to the trustees by September 10.

LABOR CHIEFS APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Washington, May 24.—Attorneys for Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison applied to the supreme court today for a review of their sentences for violating a court of injunction in the Buck stove and range case. The court is in recess.

Twelve grounds were urged upon the court for a review. That upon which most stress was laid was that the punishment was barred by the statute of limitations.

"To permit the punishment of men for alleged contempt years after the time of the act supposed to have been committed," contended Jackson H. Ralston, the attorney whose name was signed to the application, "is to lay the foundations for future injustice. If the position taken by the majority of the court of appeals is correct, the courts in this country possess the unrestricted right at any distance of time after the commission of a supposed offense, against their dignity, to pursue the offender."

The application will be brought to the attention of the court Monday when probably it will be taken under consideration until the next session.

REPORT IS POSTPONED ON SOUTHERN BAPTISTS

Controversy Is Expected When Northern Baptists Take Up the Matter.

Detroit, May 24.—The report of the committee on relations with the Southern Baptists scheduled for presentation to the Northern Baptists this forenoon, was put over until next Tuesday, when it will be heard in connection with the report of the American Baptist Home Mission society.

During the discussion of the report it is anticipated a controversy will arise over the proposition to turn over to the southern brotherhood several missions which the northern church has established in Oklahoma.

It is charged that when missions in New Mexico were surrendered to the southern church last year, a number of northern workers were dismissed and their places filled by adherents of the church of the south. The possibility of similar action in the Oklahoma field has created considerable opposition to the proposed change.

A report of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America, read to the convention, showed twenty-eight Protestant churches were enrolled in the council.

Dr. Shailer Matthews, dean of the school of theology of the University of Chicago, and president of the council, discussing the movement toward unification of all Protestant denominations, said:

"If the federal council attempted to compile a creed that would embrace all denominations, it would be a creed so like the New Testament that it would be a useless task to compile it."

"Most of the Americans in our dependency of Porto Rico live un-Godly lives, furnishing the worst sort of moral example to the natives," declared Miss Laura Dresser, a Baptist missionary of Porto Rico, to the convention.

Her address was characterized as the "sensation" of the convention.

Referring to Americans who have made their homes on the island, she said:

"These Americans furnish absolutely no help to the missionaries. Active Christians here at home, many of these Americans coming to Porto Rico, threw their Christianity overboard somewhere between New York and San Juan. Such grossly un-Godly lives do they live, after getting to Porto Rico, that it is a question if they will ever take up with the religious life again."

The report of the committee on state conventions showed a total church membership of 1,525,869, an increase of 41,675.

AMBASSADOR PAGE WELCOMED TO LONDON

"I Call It a Generous Welcome," Said New Representative of United States.

London, May 24.—Walter Hines Page, the new United States ambassador to the court of St. James, found himself in an American atmosphere on stepping out of the train at Euston station today. The entire personnel of the American embassy, Counsul General Griffiths and many members of the American colony were at the station to meet Mr. Page.

Mr. Page, when questioned by an English reporter at the station in regard to the story about his not wearing knee breeches, said:

"Why ask such a question? Do you want me to say that a foolish assertion made by a newspaper man at the other end of the line has resulted in an equally foolish querry at this end?"

Mr. Page then said: "Until I have been presented at court I shall live at a hotel as a private citizen."

The ambassador will decline all invitations to social events until he has been received by King George.

Page at Liverpool.

Liverpool, England, May 24.—"That's what I call a generous welcome," was the comment of Walter Hines Page, American ambassador at London, when he landed here today from the liner Baltic. He referred to the sunny day whigh he thoroughly enjoyed after the chill which had prevailed outside the bar and on the Mersey.

The ambassador was met by Irwin B. Laughlin, secretary of the American embassy, and Horace Lee Washington, American consul at Liverpool, and was cheered by a considerable crowd.

The stars and stripes and union jacks were seen in all directions.

"I am glad to see you," Ambassador Page said to the reporter, "but I have nothing to say."

Mr. Page then glanced at newspaper reports of interviews with him before he left New York and at Queenstown. He repudiated a report of yesterday with saying that because he was not rich, he had no intention of entering largely into society functions. He warded off political questions.

ARRESTED FOR SENDING LETTERS TO WILSON

Philadelphia, May 24.—Charged with sending annoying letters to President Wilson, Richard Lindsay, said to be a resident of Chicago, was arrested here tonight by secret service operatives.

The last of the letters mailed from this city to the president was as follows:

"I wrote a letter to you from 7 Chicago Avenue, Chicago, Ills., dated May 9, and demanded an answer to it May 14, 1913. If I do not hear from you by May 27, I will learn you and Mr. Tumulty and also those who do not believe in a supreme being here upon earth a lesson, which they will not forget and furthermore, I demand from the United States government this time $200,000 as a remuneration. Maxwell assaulted me."

"RICHARD LINDSAY, "THE LION."

The service men say they believe that Maxwell mentioned in the letter is a government employee.

PUBLISHER KILLED BY A JOB PRINTER

Lincolnton, N. C., May 24th—Floyd Beam, publisher of The Lincoln Times, a weekly newspaper published here, is dead as a result of a pistol shot inflicted by Lewis Lee, proprietor of a local job printing establishment. The two men had a dispute yesterday morning over some business transaction and later in the day met on the street, when, it is alleged, Lee shot at Beam five times, one bullet taking effect, causing death late last night. Lee was arrested and placed in prison and will be tried at the next term of court.

14-YEAR-OLD FORSYTH GIRL WINS STATE U. D. C. PRIZE

MISS GLADYS M'GEE.

Forsyth, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—In competition with essays that had won prizes in every county in the state of Georgia, a 14-year-old girl of this place, Miss Gladys McGee, has won the state U.D.C. prize, a gold medal, for the best essay on the subject, "The Gallant John B. Gordon."

Winning first the medal offered by the Monroe county chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Miss McGee's essay was then entered in the statewide contest, and it has been awarded the prize in the decision of the central committee in Atlanta. The contest was open to the pupils of the eight, ninth and tenth grades of the public schools, and the essays were to be not less than 1,000 or over 1,500 words.

Miss McGee is a member of the eighth grade of the Banks-Stephens institute at Forsyth, Ga., and was the youngest pupil entering the contest from her school. She is the daughter of J. L. McGee, a highly respected citizen of Forsyth.

In the veins of this young writer flows the blood of gallant confederate heroes on both her father's and her mother's side. Her maternal grandfather, Captain D. S. Redding, of this county, served for four years in command of a company mustered at Forsyth and surrounding territory. Her paternal grandfather, S. H. McGee, served in the confederate army with honor and distinction, enlisting at Shelbyville, Tenn., and is now an honored and respected citizen of Juliette, Ga.

Congratulations are being showered upon Miss McGee from all parts of the state for her success in the U.D.C. contest.

Atlanta Players' Club to Give Annual Performance on June 3

"The Importance of Being Earnest," the unique and popular play of Oscar Wilde, which is being prepared for presentation by the Atlanta Players' club, will be given at the Grand Opera house on Tuesday evening, June 3, instead of Friday, May 30, the date first set. The postponement was announced Saturday afternoon by the Grand management, being occasioned by a conflict of dates between this play and the presentation of the Blanche Walsh pictures. These pictures are to be given the last three days of the coming week, causing the postponement of the Players' club engagement.

When the cast preparing the play met for rehearsal at the Grand Saturday night, they astonished everybody, including themselves and the stage director, Warren A. Rogers, by the readiness with which the play was run through from beginning, with genuine artistic interpretation of the scenes. The remaining time between now and the 3d of June will be occupied with rehearsals every night, and it is believed that the final production will be the most finished ever given in the history of the club.

It will be one of the most elaborately staged plays Atlanta has seen. A portion of the furniture for the London apartment scene will be secured from the home of Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, the next "first lady" of Georgia, who assumes one of the prominent roles in the play. It is hinted that other furniture and articles for the stage setting will come from the home of Mrs. T. B. Felder, president of the club, and from other homes prominent in Atlanta society.

Members of the Atlanta Players' club and their guests will fill the first three rows of the orchestra on the night of June 3, while a number of box parties are to be given. After the show, the club will gather for a supper at the Piedmont Driving club, which will be a delightful event, accompanied by music and dancing. At the central table at the supper will be gathered the officers of the club and the cast, the latter including Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, Miss Hildreth Burton Smith, Mrs. William Owens, Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott, Marsh Adair, Lamar Hill, R. Frank Taylor and Hamilton Douglas, Jr.

Napoleon's First Victory.

(From "Reminiscences of a Diplomat's

It is a matter of history that at the Battle of Aspern-Essling in 1809, Archduke Charles, of Austria, considered by many one of the greatest soldiers of his day, inflicted upon Napoleon the first serious defeat that he had ever suffered. Not so well known is the story of an earlier battle between these two soldiers.

One day in 1778 the Archduke Charles and his brother, Ferdinand, aged 7 and 9, respectively, were playing with a box of wooden soldiers in an ante-room of the grand ducal palace at Florence. It happened that a gentleman accompanied by his little son, called to pay his respects to the grand duke of Tuscany, the father of the two brothers. After waiting for some minutes in the ante-room the stranger was summoned to the grand duke's study.

The boy, whom he left waiting in the room, was a sallow, aggressive child, with fine gray eyes and a prematurely serious expression. In his father's absence he amused himself by joining the two small archdukes in their mimic warfare on the carpet. Gradually, to their displeasure, he began to get the better of them. His toy cannon, which he worked vigorously, mowed down their soldiers as fast as they could set them up. At last, when a quarrel was imminent and the little archdukes were on the point of pummeling their adversary, they were restrained by the return of his father, accompanied by the kindly grand duke.

"Eh, but your youngster is beginning well, Monsieur de Bonaparte," he said, laughing. "I see he has been outmanuevering my sons while we have been talking. Well, good luck to him! I trust you will have no trouble in getting him into the establishment at Brienne."

It was indeed young Napoleon who, with the wooden soldiers and a toy cannon, had given evidence of the great military genius within him. Monsieur de Bonaparte had called with his son to ask for the grand duke's personal recommendation, which he hoped would be of service to him in getting his son admitted to the military school at Brienne.

Hints for Motorcycle Vacationists.

(J. H. Donohue, in Leslie's.)

Roughly speaking, the road costume of the motorcycle vacationist should be made up of canvas leggings (puttees and leather leggings often cause discomfort in warm weather); short trousers and a well-pocketed jacket of khaki or olive drab material; light gloves (not necessarily gauntlets); a light but serviceable cap, and goggles, the latter of a type that will afford the rider's eyes maximum protection from dust. A low collar, of some material that is susceptible to the cleansing influence of a damp cloth, is also a valuable asset.

A small camera will add greatly to the enjoyment of a motorcycle vacation, and many experienced riders carry them everywhere, despite the fact that they complicate the luggage problem. There is a clip, by the way, for the motorcycle vacationist who is also a camera enthusiast. Suspend your picture-making instrument on stout straps between the handlebars of your machine. The straps should be drawn taut, of course, and the camera fastened to them securely. In this position the latter will be out of the way, will not suffer from vibration in heavy going and, in the event of spill, will not be likely to sustain injury.

A good map of the territory to be covered should be obtained a week or two prior to the date set for the start, and the prospective tourist would do well to study it carefully. For best results the vacationist should not ride more than 75 to 100 miles a day, even when the roads are excellent, and each day's run should be gauged on the map to end in a town or city where hotel accommodations and a garage (or at least a gasoline and oil station) are assured. Some lusty enthusiasts carry a small, but complete camping outfit on the baggage-carrier, and scorn hotel-keepers, but this innovation probably entails more trouble than it is worth in settled districts.

WAGES DON'T CONTROL COST OF PRODUCTION

Secretary Redfield Advises the Manufacturers to Seek Efficiency Before Reducing Pay.

New York, May 24.—The rate of wages is not the controlling factor in the cost of production, and there are many manufacturers who should employ more efficient methods before attempting to reduce wages on account of the proposed reductions in the tariff, William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce, declared tonight. He was speaking at a dinner given in honor of Secretary of War Garrison by the Hudson County Bar association.

"The cost of labor is in many industries but a minor part of the total cost and rarely the controlling element therein," said Mr. Redfield. "The difference in wages between American and Europe often, therefore, affects but a small part of the total cost of manufacture and is itself so modified by many other conditions as to have small value as a basis for argument. The chief controlling factor in production is the rate and quality of output. Differences in cost may have no relation to labor.

"The industries in our country which meet foreign competition best are those which pay the highest wages. The industries in America which profess the least ability to meet foreign competition are those which pay the lowest wages among us, as the textile manufactures.

"It is frequently true that the industries with the highest protection from tariff pay the lowest wages (wool and cotton), while those with the smallest tariff protection (shoes) pay higher and sometimes the highest wages.

"While it is true that some of our industries and many individual manufacturers in our industries are highly efficient, it is unfortunately the fact that there are many more of whom the same cannot be said.

"I believe and affirm that public opinion requires that manufacturers in whose plants the latter is true shall correct their methods before they undertake to reduce wages of operatives.

"Many of us are not using to the full the productive powers we control. Men and women in our factories are endowed with reason, interest, judgment, energy, imagination, attention and memory. Has a deliberate effort been made to try what the responsive force of these powers is to patient and inspiring leadership? Has it not been proven that men have been considered a kind of producing merchandise to be hired at the lowest rate at which poverty would force them to work rather than at such a rate as would inspire their highest productiveness? Is not the whole outlook upon wage-earning a distortion of the greater truth that they should be a remunerative investment? Has not the man been set at his mathematical value rather than at his human one?

"The democratic party says: 'Look into your own methods; search and see if they are right, and before you touch the income of the poor make double sure that nothing in management, in use of equipment or arrangement is left undone toward your best efficiency.'"

Old Ways and New.

The fault of the age is a mad endeavor
To leap to heights that were made to climb;
By a burst of strength, of a thought most clever,
We plan to forestall and outwit Time.

We scorn to wait for the thing worth having;
We want high noon at the day's dim waning.
We find no pleasure in toiling and saving,
As our forefathers did in the old times gone.

We force our roses before their season
To bloom and blossom for us to wear;
And then we wonder and ask the reason
Why perfect buds are so few and rare.

We crave the gain, but despise the getting;
We want wealth—not as reward, but dower;
And the strength that is wasted in fretting
Would fell a forest or build a tower.

To covet the prize, yet to shrink from the winning;
To thirst for glory, yet fear to fight;
Why, what can it lead to at last but sinning,
To mental languor and moral blight?

Better the old slow way of striving,
And counting small gains when the

MAN AND THREE GIRLS DROWN WHILE BATHING

Father, His Daughter and Two Young Women Schoolteachers, the Victims.

Russellville, Ark., May 24.—A father, his daughter of 19, and two young women school teachers, members of a camping party from Russellville, were drowned near here late today while bathing in the Illinois river. The dead:

W. A. CRAWFORD.
MISS FRANCES CRAWFORD.
MISS RUTH VAN LANDINGHAM.
MISS VERA MEADE.

Mr. Crawford, family and a number of young women school teachers arrived at the river today for an outing. All went bathing. Miss Crawford got beyond her depth and her father, Miss Van Landingham and Miss Meade went to her rescue. After struggling in the current for a moment all four apparently stepped from a sand bar into deep water and sank from sight. The bodies were recovered.

Mr. Crawford was principal of the public schools at Russellville, secretary of the Arkansas Athletic association and one of the most widely known educators of the state. Miss Van Landingham was one of his assistants and Miss Meade was principal of the high school at Ola, Ark. She was the daughter of U. G. Meade, a Russellville attorney.

STATE SENATOR GUILTY OF CHARGE OF BRIBERY

Stilwell Convicted by New York Jury—May Be Fined and Imprisoned.

New York, May 24.—Stephen J. Stilwell, state senator from the Bronx, recently exonerated by the New York state senate of charges of bribery, was found guilty of bribery this afternoon by a jury. The maximum penalty for the crime is ten years' imprisonment and $500 fine. He will be sentenced Wednesday.

The verdict automatically takes from Stilwell his seat in the state senate. The convicted legislator lurched forward a step when the foreman pronounced the jury's findings. Then he stiffened before the court clerk and answered the usual questions. Assistant District Attorney Nott said he considered the verdict just.

"I think one of the greatest benefits that will arise out of the verdict," he said, "will be to show that the legislature, having made an investigation into the conduct of one of its members, should decide the case on its merits, and the legislature will realize that it is more dangerous to worry about a case than it is to decide one." Stilwell was led to the tombs. His counsel announced an appeal would be sought.

The crime for which Stilwell stands convicted is soliciting money in return for his promised influence in reporting out in the senate and assembly a bill aimed to set aside a regulation of the New York Stock exchange against listing securities not printed by designated banknote companies. The state senate exonerated Stilwell by a clean vote, but his indictment here followed. The testimony developed in the trial was largely as presented in the senate. Stilwell took the stand in his own behalf.

ANTI-JAP LAW FOUGHT IN HOUSE OF FRIENDS

Resolutions Opposing the Measure Adopted by California Labor Unions.

San Francisco, May 24.—Resolutions published today by two powerful labor organizations mention two things with reference to California's alien land act.

First, that organized labor will seek a substitute measure by invoking the initiative, on the ground that the so-called web bill is not strong enough. Reference to the initiative will not delay the present act from going into effect on August 14, as signatures to call for an election are said to be available without going outside of San Francisco.

Second, that another section of organized labor will seek not only to invoke the initiative, but will circulate petitions for a referendum petition, which, if called, will prevent the Webb bill from going into effect until the election is decided, which could not be until November, 1914.

Favoring the application of referendum as well as the initiative are the Asiatic exclusion league, Olaf Tveitmoe, president, and the San Francisco Building Trades Council, which last Thursday adopted resolutions approving the stand of the Asiatic exclusion league. Both agree that the present law is a "defective piece of legislation," because it permits "three years' leases, indefinitely, of land in California by aliens."

In opposition to this resolution, the San Francisco Labor Council, with 2,000 delegates from the Building Trades Council in attendance, unanimously adopted last night resolutions that the initiative be invoked for a substitute, but the referendum be not invoked.

The split makes it uncertain what will be the fate of a referendum petition. Twenty thousands signatures are needed.

Having tried unsuccessfully various highly recommended recipes for dislodging selfish passengers from coveted seats, the woman who swung from a strap in front of a sandy man tried talking at him to her husband. As a peroration to her harangue, she said impressively:

"If you, James, should ever be pigish enough to sit down where there was a woman in the car left standing, I would never speak to you again as long as I live."

The sandy man looked up then.

"Lucky devil," he said. "For many of us could purchase peace at that price."

COMMENCEMENT DAY

FOR the graduation dress select a soft material and let the charm lie in its fresh daintiness and in its sweet simplicity of design.

The plaited skirt which is so suitable for the girlish figure is illustrated in the model on the left. It is of fine marquisette with the blouse trimmed with shadow lace. The lace is also used below the high satin girdle to form a short peplum.

The little frock in the middle is of white Liberty satin with a tunic of net matelasse. A fichu of net and lace opens over a vest of plaited chiffon trimmed with small crystal buttons.

Motorists and Their Problems

Motoring Department, The Constitution: Kindly recommend some substance which can be applied to the leather washer of the pump so as not to allow the air to filter through and thus cause loss of time. I have been told to oil the leather, but the oil will, after a time, be forced through the leather.—James Kevlin.

A little neatsfoot oil or castor oil applied to the leather washer of the pump should remedy the trouble you speak of. If this does not do it, it would seem advisable to install a new washer.

Motoring Department, The Constitution: (a) What is good to take the scale and rust from inside the water jackets? (b) The water boils when climbing hills. What causes this? (c) What is the proper space between the tappet and valve stem on setting valves? Is this the proper way to set the valves. Put motor on top center No. 1; see that this is the cylinder that fires through the spark plug, then set tappet away from the valve stem about the thickness of wrapping paper, and proceed the same way with No. 2, No. 4 and No. 3? (d) What is the slowest speed I should get from this car when in high and throttled down? (e) Is denatured alcohol good to remove the carbon from motors and how much should be put in each cylinder, also whether hot or cold? —Harry F. Stewart.

(a) A strong solution of alkali and water is good to remove foreign matter from the water jackets. The solution should not be allowed to remain in the motor longer than twenty minutes.

(b) There are several causes for overheating when climbing hills. The cooling system may be defective, the the cylinders may be carbonized, there may be insufficient lubrication, or possibly the spark is not advanced sufficiently. Many cars will overheat when climbing hills and not overheat under other conditions. When a car is climbing a hill on the lower gears the motor is turning over very fast while the rate of speed of the car is slow. The rate of speed of the car has a great deal to do with the cooling of the motor. For example, when the car is traveling in high gear approximately 25 miles an hour, the motor is turning comparatively slow, and the cooling area due to the air pressure on the radiator is largely increased. In climbing hills in low gear the motor turns over very fast at full throttle, and the cooling area is considerably reduced, due to the speed of the car being slow. It is true that the fan revolves at a speed proportionate to the engine speed, nevertheless the additional cooling effect attained by a slight wind pressure determines more or less the temperature of the motor. This seems rather a small factor to cause the overheating, but when you consider that the cooling system is designed to keep the motor at a temperature just below the boiling point under normal conditions you will appreciate that very little will produce overheating when the motor is worked hard. Often a rich carburetor mixture will produce overheating under normal conditionse.

(c) Usually the space between the tarpet and the valve stem is about 1-64th of an inch, or enough to allow for expansion and contraction. This adjustment is made when the cam of the cam shaft is in no way acting upon the push end. Each valve stem should be adjusted in a like manner.

(d) It is impossible to state the slowest speed you should obtain when the motor is fully throttled. This depends entirely upon the gear ratio.

(e) Denatured alcohol will not remove carbon entirely. It will help to a degree, and this is all that can be said. A tablespoonful in each cylinder when hot is often used.

Motoring Department, The Constitution: My car has not the power that a motor of its size should have, although the car has just been overhauled. She runs beautifully up to a certain speed: from there on she slows down instead of picking up, no matter what carburetor adjustments. The only thing that I can find out is the acting of my auxiliary air valve in the carburetor. She has a steady pull up to a certain speed, then she starts to flap up and down.—A. Kuhn.

Your trouble seems to lie in the carburetor adjustment. The spray nozzle may be too small to furnish sufficient gas at high speeds. Also the air valve adjustment does not seem to be right. It is possible that by using a stronger air valve spring your trouble may be remedied. Would suggest that you install a stronger spring in the auxiliary air valve and readjust carbureton to meet the new conditions.

Motoring Department, The Constitution—I have been running a heavy motor car for some time. I have had two accidents with my machine while shifting the lever from first speed into second speed. Now, while the lever would shift over into second speed, the first would chop back from neutral. What causes this? Is it from getting too much gas?—M. Schofield.

The hall lock which holds the first speed gear in the neutral position is evidently faulty, and does not perform its proper function. Two speeds meshed at the same time will prevent the transmission shafts from turning, in which case the teeth of the gears must break.

Motoring Department, The Constitution—If I wish to light my car with four-candle power bulbs—two side lights and tail light. Would not a dry-cell battery connected up in series be both satisfactory and economical? How many cells would you advise?—Owner.

It is possible to use dry cells for the purpose you speak of, but they would prove neither economical nor satisfactory. Assuming that you use six-volt four-candlepower lamps you will find that the three lamps will use almost an ampere of current, which would mean that a set of dry cells in first-class condition would not keep them lighted very long. It would also be necessary to use at least two cells connected in series to light them at all, and after once having exhausted the cells they are worthless and would have to be replaced. While the initial cost of a storage battery is rather high, a good 60-ampere hour battery will light three lamps for a period of fifty hours or more and can be recharged over night for 50 cents or less.

Motoring Department, The Constitution—I have on my car a priming cup, the pipe of which is connected to the intake pipe, but I find this is not as efficient as priming through the regular priming cocks above the valves. Now, I have in mind a primer that will with one turn on the dash prime all four cylinders at once, but as there must be a pipe from the primer to each cylinder connecting the regular priming cocks above the valves, what would happen who nthe explosion takes place? Of course, there would be only enough gasoline let in at one time to prime the motor, the flow would be cut off before the engine was cranked. —Reader.

It is not likely that any harm would be done to the pipes leading from the priming device to the cylinders when the engine is started, but unless the device is designed correctly it will afford a constant source of compression trouble. There are several devices on the market at the present time which would operate in the way you describe. Some of these devices, however, are designed to prime the cylinders with acetylene gas instead of gasoline.

Motoring Department, The Constitution—Would a poor mixture cause a spark to appear in the safety gap of a magneto, or is there only one cause for it—the secondary current having no outlet?—T. S. Murray.

A poor carburetor mixture will not effect the safety gap in the magneto. When the secondary current does not have a complete circuit the safety gap of the magneto takes care of this, and the spark you note is simply the completion of the circuit through this safety device. If it were not for the safety device the armature winding would soon be punctured. Often the wires leading to the plugs become loosened, thereby opening the high tension circuit. The current then follows the path of least resistance, which is through the safety gap. When this happens no harm is done to the armature winding. However, if it were not for the safety device the path of least resistance would probably be through the insulation of the armature winding. When this is once punctured the instrument is of no further use until repaired.

Motoring Department, The Constitution—Sometimes my motor knocks slightly, but stops when I reduce the gas and retard the spark. The knock never occurs when the motor is pulling. Does my magneto need adjustment in accordance with the carburetor? I do not like to run on a retarded spark any more than I can help on account of the waste of gas. I have just installed a new carburetor. —Motorist.

By retarding the magneto slightly you might be able to eliminate the knock you mention. With the old carburetor you probably had a slower burning mixture, which necessitated the use of a more advanced spark. Now that you have a new carburetor of a more perfected type the mixture afforded by this is better and more rapid in burning. Of course if the cylinders are very much carbonized this in itself would produce a knock which could only be eliminated by removing the carbon. The knock you speak of can be cushioned somewhat by using a richer mixture, but this is not good if you desire a quick responsive motor.

Motoring Department, The Constitution—My car requires from four to eight gallons additional water to every twenty miles with the shade temperature at seventy degrees or more. I use soft rainwater, have cleansed with sal soda twice, renewed all rubber connections, flushing well at the time; there are no cold spots on the radiator, have cleaned the cylinders; valves and ignition seem to be correct, and adjusted the carburetor and weakened the mixture until there is no power on high. Can you suggest the troubles and a remedy?—C. F. G.

Assuming from what you say the radiator and water jackets are clean, also that all hose connections are free, thus allowing the water to circulate and that the ignition is not too late nor the carbureter adjusted to give too rich a mixture, then it is possible that there is an excessive accumulation of carbon in the cylinders. Should this be the case, a thorough cleansing of the cylinders will in all probability remedy the trouble. If you do not find the trouble to be carbon accumulation, inspect the lubricating system of the motor in order to determine whether the oil in the crank case is at its proper level, also make sure that you are using a good grade of gasoline.

Women as "White Wings."

(Philadelphia Dispatch to New York Tribune.)

The director of public works, Mr. Cooke, is going to appoint women inspectors of street cleaning, not, as he said, to encourage the squal suffrage movement, but for the sake of efficiency in ferreting out dirt. Cooke believes women inspectors will be more conscientious than men. For these tenets he has had practical demonstrations during his term of office by the employment there of a young woman who has acted in the capacity of private inspector for the director. She is not on the city pay roll, and her salary has come from private sources. Her field covers all manner of public constracting work.

Parlors for the Poor.

(From The Springfield Republican.)

A British medical officer says some harsh words about the "passion for a parlor" among poor people. In many houses of the poorer classes, he says there are overtaxed bedrooms and yet the largest room of the tenement must be preserved for a parlor. Like most medical men, he is right, but only from the medical point of view. The "passion for a parlor" is a natural desire for facilities for social amenities and is an indication of the civilized condition as distinguished from the savage.

HISTORY OF AUTOS DIVIDED INTO ERAS

Local Agent for Cole Cars Discusses the Interesting Way Development of Industry.

"Were automobile history divided into eras, these could be easily determined by the special features on which the sellers of cars have harped in the various periods. For a long time power was the principal consideration in the purchase of a car. For in those days cars were few indeed which could develop even sufficient power for ordinary uses." These are the views of M. T. Lahatte, local agent for Cole Motor Cars. He goes on to say:

"But it was only a question of time and improved motor design until all cars were equipped with engines which could pull them out of any difficulty. Then reliability became the watchword. Having produced the power it was desirable to keep it in continued use. And that, too, was a problem which the majority of manufacturers were not long in solving.

"There was an era when sturdiness and strength were proclaimed as individual virtues. There came a time when flexibility and minute mechanical improvements were the order of the day. Then came easy riding qualities, then comfort, ease of control, and full equipment. There was, too, a beginning of the era of luxury.

"The motor car today is the product of all the lessons taught by these eras. It is the culmination of all and each of these special features which engineering skill has brought to the front one by one. And I do not believe that there is any make of car which enjoys any special advantage in these features to the exclusion of all other cars.

"The time has come when a man can walk into any salesroom and pick any car that strikes his fancy and feel reasonably assured that he will get a car that will run long and well and comfortably. Let him assure himself of good local and factory service and he need have no fear in purchasing any car.

"But it stands to reason that better equipped factories, or factories with wiser managements, can produce cars which contain the maximum of desirable features at a minimum cost. In other words, the present era is one of car values. The question that confronts the car buyer today is not whether he can get a car that will run and run well but just exactly how much can he get for a dollar.

"To judge a car he must dissect it; compare it, point for point, with rival makes. If two cars sell at approximately the same price and one has a better radiator, a better engine design, a longer wheelbase, assuming all other parts of about equal value, then, of course, it is the better car to buy. Purchasers are learning more and more to look cars 'in the mouth' and pick out the items of real value, rather than sentimental claims and reported performances of ancient history."

Every Argument is a Smasher for

Goodrich Tires

Best in the Long Run

Goodrich Tires are an advantage to any car they are on.

The makers of practically half the entire 1913 output of automobiles realized this when they bought Goodrich Tires to equip the cars they are making. You can get Goodrich Tires put on any car you buy or own if you specify them.

Goodrich service comprehends so much more than the mere making of tires that you should familiarize yourself with it.

Goodrich tire users and dealers find Goodrich service stations always ready to co-operate with them.

A Goodrich Route Book, mapping and detailing the tour you plan, will be sent you free—whether you use Goodrich Tires or not.

The Goodrich folders telling how to avoid the common tire injuries will be sent you free, without regard to the the tires you use.

Goodrich service in its broadest sense is for the betterment of motoring.

But it is the service that Goodrich Tires themselves give their users which emphasizes the fact that Goodrich Tires are best in the long run.

There never has been a "bad year" with Goodrich Tires. One reason is that there are forty-three years of rubber experience in every one of them. Your dealer will supply you with the Goodrich Tire you need.

The Goodrich principle of unit molding was a development of our twenty-seven years of experience in rubber manufacturing preceding our making of the first American clincher tire—sixteen years ago.

That principle has never needed changing. All Goodrich Tires are made by our unit molded method. Whatever style of Goodrich Tire is best suited for your needs it's the same kind and quality as all other Goodrich Tires. Each Goodrich Tire is molded into a unit. Body and tread are one. The thick, tough tread, being of the tire and not merely put on it, naturally does not slip or peel.

The extra sidestrips of pure rubber reinforce the Goodrich Tire where the strain comes and eliminate the chance of rim injuries.

The whole tire wears uniformly. There are no weak spots or dead places because of over-vulcanizing which cooks the life out of rubber.

Unit-molding—the Goodrich single vulcanization—takes that danger away.

Fortify your own judgment with that of the makers of so many of the oldest and best known cars, as well as the enthusiastic recommendation of thousands and thousands of satisfied users, and specify Goodrich Tires for your own car.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Come See The New Type Tires

You who ever have rim-cuts—

You whose tires lack capacity—

We urge you to come and see tires that can't rim-cut—the oversize tires.

The tires which far outsell all others, after years and years of tests.

You'll See

You will see at a glance that No-Rim-Cut tires make rim-cutting forever impossible.

You will see they are larger than clincher tires—over the rated size.

In air capacity, they exceed old-type tires by an average of 16.7 per cent.

You know that these features must mean big economies, if the tires themselves are the best men make. And the verdict is that Goodyears are.

No Extra

No-Rim-Cut tires now cost the same as standard clincher tires.

As our output increased, the saving in cost has been given in full to users. No-Rim-Cut tires are selling today about 11 per cent lower than last year.

Now there is no extra price to deduct from the savings these new-type tires insure you.

In 1912 the demand for Goodyears was almost ten times larger than in 1909. All because of this new-type tire.

And men today are quitting clincher tires faster than ever before.

Come see why. Then make a comparison. Let your mileage figures, let your tire upkeep win you to these modern tires.

LATEST REPORTS FROM ALL OF THE MARKETS

COTTON MARKET SHOWS CONTINUED STRENGTH

Receipt of Higher Cables Than Expected Caused Market to Open Steady.

New York, May 24.—The cotton market showed renewed strength during today's trading and while prices eased off from the best under realizing, the close was steady at 7 to 9 points net higher. The market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 8 points in response to higher cables than expected, rumors that the report of the National Ginners' association would show a conditions of 79.8 per cent or barely equal to the ten-year average, and an increase in acreage of 1 per cent and covering by some of yesterday's late sellers.

The market met a good deal of long cotton at an advance as well as some selling encouraged by prospects for more favorable weather, but after some rhesitation prices worked up to a net advance of from 17 to 7 points with October contracts making new high grounds for the season. The publication of a private crop report compiled by a prominent Memphis authority for a local firm making the condition 83.1 per cent was partly off-set by the fact that it showed an acreage increase of less than 1 per cent, but seemed to inspire rather heavier offerings after 11 o'clock and closing prices showed reactions of some 10 or 6 points except in the case of May which held well up to the top.

Private reports from the eastern belt indicated further rains and South Carolina advices said that the drought was now completely broken. Complaints of low night temperatures were received from the central belt, however, and continued nervousness about the crop outlook was apparent notwithstanding the prospects for generally clear and warmer weather over Sunday.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, May 24.—The cotton market today again displayed the nervous feeling it had in the early part of the week. Bulls were not satisfied to take their profits than to carry their cotton over Sunday and this, coupled with a moderate amount of fresh buying, principally from the scalping element, worked against values in the face of reports of rain and rather considerable portion of the belt.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 8 points on good cables and low temperatures. Good rains in the Atlantic, in some cases more than needed moisture, balanced to some extent the cold weather talk, but, on the whole, the weather reports of the morning did not look any better than the heavy. Around the middle of the morning, after one or two small reactions, were 6 to 9 points over yesterday's close. At this level ring traders said about the last thing they wanted from outsiders' longs increased, with the result that prices were put down until they were 2 up to 3 down, compared with yesterday's final quotations. The close was steady at a net gain of 7 points to a net loss of 1 point.

Bulls put out much gossip during the morning, calling attention to the fact that temperatures over a large part of the belt were down around 50 degrees, while in Alabama they went as low as 48, but all in all no time did rain pose any develop. Bears called the forecast of fair weather for practically the entire belt very favorable.

CLIMB IS CONTINUED IN WHEAT MARKET

Increasingly Unfavorable Reports Being Received From Kansas—Corn Unchanged.

Chicago, May 24.—Increasingly unfavorable prospects in southern and western Kansas carried the wheat market today up a grade. Closing prices were firm, at an advance of 1 to 1⅜@1¼ cent over last night. Corn finished unchanged at ¼ cent higher, oats varying from a shade off to ¼ cent up and provisions strung out from 15 cents decline to an upturn of 2 cents.

Incessant dry weather and a forecast of more, started wheat shorts to buying. New investors also took a hand, making a large volume of business much in contrast with the usual week-end curtailment. Bulls were especially impressed by statements that 2,000,000 acres in southwest Kansas were in a critical condition with each day enlarging the damage and making the danger worse.

Signs of a substantial falling off in the United States visible supply total discouraged the bear side in wheat and oats, too, did some buying. Exporters had disposed of the little new winter. Reduced estimates from Oklahoma and less promising reports from Missouri were likewise influential, so that the market at no time had any important reaction.

Export clearances of wheat and flour equalled 534,000 bushels. Primary receipts of wheat were 489,000 bushels, a year ago 393,000 bushels.

In the corn pit, selling by cash houses and news of heavier country offerings offset the bullish action of wheat. Weather conditions favored planting. Profit taking by longs weakened oats.

Provision trade was only local. The one noticeable feature was an erratic dip of 15 cents in May pork.

SETTLEMENT REACHED IN HARRIMAN MATTER

Declarations to This Effect Stimulated the Stock Market Strongly.

New York, May 24.—Official declarations that a settlement had at last been reached in the negotiations for segregation of the Harriman system in compliance with the supreme court's mandate stimulated the stock market strongly today.

Gossip on the exchange was to the effect that the segregation plan provided for cancellation of the $126,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock held by Union Pacific in return for which Union Pacific would receive control of Central Pacific with cash and bonds having an additional value of $20,000,000. The stock exchange house, which was the largest buyers of Union Pacific, made the statement that "the full plan of segregation will be issued next Tuesday."

No authoritative confirmation of these reports was to be had. The statement was made by a representative of the banking interests which have acted as fiscal agents for the Harriman roads, that he knew of no settlement in the matter. The response of the stock market, however, was emphatic. Union Pacific for the first time in several weeks rose above 155, gaining three points. Southern Pacific advanced two points. The entire list in these stocks imparted strength to the market as a whole, and gains of one to two points were made by the best issues in every department.

While the banks gained cash on the week, the increase of $2,150,000 was considerably smaller than was indicated by known withdrawals for currency. Another small addition was made to excess reserves.

Bonds were firm. St. Louis and San Francisco 6s rallied strongly after an early period of weakness. Total sales, par value, $1,-250,000. United States 2s coupon declined ¼ and the Panama 3s coupon advanced ⅜ on call on the week.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, May 24.—The condition of the United States treasury at the beginning of business today was:

Working balance $60,273,184.

In banks and Philippine treasury $46,433,876.

Poincare and the Waiter.

(From The Kroonstad Times, South Africa.)

A pretty little incident occured at the banquet given by the French bar to their illustrious colleague, President Poincare. When dinner was over M. Poincare called up the waiter who had watched over him comfort. "Thank you, Jacques," he said, and shaking hands with him he slipped a banknote into his hand. "I won't have it," said the waiter, and, to the amusement and astonishment of those present, there was a friendly struggle between the waiter and the president of the republic. M. Poincare settled matters by pushing the note into the man's pocket, slapping him on the shoulder and rising from the table. Then, seeing inquiry on the faces round him, he explained: "I was at school with Jacques at Sampigny."

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEWS

New Orleans, May 24.—The net results of the week's trading in cotton were an advance of 15 to 22 points. The high prices were made on Thursday and the low prices on Monday. At the highest the trading months were 28 to 29 points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 1 to 2 points under. The range of prices was 29 to 32 points.

Bullish aggressiveness put the market up this week. Certain powerful interests entered into operations looking toward the liquidation of the extensive short interest with a considerable degree of success. At the end of the week the weaker short element had been covered at a loss. The short interest that remained appeared to be strong and proof against manipulative attacks. It was pointed out by these shorts that the market had been weakened technically by the short covering and was more in a position to be influenced by bearishness we than for a long time past. Unfavorable conditions, on the whole, were called very favorable. The drought that has been complained of over a considerable portion of the belt and especially in the eastern half, was effectually broken by rains that extended practically throughout the entire week. Toward the end of the week temperatures were low, but rather weather was warm enough to bring late planted seed up quickly and thus cause good growth on young plants. Deterioration by boll weevil and much talk, too, about the lateness of the crop and of the commercial acreage yet to be done offset the favorable features yet to be done offset the favorable features yet to the weather and caused weaker shorts to liquidate.

In the spot department prices gained one-eighth of a cent, middling closing at 12 7-16 against 12 5-16 at the close of business this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 2,742 bales against 1,717 last week and 1,686 this week last year. Receipts for the week amounted to 1,380 bales against 2,461 last week and 1,036 this week last year.

STOCK MARKET IDLE.

New York, May 24.—While the stock market itself has been almost idle from day to day with price fluctuations small and shifting, the financial world has been preoccupied with the problem of the immediate future of currency legislation.

Neither the New York city bond sale nor the Chinese loan, which were the events specifically conclusive to remove the doubt as to the authority to issue bonds under the duty for capital is to afford relief. The good feature of the Chinese loan as a per cent bonds offered at 90 and unexpected to yield but 84 to China, offers small discomfort to competitors in less prosperous borrowers. Conditions in the foreign exchange market are considered conclusively to foreign influences as the source of the strain. The stringency in the capital market proves trying to corporation borrowers with maturing obligations. Many of these are impending, the fruit of the policy of short-term borrowing pursued for several years past.

Severe declines in securities find an explanation in the difficulties in meeting bills situation. The peculiar acquirements of the market to the Union Pacific dissolution is due to the necessity of finding resources at such a time to take over the holdings of Southern Pacific.

Confidence in the wheat crop prospect is held high by the rapid marketing of old wheat. Primary receipts, as well as exports, hold at an enormous figure. Liquidation of domestic bank loans is expected to go hand in hand with this movement. New orders for steel products still at a halt, but copper exports are well sustained. Contracted bank clearings point to diminished commercial activity and the weak response to the idle freight car supply gains added force in view of the heavy grain movement.

COTTON GOODS ACTIVE

New York, May 24.—Cotton goods for printing and converting, and some lines of cotton goods for the manufacturing trade sold actively this week, and the tone of the goods markets closed distinctly stronger than at the close of last week. Print cloths have become attractive to users. China appeared in the market as a buyer of the lighter-weight sheeting and about 5,000 bales have been contrac

The Well Dressed Woman

THE SWEET GIRL GRADUATE AND HER CLOTHES

By Marion Morris

THE graduation frock is the first important dress in a girl's life. Therefore it should be the loveliest—but not necessarily the handsomest—that the family can afford.

Even though the worker has always dictated what her young daughter should wear, it is only right that the young girl's wishes should be gratified in the instance of her graduation dress. Of course, if she has not yet developed a good clothes taste, she should not be humored. However, I am sure that such a girl is the exception, for the young girls that are now in their teens know more about clothes than their mothers did when they were married.

✣ ✣ ✣

STYLES may come and styles may go, but it remains true that the sweet girl graduate's dress should be the essence of simplicity. This applies to the girl who is graduating from the village school, the one from the city high school, the maiden who is to say farewell to the jolly boarding school days, as well as to the young woman who has won a college degree.

Of course, the dress should be white—with perhaps a girdle of a dainty color—but all white is quite the prettiest. Price has nothing to do with its charm, for it may be made of a fifteen-cent lawn or a hand-woven handkerchief linen that is quite costly. But its style can make it either adorable, or such a fright that the young girl will feel horribly conscious of herself during the festivities and it will become an unpleasant memory. I ask every mother to look back to the day when she graduated and her memory will soon tell her whether her dress helped to make her happy, or whether it was the source of much unhappiness. My motive for asking you to reflect, is because I, is not unlikely that you have forgotten the importance of the dress for this occasion—life has brought so many more important events since that time.

THE ideal graduation frock, whether for a young girl of sixteen or twenty, should be fashioned with straight girlish lines—with typical bebe bodice and plain gathered skirt for a foundation. As the Marie Antoinette fichu is now in vogue, it will add a charming note to the frock—but you must make certain that it is thoroughly becoming, as there is no detail of dress that can look worse than this if it is not worn by the right person. In suggesting the fichu, I do not mean that you should go to the family chest and bring out your mother's or grandmother's precious one of rare lace, for as exquisite as it may be the sentiment that is attached to it cannot make it appropriate—the graduation frock requires one of the same material or of fine net edged with narrow flutings of lace. However, the plain bodice can be just as effective if it is finely tucked, hand-embroidered and inset with fine but not conspicuous, lace. And, don't forget that it should have a slightly low neck—either rounded, or in a square or V-shape.

The note of simplicity should be most pronounced in the skirt, for the daintiest bodice can be totally eclipsed by one that is overtrimmed. While the plain gathered skirt is very effective, it is not ruined when fashioned with an over-skirt tunic that follows the same straight lines. And it is well to remember that a deep hem always gives a note of quality, and that clusters of tucks above the hem are charming, too. Fine hand-embroidery and dainty lace insertions and motifs will give beauty to such a skirt, but heavy and garish laces are absolutely impossible.

✣ ✣ ✣

AS white crepe de chine is now in such high favor, the college girl will not go amiss if she has her frock made of this rich and clinging silk. Such a dress should be fashioned with artistic Grecian lines, or in the graceful modification of the Empire style. But do not allow anyone to persuade you to have a dress made in the Russian mode.

Correct accessories are quite as important—for instance, with this white frock you should wear the new French slippers of fine white buckskin or kidskin; also white silk or fine lisle thread stockings; also gloves of white kidskin or silk in the length that will meet your sleeves.

The dresses for class day, the garden party and other festivities need not be of white! Indeed, it will be good judgment if you get several crepe, voile and silk frocks in the dainty colors that you will want to wear during the Summer. These dresses should also have simplicity for their keynote. The mode with the three-pleated ruffles (of the same material), that extend from the waistline to the lower hip line, has delightful chic.

✣ ✣ ✣

IF surely will make your daughter happy, if you get her entire Summer outfit at this time, for it will make her feel as though she has all the lovely clothes that she will need to start on her real life's journey. And you must not forget that when the school books are closed, the young girl's mind frequently turns to fashions—and that this is the time to plant the seed that will develop into a taste for refined and beautiful clothes.

Don't procrastinate, for the graduation days are not far distant.

PRACTICAL VIOLET HOLDER

An extremely simple and practical rubber novelty comes in the shape of a bunch of violets, and is designed for the protection of a gown when the natural flowers are worn.

It is made of green rubberized silk, the shade of the violet leaves, and is outlined with a green wire. When worn it effectually prevents the penetration of any moisture to the gown. The wire edge permits of shaping the holder to the bouquet proper, and the latter is then attached to the corsage or wherever else desired.

MORE WARDROBE SPACE

Instead of hanging coats, gowns, and waists on the usual hooks at the back of the closet, have a long pole extending through the center of the closet, and fitted in a groove at each end. Use coat and skirt hangers. Hang hats on the hooks at the back of the closet. Your closet will hold much more by this plan.

A Girlish Commencement Frock of Embroidered Batiste

A SHORT GUIDE TO THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

IT is a great shock to Americans to discover, on their arrival in England, that they do not speak the language of the country. Therefore this short guide has been compiled for future travelers in the land where, in their ignorance, they had hoped to find their home tongue at least understood if not spoken.

Before entering a shop, which you must not call a store, it will be well to consult some English person, preferably a maid or porter who may be tipped against any display of ridicule, for the technical name of the desired article. On the Continent it is possible to conduct the most complicated purchasing by the use of a polite smile and a few gestures; but in England, until the absolutely correct phrase is enunciated, the most blandishing smiles and vivid pantomime will fail to bring a gleam of intelligence to the shopkeeper's face. No one should attempt to "rent a week" before finding out that the proper expression is "hire a cycle." And if necessity forces one to seek to buy one of those plebeian articles known in our native wilds as washtrax, or in politer moments as a washcloth, it is a "washing-square," a "sponge-cloth," a "face-flannel." The mere fact that a washing-square may not be square, will be neither of sponge nor flannel, is from the English point of view entirely irrelevant.

Before leaving home it is well to have given up the habit of laying claim to two continents and learned to speak of the "States." Then it is well to impress it upon the mind that baggage is always "luggage," the baggage car the "van," while trunks, suitcases, portemonnaie and bags, are all "boxes." Beside this it must be remembered that the post brings letters, not the mail, although at first blush the information that there are six posts each way between Marston Green and King's Norton may bring a mental picture of hitching-posts or mile-posts. The English manner of inflection, the accenting of auxiliaries, is not difficult to acquire, but the broad A is a pitfall for unwary mortals. Not every A is considered worthy of breath and to an outsider there seems to be no rhyme or reason exercised in the process of separating the sheep from the goats.

The English shibboleth is not the A but three favorite words: aluminum, schedule, and traits. It may be admitted that al'u-min'-i-um is preferable to a-lu'min-um; but no American will submit to calling a schedule, a shedule while school is still pronounced skule not skool; nor will he stoop to dispense with the final T in traits. Trays of character will always produce a too grotesque tea-table vision with little bundles of ethical characteristics filling the place of thin bread and butter and plum-cake.

✣ ✣ ✣

ALTHOUGH absolute perfection in pronunciation is almost impossible to the American, it is very easy to learn to speak idiomatically and to give an impression of unstudied ease, a much to be desired accomplishment in any foreign tongue. First, "I thank you," "Thank you," and "Thanks," must be dropped in favor of an ejaculated "'Cue." As for saying, "I beg your pardon," "Pardon me," "I am so sorry," or even "Excuse me," such length of apology is quite unnecessarily profuse. The only word needed is "Sorry" thrown out in a curt bored tone which will show plainly that all the blame belongs to the person addressed. Then all vividly descriptive, if not always refined, American slang must be cast aside and the attention concentrated on the right adjectives which are the sole necessities for prolonged conversations in England: quite, simply, awfully, nice, jolly, ripping, topping, and rotten. Throw them in singly for ordinary remarks of praise or blame, and double them up in moments of intense enthusiasm. Don't stop to cavil even when a Quaker Meeting is referred to as a jolly little quiet hour. What if the dictionary does define jolly as "jovial, merry, full of mirth;" Dictionaries are not infallible, and the only one in an English library is probably American and therefore untrustworthy. Jolly means awfully nice, quite topping, or simply ripping. As for rotten if it offends your American ears set it down to provincial prudishness and endeavor to use it freely. There is a story of a French boy after a year at an English public school, being asked if he had acquired the "three R's." After a minute's hesitation, he glibly replied: "But, yes, ripping, rotten and right-o."

GIVE THE MAN A SQUARE DEAL

WHEN a girl says "yes" to the momentous question she says it, as a rule, with a most-madonna-like expression of countenance and a very plaintive voice. Now, if her lover but knew it, the madonna-like expression is probably due to the fact that she wears her hair parted in the middle and the plaintive notes are used because she wants to make him feel that, though she accepts him, she is doing so at a considerable sacrifice to herself. That, though she is willing to take him for better or worse, she is rather inclined to think that it's for the worst. She actually imbues the poor fellow with the same feeling, so that he goes away feeling that he has fairly stolen the girl rather than that she has given herself to him.

Now why do girls do that thing? Yet they do do it, over and over again. It doesn't seem to be giving the man a square deal. Why not let him feel that you're glad to accept him? You really are, you know. You have known for some time that the proposal was on the way. You've thought of it from every standpoint and known to a moral certainty that you would accept him, and, if your swain is a little shy, you may even have helped him just a wee, wee bit, so, why in the name of all fair dealing, should you say "yes" in such pathetic fashion? You gain every bit as much happiness as he from the new relationship and give up not a whit more. I doubt if you give up as much.

For one thing, he really gives up his personal liberty. Now that's something you never had a whole lot of yourself. If you were decorously brought up you were always chaperoned or at least questioned by your parents as to your goings out and comings in—but a young man has known no such restrictions. When asked as to his probable destination—it was always just "out"—that indefinite port for which youth has ever set sail.

Now you tie him down to a regular time-clock arrangement which compels him to swear on lodge nights that he had all the regalia to put away when he wants to account for those few extra moments which he really spent with "the boys."

Another thing that he gives up, and gives up cheerfully as a rule, are his good hard-earned shekels. That's not such an easy thing either. It's pretty hard for a fellow who has always spent twenty-five cents a day for cigars to remember that he ought to save that quarter to put in the slot meter when he gets home. Then, too, he used to be able to "sit in" at a quiet little game once in awhile and could stand for an occasional loss, but after he's married it worries him sick to lose fifty-four cents and his painedly mental comment is: "There goes the laundry money"—and so on to the end of the financial chapter.

Lastly, my dears, your husband vets often has to give up his boon companions and it's your fault too. You don't give up yours. You dine them and—no, not "wine them,"—but you lunch them and pink tea them to your heart's content and there's never a word of complaint from your faithful spouse.

But just let him bring a man home unexpectedly to dinner! You scold behind the scenes and worry audibly for fear you haven't "enough" until your husband wishes he had never seen the man before. After the stranger within your gates has departed you heave a martyred sigh and then Say scornfully—"Well, I don't think he's much!"—(with the accent on the he). Your criticism was based on the fact that the man wore a purple tie and had referred to you as "the Mrs."—but your husband has been made to think his friend a breaker of all ten commandments and a creature unfit to bring into his wife's presence. So, one by one, he gives these friends up—until you have him "all to yourself"—just the thing you've been aiming at. You've gained your point, but you've sacrificed a big part of your husband's happiness to gain it.

NEW CLOAK FEATURES

CREPE DE CHINE CLOAKS

There is no word quite as expressive as the old out-of-date expression "ladylike," and this word occurs to one instinctively in connection with the cloaks in question. They are essentially good style and easy to wear by young and old alike, while they are very inexpensive, and are very light and cool. These cloaks are fashioned of black figured crepe de chine, and mostly lined with white chiffon. They have a shoulder yoke and fall in perfect lines over the shoulders, while they are shaped something in shawl form, with a center panel at the back, bordered with deep silk fringe.

TRANSPARENT CLOAKS

Transparent cloaks always become popular in mid-Summer, and some beautiful ones were seen lately in the show rooms of an exclusive dressmaker. One particularly lovely one was composed of black net, lined with chiffon, the net being strewn all over with tiny jet beads, making a solid mass, the inky sparkle of which is accentuated with every movement of the wearer. There is a very wide border woven into it of bright gold beads, which form leaf garlands, flanked with the Greek key pattern on either side.

Black Cloak in Lotus Flower Design

The majority of evening wraps are of the cloak persuasion this year, instead of in coat form.

One charming model is carried out in black broche on a dull corded ground, the pattern representing mammoth lotus flowers. The broche is as soft as the petal of a poppy and falls into exquisite folds, thus making possible the lovely, but simple, draping of this cloak. A huge collar of macrame lace, in a deep creamy tone, shows up like carved ivory against the black background, and is hemmed with black velvet. This fastens on one side under a big knot of velvet and one giant button, while at the back the collar describes a deep, sharp point, which is cut right at the slit instead of in the center. There are, in addition, two mammoth tassels of black silk, one above the other, and cavaner cuffs hemmed with black velvet. The lining is a very soft, thin crepe-shantung, the amber-colored background of which makes a pleasing contrast to the Bulgarian flower garlands which trail over it.

Mother of Pearl Cloak

A white net cloak has a pattern of mother-o'-pearl beads gleaming with different prismatic hues, and mixed with the tiniest of concave gold paillettes, part of the embroidery being worked on net, and part on chiffon. A hem of white moire and gauffered frills of net end lace, complete the scheme.

AMBER ARTICLES

Amber is at the top notch of popularity. This is significant, in view of the fact that champagne is the popular spring color in Paris for gowns, suits, etc., and that tan is so well thought of in this country.

In point of fact, however, amber has been slowly, but surely, winning public favor for a year or more. Starting with a mere spark, this favor gradually increased to a flame, then became a blaze and now bids fair to finally amount to a positive conflagration.

LATEST PRINCESS SLIPS

The Balkan blouse dresses were scarcely launched on the market before a separate lining, in the form of a slip, was made to take care of this new requirement.

These new garments are cut on perfectly straight lines. They hang from the yoke-line to the skirt edge, with no curves appearing under the arms, being quite snug-fitting around the hips, all bulkiness is eliminated in the dress, while extra fullness for the Balkan blouse is supplied by gathering in the top of the slip at the yoke-line, from which point it falls to the hips in the soft blouse effect which is now so fashionable.

FROM AN OLD RAINCOAT

An apron with a bib can be made for wash day, or when you give the baby a bath. A bathing cap, and bag to carry your bathing suit, and little utility cases dear to the suitcase of travelers, may be made from a discarded raincoat.

DAINTY SUMMER PORTIERE

Red bordered white toweling, held together with wide rick-rack braid, makes a pretty portiere to hang in a girl's room.

FOR LINGERIE WAISTS

Make buttonholes on both sides of a lingerie waist, but sew the buttons on a white tape and button them to the button side. When the waist goes to the laundress, remove the buttons. The same tape of buttons can be used on several waists.

FURNISHING THE MODERN PIAZZA

NOW that there are so many attractive porch furnishings the American public spends most of its Summer on the porch. The straight, prim looking row of chairs has given way to furnishings of comfort and beauty.

✣ ✣ ✣

FLOWERS and plants are as necessary to a living porch as books to a library. Porch boxes, filled with scarlet geraniums and nasturtiums in a variety of colors, are most attractive. Potted plants are good, and palms and ferns also, if the porch is of ample dimensions. Hanging pots filled with ferns or vines, are very practical, as they do not crowd the place and get in the way like plants that are standing around.

The rocking chair, without which no well regulated porch was considered quite respectable, has given way to the broad comfortable chairs in wicker and splint, swinging settees, the Gloucester hammock, that is quite large enough to be used as a bed, if necessary. Then there are various adaptations of the steamer chair.

Padded covers of denim or cretonne will transform the most uncompromisingly hard steamer chair into a thing of solid comfort for the porch. Porch furniture is of necessity moved about so much that it is important that it be light in weight and easily handled.

Willow furniture is therefore more generally popular. Chairs are made in all varieties and sizes, with settees, swinging seats, tea tables, work tables, book and magazine tables, flower stands, tabourets and baskets, and the general scheme of furnishing is limited only by the designs of the cretonne and the colors of the stains available for the furniture.

✣ ✣ ✣

FOR the restful outdoor living room greens and browns or willow in natural color, are preferable to the willow furniture painted a dead white.

Some people prefer porch furniture of wood instead of willow, and there are complete sets that are light in weight and attractive in appearance.

A stationary porch seat built against the wall and fitted with a tufted cushion or with pillows is a serviceable addition.

Next to the question of seats in the furnishing of the outdoor room comes the question of tables. At least one table that can be used for both work and play should be provided. If it is of good size and fitted with a lower shelf it may be used for books, afternoon teas, card playing and for even an occasional outdoor breakfast or luncheon.

✣ ✣ ✣

FOR the larger piazza, there are tables designed for every use, including the tea wagon and the new table that is made in two parts.

Each of these parts is triangular in shape, making a convenient little table that fits in to a corner, but when placed together makes a square table of good size. No porch is really furnished without rugs and screens or awnings. The rugs are made especially alluring each successive year. The grass rugs every one is familiar with; then there are the rugs of Algerian fiber.

For porches of mountain camps and of Summer homes where there is practically no hot weather the Navajo blanket makes a most charming floor covering.

In the way of protection from the sun as well as the neighbors and passers-by, awnings are preferable to vines, which are sometimes used for this purpose. Vines must be grown so thick that they necessarily keep out a great deal of light and air.

For porches where awnings are not a necessity the sun screens of flexible fiber are most satisfactory.

Plain and Embroidered Voile Combine Well in This Graceful Graduation Gown

SUITABLE STARCH FOR LACES AND MUSLINS

Mix a small quantity of corn flour smoothly with cold water. This will be found excellent for lightly stiffening all delicate and lacey fabrics, including veils and neckwear of sheer materials.

ATTRACTIVE SCORE CARDS

If you want to make inexpensive and handsome score cards, buy some floral wall paper. Roses and carnations are both very effective. One way is to paste the floral paper smoothly on water-color paper, which costs five cents a sheet. When the paste is thoroughly dry, cut into odd shapes so that a flower is on each card. Attach a pencil, and letter with a small brush. No one would ever suspect that they were not hand-painted. Another dainty score card is made by cutting a rose out of a piece of wall paper, pasting writing paper at the back, and folding the writing paper beneath, which makes a leaf on which to write the score. Attach the card to the dress or belt by a twisted cord of embroidery silk. These cards may be made from any pretty flowered wall paper.

JAPANESE CREPE FOR CHILDREN

Among the newest dresses for children are those made of Japanese crepe. The use of Japanese crepe is directly in accord with the current fashion for materials of a crepy character. Moreover, the Japanese variety is decidedly superior, both in durability of effect and in quality, to any other crepe, because it is woven by hand and the crepe feature is produced in the weaving, while in some other instances it is brought about by a process of shrinkage.

ATTRACTIVE TABLE PLANT

Break off the top leaves of a pineapple by gently working them from side to side until they come out quite clean. Now put two spoonfuls of coarse sand in the bottom of a glass jar, and fill with water. Place the pineapple top in it where it broke off, and always keep it a little under water. Be sure and keep in the light, and after a few weeks roots will spout. As soon as they are strong enough, put in a pot, and then in a small fardiniere. With a little care a lovely evergreen table plant will spread out which will last for years.

WESLEY 10, AGOGAS 9.

In a very ragged game the Wesley team defeated the Agogas 10 to 9 on Agogas Field hard and fielded well, but hard luck played a part. Wesley secured 8 runs in the second, when T'nsley walked 5 men and hit 1. Wesley failed to score after the first inning, but Thomas, for Wesley, deserves a lot of credit for his good work with such poor support. A home run at the bat score will show what luck did.

ROYAL WEDDING MARKS THE END OF ROYAL FEUD

Kaiser's Only Daughter Becomes Bride of Prince Ernst of Cumberland—Ceremony Reunites Houses.

CEREMONY WITNESSED BY THREE EMPERORS

And All the Lesser Royalty of Europe Was Present—The Simple Rites of the Lutheran Church Used.

Berlin, May 24.—Prince Ernst August, of Cumberland, and Princess Victoria Luise, of Prussia, only daughter of the German emperor, whose wedding occurred today with all the pomp and brilliancy of the most ceremonial court of Europe, will ascend the throne of the duchy of Brunswick at an early date. The direct line of rulers of the duchy became extinct in 1884.

It was the will of the German emperor that the dethroned house of Hanover and the house of Hohenzollern should be reconciled, and the emperor made this announcement in a toast at his state banquet this evening in which he exhorted the prince and princess to devote their lives to the service of their future subjects, and confirmed the general belief that the marriage was a love match.

Emperor William spoke to an audience purely of royal blood, diplomatic representatives, ministers and other guests dining in other rooms. The stately "torch dance" formed a fitting conclusion to a series of brilliant pictures. This came after the historic ceremonial, except that the candles borne before the bride was carried by twelve pages, instead of by the ministers, who were no longer willing to figure in such a role.

Escorted by the candle bearers and on guard with drawn swords, the bride was conducted by her father and father-in-law around the hall in court polonaise, the groom following with the empress and his mother.

The Souvenir Garters.

Souvenir "garters" were also distributed to the guests in the form of silk ribbons bearing the bride's initials and the date in gold letters, which modern delicacy has substituted for pieces of the bride's garter, formerly cut up and distributed by the princes of the royal family on the points of their swords.

The bridal couple left immediately afterward for the emperor's hunting seat at Hubertusstock, north of Berlin, where they will pass the first week of their honeymoon, then going for a fortnight to the Duke of Cumberland's hunting castle near Gmuenden.

The emperor accompanied the prince and princess in an open car through cheering crowds to the station.

Ends Long Feud.

The ceremony, which took place in the royal chapel of the imperial castle, seals the reconciliation between the dethroned house of Hanover and the house of Hohenzollern.

The presence of the three most powerful sovereigns of Europe—the German emperor, the Russian emperor, and the British king-emperor—on terms of intimate friendship, made the event a demonstration of international peace.

The civil ceremony was performed half an hour earlier in the great electoral hall, a small room in the most ancient part of the castle. It was attended by only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom.

Before he was robed for the ceremony, Princess Victoria Luise took a short drive in Berlin and was cheered vociferously by immense crowds assembled in the neighborhood of the place.

A choir of men and boys was stationed in the high gallery encircling the chapel, where they sang hymns.

The Bridal Procession.

At the conclusion of the civil ceremony the bridal procession was marshaled into line by Count August Zu Eulenburg, grand marshal of the imperial court, and then proceeded the entire length of the castle through a long series of state apartments to the royal chapel. It was led by the bridal couple, the princess' train being borne by four of her girl friends. Prince Ernst August of Cumberland was garbed in Prussian hussar uniform.

After them came Emperor William with the Duchess of Cumberland. Then followed in order the Duke of Cumberland with the German empress, the Emperor Nicholas of Russia with Queen Mary of England, King George of England with Crown Princess Cecille, the Emperor William's sons with their consorts and 50 or more other princes and princesses of the royal blood.

Dr. Ernest Dryander, grand chaplain of the court, who had baptized Princess Victoria Luise, and prepared her for her confirmation, performed the ceremony, which was the simple Lutheran rite. He then delivered the customary address of advice and admonition to the newly married pair.

As the rings were exchanged before the altar, a battery of artillery stationed outside the castle fired a royal salute.

Bride Almost in Tears.

At the end of the wedding ceremony the empress and the bride were almost in tears, and the emperor showed a father's deep emotion. The two elder sons of the crown prince, in sailor suits, proudly assisted Princess Victoria with the Bible, which the chaplain, Dr. Dryander, presented to the bride during the ceremony.

Then the prince and princess, with Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria, and the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland, returned to the white hall of the throne, where they received the congratulations of the guests, while seated beneath a canopy at small tables. The guests filed past them, making profound bows and courtesies.

The day was dark and overcast and a penetrating drizzle made movement along the streets disagreeable.

From an early hour the streets were alive with people. Protected by raincoats and umbrellas, they watched the constant passing of brilliantly uniformed attendants on the many royal personages gathered here for the ceremonial.

Bunting Everywhere

Every house was hung with bunting and at most of the windows were bunches of evergreens. Bright-colored flowers graced porches and balconies. The many palaces and public offices had hoisted their largest flags and when, later in the morning the wind strengthened in intensity and the downpour abated, these flowed gally in the breeze. The sky, however, remained gloomy and many visitors from provincial towns were disconsolate as the clouds threatened each moment to break again.

Every school throughout the empire was closed in honor of the occasion, and the school children of the capital, in charge of their teachers, paraded the streets or took up their positions at advantageous points, waiting patiently to see the various royal processions.

The wedding functions proper began rather late in the afternoon with the robing of the young bride, at which her mother, the German empress, presided.

The bride wore a wonderfully worked gown of silver brocade, with a court train of the same material, embroidered with a myrtle and orange flower design and lined with ermine.

The bride's veil, like her entire toilet, was of German manufacture. It was composed of a two-yard length of lace on which 80 Silesian girls had worked day and night for six weeks.

Mother Robed Bride.

The last act in the robing of the bride was performed by the empress when she placed on her daughter's head the historic crown worn by Prussian princesses at their weddings.

Among the guests at the wedding were United States Ambassador John A. Leishman and his wife and daughter; Joseph C. Grew, secretary of the American embassy, and his wife; Captain Albert Niblack, American attache; Miss Yvette Borup, of New York, who was a scoolmate of the bride at the Empress' Augusta institute, and a dozen excited school girls, whom the young princesses insisted on inviting at the last moment in return for a personally embroidered present.

At 10:30 o'clock tonight Emperor Nicholas left for St. Petersburg. King George and Queen Mary, it is expected, will remain in Berlin for several days.

DEAF MUTES TO SING WITH CONCERT SIGNS AT CHURCH MUSICAL

Joining in concert singing by means of the sign language, a large audience of deaf mutes will enjoy a musical program Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the St. Mark Methodist church, corner Peachtree and Fifth streets.

Professor S. M. Freeman, of the Georgia School for the Deaf at Cafe Spring, will deliver a sermon in the sign language, taking as his subject, "The Problem of Life." In addition to the concert singing of the doxology by signs, the audience will also join in a prayer, led by Professor Freeman, all standing and joining in the concert signs. St. Mark church holds the distinction of having the only deaf mute Sunday school class in Atlanta. The program announced for Sunday at 11 a. m. is as follows:

Doxology (in concert signs—all standing).

Hymn, "Jesus Is Tenderly Calling Today"—Mrs. Christian, Mrs. Willingham and Miss Wilson.

Prayer—Mr. W. F. Crusselle.

Scripture Reading—Professor S. M. Freeman.

Hymn, "Near to Thee"—Miss Belle Long.

Sermon by Professor S. M. Freeman. Subject, "The Problem of Life."

Hymn, "Lead Kindly Light"—Miss Margaret Magill.

Benediction—Jude, 24-25.

WILL INTRODUCE A BILL FOR A HOME FOR WAYWARD GIRLS

A bill to establish a Georgia state industrial home for wayward girls will be introduced at the coming session of the legislature.

It will be indorsed by the leading legislators, by the Prison Association of Georgia officially, by practically all the women's clubs of Georgia, by superior court judges and by others who have come in direct contact with the problem.

The industrial home or reformatory at Milledreville was originally designed by act of the legislature creating it for the care for both boys and girls, but the lack of necessary facilities and finances have made it impossible to carry out the whole provision of the measure, and the Milledgeville reformatory is able to take care only of wayward boys.

Pendleton Favors Institution.

The need of such an institution is strikingly pointed out in a statement of Judge John T. Pendleton, of the Pulaski superior court, who also presides over the children's court.

"I think a reformatory for girls is very much needed in Georgia," he says. "The children's court has on several occasions had to send girls to Cincinnati for the lack of a reformatory in Georgia."

The bill providing for the establishment of this industrial home and school for girls has already been tentatively drafted. It carries an appropriation of approximately $75,000, and is said to be the most sadly needed institution in Georgia today.

Women on Board of Managers.

The bill provides for the appointment by the governor of a board of managers of five members, less than two of whom shall be women. This board shall be empowered with the appointment of the superintendent of the industrial home.

The purpose of the home is to provide a safe home for girls of 16 years and under who are not actually vicious or immoral, but who are in vicious or immoral surroundings, and who cannot be properly controlled by parents or guardians. The institution is to be a home and industrial school, a reformatory in the true sense of the word, rather than a prison.

DR. LEE TO PREACH FOR COMMENCEMENT AT WESLEYAN TODAY

Dr. James W. Lee, well known in Atlanta as former pastor of Trinity and Park Street Methodist churches, and one of the religious leaders of the south, passed through Atlanta today on his way to Macon, Ga., where he delivers the commencement sermon at Wesleyan college Sunday morning. Hundreds of old friends greeted him with a warm welcome in Atlanta, but with many duties pressing upon him at his present home, St. Louis, he found he would be unable to remain in the city longer than a few hours.

"Inspired Millionaires" will be the subject on which Dr. Lee will preach before the large audience at Wesleyan Sunday morning. The commencement sermon is one fo the most important events of the year and is always largely attended by the people of Macon. Wesleyan itself holds high distinction among the ranks of the female colleges of America, it being the very first female college chartered in this country.

U. C. T.'S HAD BIG TIME AT COLUMBUS MEETING

Travelers of Georgia and Florida Will Hold Next Meeting in Pensacola.

Columbus, Ga., May 24.—(Special.) Georgia and Florida traveling men left the city this morning after one of the most interesting and important conventions of its kind ever held in Columbus had come to a successful close. The next meeting of the Georgia-Florida division of the United Commercial Travelers will be held at Pensacola.

A spectacular feature of the closing day of the convention was the Easmen of Bagdad parade on the street late in the afternoon. The parade was featured by weird and fantastic costumes and was enjoyed to the utmost by big crowds that lined the sidewalks on bothsides of the street. An entire car of paraphernalia had been brought to Columbus for this parade and was in rather startling evidence.

Rain interfered somewhat with the program of entertainment on the closing day, for morning automobile trips for the ladies of the visitors had been planned to local points of interest, but had to be deferred on accevnt of the downpour. The turn in the weather was taken quite philosophically, however, for just now rain means millions of dollars to Georgia and will have as refreshing an effect on business as it has on crops—and if anybody in the world is in cloae and loving touch with business, it is the Georgia traveling man.

Boat Ride Delightful.

One of the most pleasant of the features of the convention was a steamboat ride down the Chattahoochee river. Some three hundred people made the trip and enjoyed it very much. The traveling men and their wives were afloat from late in the evening until nearly midnight, and the trip was marked by the features which make steamboat excursions on the Chattahoochee so pleasant. Music was furnished by a local orchestra and there was dancing on a large barge that was attached to the steamer.

The necessity of improved hotel conditions in the Georgia-Florida territory received the earnest attention of the traveling men and the subject was discussed at some length. The talk made by H. D. Shackelford, of Atlanta, was pointed and created special interest. Mr. Shackelford strongly favors the adoption of a bill by the Georgia legislature providing for a state inspector of hotel, with a view of raising the hotel standard. The convention indorsed the proposed bill. Conditions in many of the smaller hotels of the state are bad and need radical improvement. At the same time the traveling men, with customary broadness of mind, recalled that many of the smaller hostelries are making every effort to give good service and cheerfully give that class of hotels full credit for their efforts along that line.

Delightfully Entertained.

Members of the council were delightfully entertained during their stay in Columbus. The local council of the United Commercial Travelers had made a hard fight to secure the grand council meeting for Columbus, and they wished to show their appreciation of the selection of this city as the meeting place, so they made special preparations for the event. The ladies of the traveling men were also charmingly entertained, Mrs. W. C. Thornton being chairman of the local committee of ladies.

One of the closing features was the initiation of a class of candidates into the Columbus council by the officers of the grand council.

Florida was well represented at the convention, and the delegates from that state took a prominent part in the proceedings.

Grand Rally and Smoker.

At Taft hall, on Tuesday evening, May 27, at 8 o'clock, there will be given a smoker for the retail grocers and fresh meat men, their clerks and other employees; also all jobbers, packers, produce men and their salesmen, and others interested in the Wednesday afternoon closing movement now on foot. Speakers of the evening will be: R. A. Broyles, E. L. Adams, W. G. Stamps, John M. McCullough, and Harry L. Schlesinger.

AUGUSTA WILL VOTE ON COMMISSION FORM

Both Factions in City Politics Seem to Be in Favor of a Change of Government.

Augusta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Augusta is to have another campaign and election for commission government. That the people are going to vote to change the city charter isn't wild guessing, under the present circumstances. A little more than a year ago an effort was made to switch over to commission government, but the plan failed to carry by 71 votes, and more than three times that many of the self-asserted supporters of commission government failed to vote at all. At the present time the campaign is about to open under even more peculiar circumstances, in that both factions are clamoring for commission government.

Factions have always predominated issues or principles in Augusta politics, and it has been no uncommon thing for both "sides" to want the same thing, and one to kill it just because the other too warmly advocated it.

Right now it looks as though the "ram-rackers" on both sides are about to be gotten together on commission government and, when the campaign is launched Monday night of next week, there isn't going to be so much division. The bone of contention now is so much the framing of a charter as it is decision as to how the commissioners are to be chosen. The stronger proposition, at the moment, is that of naming the commission with the new charter bill, but the A. P. A. crowd and the "antis" are not exactly in accord on the basis of representation. It is a fight over equal division for the "ins" and the "outs," and that remains to be settled Monday night.

Recently there was a "peace and harmony" surprise sprung in the city council when George Wright, leader of the "ins," introduced an ordinance changing the time of city registration in conflict with the date originally set for the city primary, and that ordinance was seconded by Julian Smith, leader of the "outs" and chairman of the primary committee. Instead of having the city primary in July it will be held in October, and this will leave ample time to work out the new form of government proposition and leave the way clear for an election under the old form, if it is needed.

NORMAL TRUSTEES MEET

B. S. Miller Succeeds Shackelford as Head of Board.

Athens, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The board of trustees of the State Normal school adjourned this afternoon, after electing officers for two years and re-electing the entire staff of 43 teachers at the institution. B. S. Miller, Columbus, the new member of the board, named recently in place of A. A. Carson, deceased, was elected president of the board to succeed T. J. Shackelford, of Athens, who declined re-election. S. B. Brown, Albany, is vice president, and G. A. Mell, Athens, secretary.

From President Jerre M. Pound, Dean Alex Rhodes, and down through the list every teacher was re-elected as fast as the names were called.

Miss Gertrude Wood, head of the music department, resigned to enter other work, and Miss Bessie M. Baird and Miss Julia McArthur were elected members of the faculty. The report to the trustees is the best the institution has ever had.

The commencement sermon is to be preached by Rev. A. J. Moncrief, of Barnesville, tomorrow, the address to be made by President Mitchell, of University of South Carolina, Monday, and 78 young women and one young man will received diplomas Monday evening.

Pope to Resume Audience.

Rome, May 24.—Notwithstanding the injunctions of his physicians, the pope, who now feels that he has recovered his health, will resume on Sunday the audiences which were suspended at the beginning of his recent sickness.

BUNCH OF SKY SCRAPERS FOR CITY OF AUGUSTA

Empire Life Building Will Be Either Seventeen or Twenty Stories High.

Augusta, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Augusta is going in for "skyscrapers" all in a bunch and with a rush. In a few weeks construction work will start on The Chronicle's ten-story steel office building, for which the contract of approximately $200,000 was let nearly a month ago.

President Reed, of the Empire Life, has just made the statement that the new building that company will erect in Augusta as its headquarters will go either to seventeen or twenty. Just how high the Empire building will be is to be decided at a meeting to be held in Atlanta in June, but, Mr. Reed says, it will not be short of seventeen, at any event.

Both these structures will be on the same side of the same block on the same street.

Between this date and the early fall dirt will be broken on the property opposite the new government building site, in front of the Union station, for the new Bryan Lawrence hotel, a building of ten stories. This, too, it is stated, is to be of steel and reinforced concrete.

Brothers Vie for Prizes in Oratorical Contests at Austell High School

Austell, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Brother turned the tables upon brother when Roy Spink, a popular and clever member of the Austell High school, won the gold medal Friday night at the annual declamation contest held in connection with the school's commencement. Ralph Spink, his brother, had won the same contest last year and was a strong competitor in this year's contest, but going down in defeat before his brother, Roy.

Because of Ralph's excellence, however, his oration, "Our Reunited Country," being admitted as a close second to his brother, Austell friends outside the school collected a small fund the next day and presented Ralph also with a gold medal, inscribed "Second place." Roy had won the competition with the famous oration, "Spartacus to the Gladiators at Capua."

The girls' prize in the recitation contest, held also Friday night, was won by Miss Elizabeth Earl, a talented member of the Austell High school.

FLOYD COMMISSION FEARS A SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC IN POLK

Rome, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The county commissioners of Floyd, through their attorney, M. B. Eubanks, have wired four families at Aragon, Ga., a mill town in Polk county, that they will be arrested if they attempt to come into the county and having been exposed to small pox, alleged to exist there.

The situation has existed. It is claimed, for years and appeals to the Polk authorities to quarantine the disease have proved fruitless. The Floyd board has presented the matter to the state board of health and, with their backing, propose to arrest all parties coming from certain communities in Polk, in which smallpox is said to be epidemic.

BIG CATCHES REPORTED BY TARPON FISHERS

Thomasville, Ga., May 24.—(Special.) Two parties from here have just returned from tarpon fishing down at Boca Grande on the gulf and report some fine catches. In one party were J. F. Archbold, of New York; Walter Hough, of Philadelphia, Judge H. W. Hopkins, Jr., and Theo. Titus. In the other party Dr. A. D. Little, of this city, went as the guest of Edward R. Crozier, of Philadelphia. Dr. Little reports catching seven tarpon and Mr. Titus five. The others of the party also did good catching and had fine sport. Mr. Archbold and Mr. Crozier both returned to Thomasville and will be here several days.

Mrs. Hugh Keeney Drops Dead In the Sacred Heart Church

While in the Sacred Heart church Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, paying her religious devotions, Mrs. Hugh G. Keeney, a well known and widely beloved woman, dropped dead.

Mrs. Keeney had been in the church for some little while. Feeling an acute pain, she arose from her prayers and stepped into the vestibule, there meeting Miss Annie Connolly, with another woman.

"I'm sick. I must have acute indigestion. Can't you get me a little soda and water" she asked of Miss Connolly.

The latter did as requested, but upon returning from the priest's house with the required medicine, found that Mrs. Kenney had died in the short interval. Friends were immediately notified and her body taken away.

Mrs. Keeney was the wife of Hugh G. Keeney, a well known and highly respected citizen of Atlanta. She was born and reared here, having been Miss Florence Lambert before her marriage. She is survived by three children, Charles, Phillip and Pauline; one sister, Mrs. G. W. Brown, and three brothers, Victor, John and Peter Lambert, all of this city.

The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning from the Sacred Heart church, with solemn high mass. Father Rapier officiating. Interment will follow at Oakland cemetery.

PROF. WHITE TO FILL NEW CHAIR AT MERCER

Rev. J. B. Bell Is Elected Member of Board of Trustees of Macon College.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—With the selection of Professor Goodrich C. White, a graduate of Emory and Columbia colleges, as professor of the new chair of psychology and pedagogy, created at the meeting of the board Friday, and the election of Rev. J. B. Bell, of Bartow, Fla., as a member of the board of trustees, the trustees of Mercer university adjourned this afternoon.

As a member of the board, Rev. J. B. Bell succeeds Rev. H. N. Williams, who resigned because he had moved from Florida to Georgia, making it necessary to have another trustee from Florida. Mercer being under the control of the Florida conference as well as the north and south Georgia conferences.

Professor White, who has been elected to the chair of psychology and pedagogy, has been in charge of the philosophic department of Kentucky Wesleyan for the past two years.

President Jenkins states that the two instructors for the academic department of the college, established Friday, will be named some time during the summer.

WITH BAITED HOOK CATCHES WILD DUCK. THIS FROM CORDELE!

Cordele, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Judge Max E. Land, of Cordele, and L. P. Wimberly, postmaster at Abbeville, while fishing on the Ocmulgee river about 10 miles south of Abbeville on last Thursday, witnessed a most extraordinary happening. Mr. Wimberly had baited his hook with a live minnow and threw out his fishline into the water at the edge of the river and near a willow tree, when a wild duck flew out from beneath the tree and snapped up the worm in its bill, swallowed it hook and all.

Both Mr. Wimberly and Judge Land were so astonished that for a few seconds they stood as dumbfounded, watching the duck, which appeared also much surprised. When the duck rose up off the water to fly away, Mr. Kimberly clung to his fishing rod, and pulling the bird to shore, captured and killed it.

65 PER CENT DIVIDEND BY SOUTHERN MUTUAL

Athens, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—At the meeting of the directors of the Southern Mutual Insurance company yesterday afternoon the 65th annual report was made for the company's business, the year closing April 30th.

The company has no stockholders, and is not operated for pecuniary gain to any company or officials. The company is purely mutual, operated in a limited territory, selecting its risks, doing business on reasonable expenses for operation, with a much lower rate of losses than other companies, and an operating expense of less than half that of other companies. What is earned above the losses and the operating expenses is paid back to the policyholders in dividends.

A dividend was yesterday declared of 65 per cent and script is being prepared now for distribution among the policyholders. This 65 per cent dividend is ten per cent higher than last year, when rather unusual losses at Columbia and Stone were heavier than usual. The average dividend declared for the past 40 years has been 60 per cent; for the past 20 years the average dividend declared has been 62½ per cent. The dividend this year, therefore, is above the average.

This dividend represents nearly a quarter of a million distributed among the policyholders, to be exact, $246,000. The total amount paid by the company since its organization in 1846 is over $5,886,252; the total amount paid in dividends to the policyholders in that time is more than the losses paid, or $7,063,947.

DRAINAGE CONFERENCE IS HELD AT COMMERCE

Many Experts Meet and Discuss Plans for Reclaiming Waste Lands of Georgia.

Athens, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The first drainage conference ever held in north Georgia was conducted yesterday at Commerce, several members of the State College of Agriculture accompanying Dr. A. M. Soule to the meeting.

Editor John Shannon, father of the movement, who had been agitating the movement for a conference to discuss the reclamation of hundreds of acres of land in the heart of the best agricultural section of the state, presided. Dr. L. G. Hardman, former state senator and progressive farmer, welcomed the experts and farmers present. Professor S. W. McCallie, state geologist; Professor Leroy Hart, of the state college, agricultural engineer; Hon. R. L. Aiken, of Brunswick, president of the Georgia Drainage Congress, and author of the "Georgia Drainage Law;" Professor Lee Worsham, state entomologist and member of the executive committee of the United States conservation organization, and J. V. Phillips, engineer of the United States department of irrigation, all spoke to the meeting, the last named outlining some practical plans for the local drainage campaign and recommending the appropriation of $5,000 by the state to be used with a sum available from the federal government in reclamation work.

An experimental piece of work was done two years ago on the Thompson plantation in the corner of Jackson, Gwinnett and Hall counties and several hundred acres reclaimed and the river course of the Oconee saved for years to come.

PERRY COMMENCEMENT NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Perry, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The commencement exercises of the Perry High school will be held at the city auditorium on Thursday and Friday, the 29th and 30th. One Thursday night there will be an entertainment by the Sidney Lanier Literary society, presenting a pantomine, "The Lotus Eaters," and play, "Betsey's Degree." The commencement exercises will be on Friday night.

Hon. C. A. Covington, of Moultrie, will deliver the address.

The following students compose the graduating class: Misses Carolyn Cates, Ethel Hodges, Hazel Hurst, Catherine Norwood and Lucy Talton; Masters Joe Hodges, Jr., Ambrose Pierce and Lee Minor Paul, Jr.

Each member of the graduating class will read original essays.

The diplomas will be delivered by the principal, Prof. P. R. Mathews.

WIDOW GIVEN $5,000 FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

Cordele, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—A verdict for $5,000 damages against the Citizens' Electric Light and Power company was been returned in the superior court of Crisp county in favor of Mrs. C. S. Thompson, who sued for $15,000 for the death of her husband.

Thompson was in the employ of the company as lineman and was called out late one night to mend a broken live wire. He had climbed to the top of a pole and had fastened himself to it by a lineman's belt, when the pole, which was very rotten, broke off at the ground, pinning and crushing him between the wires.

The case was on trial for two days and was hotly contested.

Rome in the "Movies."

Rome, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Charles M. Seay, son of Captain J. J. Seay, a local capitalist and railroad man, brought a troupe of moving picture actors here last night for the purpose of staging several dramas in Rome and at Chickamauga park, the latter to be interwoven in a plot part of the scenes for which were taken at the capitol the day before.

The three school scenes to be included in one story to be dramatized, a story of the success of a Georgia mountain boy.

春回到葯

Atlanta, Georgia, May 20th, 1913.

To Thomas Y. Young,
The Oriental Herb Co., 55 Houston Street, City.
Dear Doctor Young:

For over ten years I have suffered from stomach and bladder troubles and I have had impure and bad blood. For years and years I suffered intense pain through my entire system. I had spent a fortune trying to cure myself, using various treatments and remedies from all over the country. This all seemed in vain and never did one any good.

I was on the point of giving up all hope and was despondent and worried and did not know what to do, when, one day, a friend of mine recommended to me a trial of your Chinese remedies. He told me the Oriental Herb Shop, full of wonderful and tried Chinese remedies, was located in Atlanta at No. 55 Houston street, and that he believed these Chinese herbs and roots, properly taken, would cure me. I thought I would take a chance and give them a trial.

After taking one month's treatment my whole system is built up to its normal condition and I feel like a new man. I can earnestly say to the bottom of my heart that I am cured of all my troubles, sufferings and diseases. I publish this statement for the benefit of the public that other cases may be cured permanently and others relieved from suffering, because only those who have suffered as I have can know how happy I am over my recovery.

Yours truly,
J. H. WHIDBY.
249 Terry Street, Atlanta, Georgia.

If you are suffering! If you can't get well! If you have abandoned all hope of happiness and good health! Why not take this key to "The Door of Hope in the House of Health" that Colonel J. H. Whidby points out to you?

BULGARS BATTLE WITH THE GREEKS

Severe Fighting Continues in Vicinity of Saloniki—Situation Said to Be Extremely Grave.

London, May 24.—Severe fighting has been resumed between the Greek and the Bulgarian troops in the vicinity of Saloniki. The infantry and artillery of both races are hotly engaged near that city, according to dispatches received here from Athens. The dispatches refer to the situation as having become "extremely grave."

When the last message was sent, King Constantine, of Greece, who had just arrived at Saloniki with the general staff of the Greek army, was endeavoring to arrange a neutral zone between the two armies.

Losses of Greeks Heavy.

Saloniki, May 24.—Losses of the Greek troops during the fighting against the Bulgarians are given today as one captain killed and 250 men killed or wounded. Hostilities have been suspended.

A mutiny has broken out among the Bulgarian troops at Serres, the men demanding to be disbanded. When their commanding officer found that he was unable to quell the disturbance he committed suicide.

Gordon Lee to Return.

Washington, May 24.—(Special.)—Representative Gordon Lee, who has been in Georgia for several days, will return to Washington on Monday.

Howard Baby Better.

Washington, May 24.—(Special.)—Representative William Schley Howard's baby, who has been ill with pneumonia, was better today. It passed the crisis, and its recovery is now confidently expected.

OFF TO CHATTANOOGA ON THURSDAY, MAY 29

Members of Commerce Chamber to Inspect Manufacturers' Exhibit in Tennessee City.

There will be an excursion to Chattanooga next Thursday, May 29, under the auspices of the chamber of commerce, for the purpose of giving Atlanta merchants and manufacturers an opportunity to inspect the permanent exhibit in Chattanooga of the Manufacturers' association of that city. The train will leave here at 7:30 a. m. and will return on the evening of the same day. It has not been decided whether the trip will be made over the Western and Atlantic or the Southern railroad.

A special train will be run, and a fare of only $5 for the round trip has been secured. A dining car will be attached to the train so that those going can secure breakfast on board if they desire.

The purpose of the excursion is to give members of the chamber of commerce and others interested on opportunity to see what the exhibit has done for Chattanooga with a view to establishing a similar exhibit in Atlanta. Brooks Morgan, one of the vice presidents of the chamber of commerce, is handling the excursion.

ASHES OF POET MILLER WILL BE SCATTERED

Oakland, Ca., May 24.—Services honoring the memory of Joaquin Miller, "poet of the Sierras," will be held tomorrow at the poet's former home, "The Heights," and from the pyre, which he built, his ashes will be scattered to the winds. The ceremony will be conducted by the Bohemian club of San Francisco. The poet desired that his body be cremated on the pyre, but this was impossible because of municipal restrictions.

Nat Goodwin and De Wolf Hopper Bridegrooms for the Fifth Time

NAT GOODWIN, FIFTH TIME BRIDEGROOM.

Goodwin Weds Margaret Moreland and Hopper Weds Elda Curry.

Los Angles, May 24.—Discarding for the occasion the walking stick that has been his constant aid since the accident which nearly disabled him more than a year ago, Nat Goodwin, the actor, smiling, underwent his fifth experience as a bridegroom today at his home at Ocean Park. The birde was Margaret Moreland, his leading woman on the stage, who recently was divorced from Charles Doughty, a real estate broker of San Diego. Justice J. W. Summerfield performed the ceremony.

There were no wedding frills—just the unornamental legal ceremony in the presence of a few people, personal friends of the actor and his bride.

"I am too old a hand at this business to want or need any decorations," said Goodwin.

He smiled when told that De Wolf Hopper had beaten him in the matrimonial game, but he had no comment to make, beside declaring in a rebuking tone that marriage—especially when contracted solely on the basis of love, as was his today—was not a subject for jest.

"He is the most interesting man alive," said Mrs. Goodwin of her husband.

Fifth Wife for Hopper.

New York, May 24.—De Wolf Hopper, comedian, who was divorced a month ago by Nella Bergen, his fourth wife, was married secretly last Friday to Elda Curry. The announcement was made at the Lambs' club last night. Hopper's former wives, besides Nella Bergen, were, in order, Ella Gardiner, Ida Fischer and Edna Wallace.

Appointees of Gov. Candler Erect Monument Over Grave

The movement to raise a fund to place a monument over the grave of the late Governor Allen D. Candler was started about one year ago. None were called on to contribute but those of his official household while governor. As an evidence of admiration and respect for him, their heads, they responded loyally.

In less than one year they are ready to place and present their offering. The following are the contributors: to wit:

Inscription on Stone

This inscription will be cut upon the stone in raised letters:

"Placed to the memory of Allen Daniel Candler by his appointees to office and places of honor while governor of Georgia.

November 4, 1834.
October 26, 1910.

A graduate of Mercer university in the class of 1859.

A soldier and colonel in army confederate states, 1861-1865.

A member of the house of representatives of Georgia, 1873-1878.

Senator, 1878-1880.

A member of the congress of the United States, 1883-1891.

Secretary of state, 1894-1898.

Governor of Georgia, 1898-1902.

Compiler of state records, 1902-1910.

"He was an upright man, a patriotic citizen, a true soldier, and a faithful public servant, who, in peace and in war, exemplified the virtues of incorruptible integrity, fearless courage, and unselfish devotion to the welfare of his country."

Will Present Monument.

The third day of June next, a holiday in Georgia, being the birthday of Jefferson Davis, has been selected as the day for a committees of contributors, headed by J. W. Lindsey, commissioner of pensions, as chairman, to go to Gainesville to place and present the monument to the family, to the city of Gainesville and Hall county, and to the state of Georgia.

These cermonies will be participated in by the city council of Gainesville, with county officials and citizens of Hall county, the local organization of confederate veterans, the chapters of the Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy, the military and such other organizations desiring to participate.

Invitations have been given to Governor Joseph M. Brown, Governor-elect John M. Slaton, to all state officials and the public in general, and especially to the many close friends of Governor Candler who are invited to be present on this holiday to show their esteem and respect for the memory of one of Georgia's noblest men.

The Hon. Hamilton McWhorter will, in behalf of the committee, present the memorial, to which speeches of acceptance will be made in behalf of the family, the city of Gainesville and Hall county, the veterans, the Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy, and by Governor Joseph M. Brown and Governor-elect John M. Slaton for the state.

All persons desiring to attend these ceremonies will assemble at the Terminal station, Atlanta, Ga., on the morning of the 3rd of June next. The train over the Southern railway will leave Atlanta for Gainesville at 6:55 a. m., returning in the afternoon. Special rates will be arranged for from the round trip.

WILL ASK $75,000 FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Board of Education Budget to Be Presented to Finance Committee of Council Tomorrow.

Special stress will be laid upon an appropriation of $75,000 asked for to build a new girls' English commercial high school when the budget committee of the board of education presents the school budget for the coming year to the finance committee of council tomorrow morning.

There was a meeting of the budget committee at the boys' high school yesterday morning to arrange the last details of the new budget. The amount asked for will be approximately the same as last year, which was $833,000. There are a few new items on the budget, however, which were not included in last year. The most important of these are $60,000 for the erection of a new Davis street school and appropriations for the erection of new schools in the eighth ward and in East Atlanta, also a sum for the purchase and equipment of the old Neal school in Inman Park.

Last January council appropriated for school purposes $513,000. In addition to this the board had at its disposal $17,000 left from last year, which was obtained from the sale of bonds. The committee will ask for an increase in the number of teachers, which is insufficient, it is claimed, for the growing needs of the schools. The increase in the number of pupils over last year is 1,094, the registration for last year having been 23,971, while this year it is 24,065.

SOLDIERS INSPECTED AT FORT M'PHERSON

The soldiers stationed at Fort McPherson made a fine showing at the annual inspection held by Lieutenant Colonel W. C. Brown Saturday afternoon.

Companies A, B, C, D, L and M of the regimental detachment were inspected, as well as the band, hospital corps and corral. The companies went through the drill of pitching shelter tents. Their arms and all equipment and quarters were inspected.

"The boys made a great showing," said Colonel J. T. Van Orsdale, commanding the fort, after the inspection.

DR. HALL HOME FROM PEACE CONVENTION

Dr. J. J. Hall has just returned from the great arbitration convention held at Mohawk Lake, N. Y. About 500 of the most prominent educators were in attendance. On his return Dr. Hall stopped over in Norfolk, where he preached last Sunday to his former charge, and also to arrange for a great peace convention soon to be held in Virginia. On Wednesday he was at Red Springs attending the Scottish American society's annual meeting. The chief feature of which was a great address by Dr. James A. Macdonald, of Toronto. Strong peace resolutions were unanimously passed. The commencement exercises of Red Springs college took place at the same place, adding much to the pleasure of the occasion.

Deliberate Selection In Loose Diamonds

Our Diamond rooms are especially arranged for the secluded and comfortable privacy of our customers, and to afford quiet and careful attention.

It is our desire to have our patrons know all that any expert can tell about a diamond, and we therefore display diamonds loose (unmounted), the only way in which any diamond expert would consider a purchase.

Diamonds come from the "cutters" in "papers" containing many carats of stones of wide variety of color, degree of perfectness and class. Every diamond we handle we buy directly from the cutters in papers aggregating many thousand dollars.

Our President assorts and classes these papers into grades and values, and they are gone over and over with unusual care until every value is absolutely correct.

This is not possible with the jeweler, both because it requires years of experience and an expert, and also a large amount of capital in our one specialty.

After selection, we mount our diamonds in any variety of elegant design that our customers could desire, using care that only the most perfect work is delivered.

The certainty of knowing what grade and value you are getting in any purchase has all to do with contented possession, and our price, grade and weight are always marked in plain figures.

Our one, plain-figure price, from which we never vary, necessitates that we be sure that our prices are as low as the same diamonds can be bought for anywhere in the world.

"Our Diamond Book," Set No. 6, explains how our diamonds have a guaranteed cash return value, also exchanged at full price, and purchased on partial payments, by good notes running over as much as ten months.

Growing Children Need Good Bowels

Give a Mild Laxative Occasionally to Insure Regular Bowel Action

As a child grows older it requires more and more personal attention from the mother, and as the functions of the bowels are of the utmost importance to health great attention should be paid to them.

Diet is of great importance, and the mother should watch the effect of certain foods. A food will constipate one and not another, and so we have a healthy food like eggs causing biliousness to thousands, and a wholesome fruit like bananas constipating many. It is also to be considered that the child is growing, and great changes are taking place in the young man or young woman. The system has not yet settled itself to its later routine.

A very valuable remedy at this stage, and one which every growing boy and girl should be given often or occasionally according to the individual circumstances, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a laxative and tonic combined, so mild that it is given to little babies, and yet equally effective in the most robust constitution. At the first sign of a tendency to constipation give a small dose of Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring, and prompt action will follow in the morning. It not only acts on the stomach and bowels, but its tonic properties build up and strengthen the system generally. Mrs. Henry Babler, Van Dyne, Wis., writes that her little son, Melvin Babler, was constipated most of the time until she gave him Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Since using this remedy he has never been constipated.

MELVIN BABLER.

The use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will teach you to avoid cathartics, salts and pills, as they are too harsh for the majority and their effect is only temporary. Syrup Pepsin brings permanent results, and it can be conveniently obtained of any nearby druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

MANCHESTER IS THE PLACE

If Horace Greeley lived today he would say: "Go South, young man." This is the field of opportunity, and Manchester is the flower of the field. You can do better at Manchester.

Nature has blessed Manchester with a glorious climate, healthful waters and an invigorating atmosphere; pioneers of progress have selected it as a railroad center for the lines which stretch into the coal and iron fields of Alabama, the trade centers of the east and middle west and the seaboard of the Atlantic Ocean. Man has taken advantage of these natural and geographical gifts and added varied opportunities for the bread winner, comforts and conveniences of the city for his wife and furnished free schooling for his children.

Quickest Relief Known For All Sore Feet

The following is absolutely the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is really wonderful. All soreness goes instantly; the feet feel so good you could sing for joy. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has Calocide compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. It is not a patent medicine, but is an ethical preparation.

$200,000,000 FOR ARMY WANTED BY FRANCE

It Is Proposed to Borrow the Sum—French Revenues to Be Increased.

Paris, May 24.—The draft of a bill authorizing the French government to borrow $200,000,000 for twenty years in order to meet military expenses was submitted to the cabinet today by Charles Dumont, minister of finance, and approved. M. Dumont explained to his colleagues his plans for increasing the government's revenues by $40,000,000 annually. French three per cents were feeble on the bourse today owing to the reports about the new loan.

Germany Short on Officers.

Berlin, May 24.—A resolution striking out 1,008 additional army lieutenants and 1,004 noncommissioned officers from the number demanded by the German government in the new army bill was adopted by the budget committee today after it had been introduced by the center party.

It was asserted that this action had been taken because the number demanded was not available, as there are not enough aspirants for commissions.

Of general interest throughout the state is the announcement which comes from Gainesville, where Colonel Sandy Beaver, of Riverside Military and Naval academy, names Col. J. G. Neal as commandant of the corps of cadets at Riverside. Col. Nash assumes his duties as such on June 1. There are few better or more favorably known commanders in preparatory school circles than Colonel Nash. A born disciplinarian, school soldier and magnetic man, the cadets under his command are always known for that snap and dash which has often been characterized as the West Point style.

Colonel Nash, after graduating with honors from Gordon college in the class of 1896, supplemented this training by work in the laboratories, reading courses, travel and study in the north and east. He then entered school work to which he has devoted his life and in which he has been eminently successful. He was superintendent of the public schools of Henry county; vice president and commandant of Reinhardt college, and commandant at Gordon institute for several years. His more recent position has been commanding officer and instructor in the Georgia Military academy from 1907 to 1912. He has been detailed by the adjutant general of the National Guard of Georgia as instructor and inspector in camp and target practice. He was detailed by the governor of Georgia to serve on the staff of the grand marshal at the inauguration of Presidents Roosevelt and Taft. He holds commissions with the National Guard from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel; also assistant inspector general of Georgia. He has been instructor of hundreds of soldiers in the state of Georgia than any man in the state; at the same time urging forward that vicorous mental training that has put the strong body, made a soldier work into the foremost ranks of successful citizens. Colonel Nash's exceptional training, broad experience and ripe scholarship will be a distinct acquisition to Riverside's already carefully chosen faculty.

YARYAN NAVAL STORES IN FINANCIAL STRAITS

Co-Receivership Is Named by Judge Speer to Take Charge of Affairs of Company.

Macon, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—The cent failure of the American Naval Stores company has involved the Yaryan Naval Stores company, a $5,000,000 concern located at Brunswick, Ga., and Gulfport, Miss., and today, on application of Attorneys Isaac and Heyward of Macon, representing various creditors, Judge Emory Speer in the United States district court for the southern district of eGorgia, appointed a co-receivership to take charge of the affairs of the company and operate it as a going concern.

The receivers are Judge William H. Felton, of Macon; James S. Bralley, president of the company, and Homer T. Yaryan, vice president of the company, both of Brunswick.

The American Naval Stores company is said to have owed the Yaryan company a quarter of a million dollars at the time of its failure and the inability to collect this money has caused the present financial embarrassment.

Largest in World.

The Yaryan company is probably the largest naval stores manufacturing plant in the world. The output of the plant at Brunswick is 300,000 gallons of turpentine, 300 barrels of rosin and 1,000 gallons of pine oil daily, while the Gulfport plant turns out 1,000 gallons of turpentine, 100 barrels of rosin and 300 gallons of pine oil daily. The plants run night and day, and are never closed down, it being stated that to close down for a single day would cost $5,000 to start up again.

The plants at Brunswick and Gulfport employ at least 2,500 workmen, 1,500 of whom are kept in the woods continually supplying old stumps from which the products of the company are manufactured. Seventy-five cars of stumps are consumed daily and the annual pay roll of the company is $500,000.

To Conserve Assets.

The equity proceeding was brought for the purpose of conserving the assets of the company and both the company and the creditors consented to the receivership, feeling that it would be impossible to go along without the protection of a court of equity. It is said that the receivership will have no disastrous effect on the city of Brunswick, as it is merely a protective measure to keep the business a go-

11 BATTLESHIPS SUNK IN A MIMIC BATTLE

Newport, R. I., May 24.—Eleven of the biggest battleships in the navy, constituting the Atlantic squadron, were sunk theoretically today in an encounter with five submarines off Block Island sound. The attack took place three hours after dawn and under a cloudy sky and streaks of fog.

The battleship fleet expected the attack and all hands had been mustered to quarters when the gray back of an underwater craft rose out of the sea off the bow of the flagship Wyoming. Before the guns of the flagship could be trained on the "enemy" a "dummy" torpedo struck the Wyoming well below the water line. The twenty-thousand ton warship, which cost several millions to build, foundered, carrying down most of the 809 men, according to the umpires.

One by one the other battleships were torpedoed and sent to the bottom, then the fleet returned to Narragansett bay with the victorious submarines.

SUPREME BEAVER DAM MEETS HERE NEXT YEAR

Birmingham, Ala., May 24.—(Special.)—Atlanta was selected as the next meeting place of the supreme dam of the Independent Order of Beavers this afternoon.

John Plaza, of Vicksburg, was elected supreme president. Sam E. Jones, Chattanooga, vice president; A. Saxton, Memphis, treasurer; H. W. Ingram, Birmingham, supreme organizer; W. C. Munday, Atlanta, supreme councilor, and J. R. McMichael, Atlanta, trustee.

RAILROAD BUILDERS RACING AGAINST TIME

Washington, Ga., May 24.—(Special.) With two large steam shovels working day and night with double shifts and a large force of hands supplementing the work of the mammoth "steel men," a race against time is being made by the builders of the new Elberton and Eastern railroad from Elberton to Tignall in this county, a distance of twenty-one miles.

When the road was being first promoted, citizens of Wilkes county, near Tignall, agreed to subscribe to the stock of the enterprise, giving their notes for same which were made due and payable on July 1 of this year. About $60,000 of such notes are held by the promoters of railroad enterprises in which the stipulation was made that the notes are good only upon the completion of the road from Elberton to Tignall by July 1, when the first train shall run into the hustling Wilkes county town.

Failing in their attempt to get the subscribers to the railroad project to agree to an extension of the notes and the time limit for the road's completion to Tignall, the builders are up against the proposition of building the road in an almost incredably short time or forfeit the $60,000 subscription to stock. From every indication the road will have progressed sufficiently for trains to be run from Elberton to Tignall by the middle of June.

While the officials of the rond are reticent concerning their future plans, the general impression prevails that as soon as their contract is finished with the citizens of Tignall, the Elberton and Eastern railroad will be continued southward to Washington and will ultimately be Tignall and southern city to Augusta. Knowing ones say this is the plan of the road's officials which are now being worked out, although the exigencies of the case make it advisable not to discuss future operations until Tignall is reached.

LEWIS FOR CHAIRMAN OF LABOR COMMITTEE

Washington, May 24.—Representative Lewis, of Maryland, was today agreed upon by the house ways and means majority for the chairmanship of the committee on labor, secretary of Labor Wilson. Representative Lewis, Secretary Frank Morrison and other members of the American Federation of Labor had a conference at the capitol early today at which the labor chairmanship was discussed.

The ways and means majority was in session until tonight, adjusting the committee personnel of the house. The list will be submitted to a caucus of the house democratic members Monday.

The good roads committee will be headed by Representative Sheckelford, of Missouri, leaving a contest on at a caucus between western and southern members for Mr. Shackelford's place on the ways and means committee.

Representative Slayden, of Texas, will remain chairman of the library committee. Representative Hobson, of Alabama, tentatively has been left on the naval affairs committee instead of the education committee as suggested.

MILITIA TO BE PAID FOR STRIKE SERVICE

Buffalo, N. Y., May May 24.—The state courts here today handed down a decision ordering the county to pay members of the Buffalo Guard called out for duty during the recent strike of the street car men. The sum amounts to $20,000.

Payment of the bill was refused by the county on the ground that the section of the military law under which the troops were called out by a justice of the state supreme court was unconstitutional in that it gave a civil officer powers that were derogatory to the powers of the governor conferred by the state constitution.

Justice Marcus in his decision holds that "the suppression of riots is distinctly a judicial function under the code of criminal procedure."

G. A. R. Veteran Sprinter Challenges U. C. V. Veteran to Race at the Reunion

Detroit, Mich., May 24.—J. L. Smith, of Detroit, 67 years old, champion runner of the grand army of the republic, last night mailed to Lieutenant General Bennett H. Young, Louisville, Ky., commander in chief of the United Confederate veterans a challenge to be laid before the southern veterans at their encampment at Chattanooga next week.

Mr. Smith invites any confederate soldier to meet him on the cinder path for a race of any distance from a quarter of a mile to ten miles. He stipulates the race is to be run during the G. A. R. encampment next September.

Smith is a veteran of both the Eighth New York heavy artillery, and the Tenth New York infantry.

JAPANESE EMPEROR SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Tokio, May 24.—The condition of Emperor Yoshihito continued to improve today. The physicians in attendance declare themselves confident that he will recover from the attack of pneumonia. His appetite is satisfactory. He takes nourishment regularly and his heart action is strong.

Count Chiaki Watanabe, the imperial master of ceremonies, today read to the emperor President Wilson's cabled message of sympathy which is also prominently displayed in the newspapers.

The bulletin issued by the court physicians in attendance on the emperor at 4 o'clock this afternoon said: "His majesty's condition today improved, his temerpature is 102.74 degrees Fahrenheit. Tis pulse is 85 and his respiration 28."

ROOSEVELT PARTY TO DO NO MERGING

New York, May 24.—Decision that the progressive party will continue its fight as a distinct party organization was reached by the executive committee at a ten days' session, concluded this afternoon at national headquarters here. Walter F. Brown, of Toledo, in making the announcement said that in every state where a United States senator is to be elected next year the progressives will have a candidate. Party candidates in every state and in every congressional district also will be nominated, he said. George W. Perkins, chairman of the executive committee, presided at the meeting.

DEMONSTRATION WORK GETS BIG DONATION

General Education Board Makes Appropriations for Boys' Corn and Girls' Canning Clubs.

New York, May 24.—The general education board appropriated $837,600 for the benefit of sixteen colleges and educational institutions in various parts of the country.

The board's appropriations include conditionally $50,000 for John B. Stetson university, Deland, Fla.

In addition to the appropriation for colleges the following appropriations were made:

For demonstration work in agriculture in the southern states, including the boys' corn club work, $180,000; for the promotion of girl's canning and poultry clubs throughout the south, $75,000; for professors of secondary education in several state universities of the southern states, $30,550; for state supervisors of negro schools in several southern states, $20,000; to three schools for negroes, $25,000.

BLACKSHEAR USES NEW LIGHT PLANT

Waycross, Ga., May 24.—(Special.)—Tonight Blackshear used its new electric light plant for the first time. The system belongs to the city, having been installed with money secured by a sale of bonds. The streets of the city are well lighted.

The water plant which was built with bond money also is in use, giving the town good fire protection for the first time since its establishment many years ago.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED TO ACCUSED KOREANS

Seoul, Kora, May 24.—The supreme court today nullified the decision of the appeals court, which on March 29 sentenced six prominent Koreans to varying terms of imprisonment on a charge of conspiring against the Japanese governor general, Count Terauchi.

The court ordered a re-examination of the case by the Tai-Ku court of appeals on the ground that the judgment of the Seoul court had not made it clear whether actual preparation had been made by the conspirators for the assassination of the governor general. The supreme court holds that both secret plotting and actual preparation are necessary for conviction.

DAUGHTERS OF WILSON AT THE BENNING RACES

Washington, May 24.—President Wilson's three daughters were among the throng of fashionable and official folk who enjoyed today's racing at the Washington Riding and Hunt club at Benning, when Lieutenant C. K. Rockwell, of the army engineer corps, was a winner of one event and took second in three others, winning the army and navy cup race from a large field on Hand Running. The army service test 17-mile race was postponed until Monday, owing to the heavy course. The Russian ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff, the Brisilian ambassador and Mme. DaGama, and Miss Katherine Elkins were among the spectators.
